10. The proposals to form Indian Services, Industrial and Chemical, have been subjected to severe criticism. In the case of the former it has been urged that while the higher service will be useful it will not command engineers of sufficient talent to make recourse to independent consulting engineers unnecessary. His Honour cannot, however, accept this as a serious argument against the constitution of such a service since it is obvious that the personnel which the Commission desire to recruit will be possessed of general qualifications enabling them to dispose of the great majority of the problems placed before them, which will ordinarily not require any specialised knowledge. Somewhat more weighty is the argument that the foundation of a service of experts will tend to discourage the activities of the private consulting expert. But although this reason may have weight 20 years hence it has little force to-day. The opposition to the formation of an Imperial Chemical Service is much more serious, and to secure a complete presentation of the case copies of two notes, one by Mr. Maynard, Financial Commissioner, and the other by Messrs. Wilsdon (Agricultural Chemist), Carter Spicer (Professor of Chemistry, Forman Christian College) and Rai Sahib Ruchi Ram Sahni (ex-Professor of Chemistry, Government College), are forwarded for the information of the Government of India. His Honour is not inclined wholly to accept the position taken up by these gentlemen, as he considers that there is a distinct tendency to view the subject too much from the purely educationalist standpoint. He understands that the periods of deputation to the various Provinces will not be so short as is apparently imagined, while too much stress has been laid on the argument that members of the Imperial Service will look for promotion outside the Province to which they are attached. He is not aware that these disadvantages have been experienced in the case of other "India" Services and he finds it difficult to believe that the fact that the research worker will not have a personal share in the fruits of his work will operate to bring about inefficiency in the case of the Chemical Service to a greater extent than it does in the case of other Services. It seems to him that in their opposition to the bureaucratisation of research the chemists claim for their peculiar qualifications a somewhat anomalous position, similar to one which might be put forward on behalf of poets or artists, and that this is rather a commentary on the paucity of qualified chemists than a serious argument against the Chemical Service. His Honour would agree, however, that there will be a grave danger of failure if selection for this new service is confined to the young and inexperienced chemist, from whose equipment industrial experience and business instinct is likely to be lacking. Further he believes that while research into larger industrial questions will be better conducted at a large institute such as the Tata Science Institute at Bangalore, all the smaller problems involving less elaborate machinery may more advantageously be investigated in the province concerned and to this extent he would support Mr. Maynard's proposal to institute a really strong school of Chemistry both for research and for teaching in connection with the local University. On the whole, however, it would appear that the scheme contemplated by the Industries Commission and favoured by the Government of India whereby the Local Government obtains for its Industries Department the services of experts recruited for Imperial Services is sound. Experts for special purposes might occasionally have to be specially recruited as circumstances dictated.

11. As has been already mentioned, His Honour finds it difficult at this stage to reach a conclusion regarding the relations between Imperial and Provincial Departments. Prima facie it would appear that while in matters of general administration the control of the Local Government should be paramount the Imperial Department of Industries should exercise a very close supervision in all technical matters where expert knowledge is necessary.

Proposed Imperial Chemical Service.

1. The objects which the Industries Commission has in view are these—

- (1) The creation of a central reservoir of specialists which no Local Government could afford to entertain or fully employ.
- (2) An authority which will advise on the organisation of research, so that it may cover the whole field and prevent overlapping and omissions.
- (3) An authority which can criticise and check the work done by the researcher in Chemistry. Incidental to this object is the establishment of a journal to which all papers on such work must be submitted, and in which they will be published if the authority thinks desirable.
- (4) An atmosphere of science for the Chemist, with a complete library of research.
- (5) Means of applying a commercial test to the results of research.
- (6) To make the teaching and research staffs interchangeable, so that teachers may direct their teaching to the forwarding of practical needs.
- (7) Better pay and prospects for the Chemist.

2. The fourth of these objects could only be attained completely if the majority of the Chemical Service were located together for long periods at some central institute, an arrangement hardly to be reconciled with the needs of Local Governments. It can be attained partially by measures falling a long way short of the creation of an Imperial Chemical Service, including all chemists in Government service, and lending chemists for 5-year periods to Local Governments.

3. The fifth of the objects does not appear to be connected in any way with the organisation of the Chemical Service as an Imperial Service or otherwise. It seems to postulate something other than purely scientific knowledge: the sort of business aptitude which a chemist might or might not have and would be as likely to have under one form of organisation as another. In practice I should have supposed that it would be supplied by the prospector who is engaged in investigating the prospect of a business, getting his scientific facts from the chemist, and supplying the business facts (e.g., as to the availability in commercial quantities of the material concerned) from statistics, or from inspections of his own, or from his business sense.

4. The first, second, and third of the objects would be met by creating an office somewhat similar to that of the Agricultural Adviser to the Government of India, at some particularly favourable centre, with a body of very special experts about him, a reference library and suitable laboratories, and an editing staff for an Indian Chemical Journal. This would be the gathering place for regular chemists' conferences and (if it were at a fairly cool place such as Dehra Dun) a place at which teaching chemists might be encouraged to spend vacations. It is not necessary for these purposes that the chemists should form a single service from which short term loans of particular officers would be made to Local Governments and Departments. The Adviser will point out gaps and overlapping in local research work.

5. The sixth object is a most desirable one: but, in so far as it is unattainable with a service under other than central control, it can be met by the Adviser in chemistry detaching from time to time members of his own special expert staff for teaching work, with the assent of the Local Government concerned.

6. In regard to the seventh object, prospects are doubtless at their best when interchangeability is at its maximum. But it seems plain that a very great improvement in pay and prospects, and an opening up of the blind alley of which the Commission complains are possible without the complete supersession of the Chemical Service. For instance, a liberal time-scale would do much.

7. A dominating factor of the situation is this: that under the impending decentralisation of the reformed Provinces we shall have different Provinces, proceeding with different objects, at different rates of speed and with different scales of expenditure, and demanding a maximum of freedom to determine their own lines of development. This appears incompatible with the supply for short terms of superior scientific officers on loan from a central reservoir: though certain very special experts must be obtained from such a reservoir if they are not obtained direct from abroad. Under a constitution reformed as the Indian constitution seems likely to be reformed, a central Adviser or Chief Chemist cannot hold a position more authoritative than that which is sketched for him in paragraph 4 of this note.

8. Whatever other measures may be taken, the chemical staffs and chemical equipments of the Universities must be very greatly strengthened, in order to provide the teaching required under a system which contemplates recruiting the Chemical Services from young Indian graduates. I give a brief indication of the steps which have been under consideration in the Punjab University, before the question received additional prominence from the Report of the Industries Commission. It was proposed to establish a School of Chemistry, and—if the Colleges would agree to the measure—to pool resources, assigning one particular branch of chemistry to one particular College and one particular Laboratory. The idea was that the Medical College would undertake Physiological Chemistry, its natural sphere: that the Government College would undertake Organic Chemistry: that the Forman Christian College (which has just established an Industrial Chemistry side in its new laboratory) would deal with Inorganic and Technical Chemistry: while Physical Chemistry would be undertaken by a new University Professor to be engaged for the purpose and to work in a new University Laboratory to be built when funds could be arranged. This is not a matured scheme: but shows the lines on which plans were likely to be worked out, and the sort of help (viz. the cost of a University Professor and a very substantial contribution towards a University Laboratory) for which Government was likely to be asked.

9. In order to combine effectively research with teaching and to use staff and equipment in the manner most economical and most advantageous for both, a very considerable proportion of the Chemical staff ought to have its headquarters at the places where the Universities have theirs. This is clearer in the instance of the Punjab University than elsewhere: because, here, the location of a number of Colleges and a substantial proportion of the science students within the limits of what is virtually a University quarter, make it easy to concentrate the laboratories and the teaching of Chemistry at Lahore. But the same object could be attained, though less easily, in other Universities also, by establishing the University Department of Chemistry in a particular centre, and leaving it to attract by its superior advantages the students of Chemistry to that centre from outlying Colleges. By means of underground chambers kept at a suitable temperature (such as that now contemplated at Lyallpur) some climatic difficulties, it is understood, be neutralised.

10. A School of Chemistry, forming part of the University, and combining research with teaching, would enjoy some of that liberty of research which Messrs. Wildon and Speers postulate: at the same time that Government, the supplier of the major portion of the funds, would have a powerful voice in determining the direction of the work. With a staff substantially strengthened, we might even attain to something of that atmosphere of scientific interest which the Commission postulates, at the same time that we should escape from that isolation from other interests which is the bane of such an institution as Pusa.

11. What I would urge therefore is that Government should begin by asking the Punjab University to establish a really strong School of Chemistry, both for research and for teaching, with a special, but not an exclusive, attention to Technical and Industrial Chemistry: and that the functions of direction contemplated in the Commission's report be discharged by Chemists to be employed in that School, subject to reservation of the Local Government's power to enforce certain conditions of its grants and to the exercise of advisory powers on the lines of paragraph 4 of this note by a central Adviser. From the students of this School will come the young Indians who are postulated for a Chemical Service, but it should be one for employment in the Punjab, not for all India.

12. There is nothing unprecedented in the proposal that problems of research, and particularly of industrial research, should be handed over to the Chemical Staffs of Universities for investigation. It is a common practice of business firms in the United States of America. The only danger that suggests itself to me is that the School of Chemistry might find itself snowed under, by reason of the absence of any authority competent to determine when it had as much as it could reasonably undertake. This is one of the matters on which the central Adviser would have a part to play.

13. Under these proposals there will be no Chemical Service (though there will be a central Chemical Adviser with the Government of India and a strong School of Chemistry in the University) until the output of competent young graduates from the University School of Chemistry is sufficient to supply personnel for one; and continued control and guidance of the new recruits by the chemists of the School of Chemistry for a considerable time is evidently postulated. It is even unnecessary to determine at this stage whether there should at any time be such a service. The course of development might show that it would be better to leave a profession of consulting chemists to grow up while providing for immediate needs by extending the School of Chemistry and establishing scholarships in it for post-graduates. One of the advantages of the plan suggested is that it is an extension and improvement of something already existing and already growing: it commits Government to nothing more serious than an increased liberality for a particular purpose towards an existing Institution, and enables us to wait and see.

The proposals of the Commission may be summarised as follows:—

All officers to be recruited to fill chemical posts, and presumably, all officers employed in such capacities at present, are to be placed in one service. Similar procedure is adumbrated for other scientific occupations. The Director of the Service will second officers for employment in Technical or Educational posts under Local Governments for terms of about five years. Recommendations 1, 2 and 3 of paragraph 126, page 86, describe the relationship which would exist between an officer seconded for service under a Local Government and the head of his scientific service. Direction and inspection of research work would be continued by the head of the service and through him it would be compulsory to publish all results in the organ of the service. The rest of the scheme in so far as it is concerned with the organisation of Imperial Science Institutes, does not concern us directly, the great majority of officers will necessarily be working in technical or educational capacities under the Local Governments, and it is with respect to them that the scheme must be judged. The provision of Central Science Institutes may be effected without the imposition of an Imperial Service on the whole of India, from which the staff required will be drawn.

Arguments in favour of the scheme are advanced on the scores of administrative efficiency, the co-ordination of scientific effort, and, curiously enough, of educational advantage. In criticising the scheme, we have to bear in mind the requirements of the country—(1) for immediate development, and (2) ultimate progress. On the score of administrative efficiency (paragraph 120, a, b, c) it is emphasized that it has so far been impossible for Local Governments to maintain a sufficient staff and equipment in order to provide a specialist for the solution of every occurring problem; rather, the tendency has been to exalt one or two unfortunate and overworked individuals to the position of scientific oracles, with consequent inefficiency.

results. It is admitted that it will frequently prove convenient if Local Governments can requisition the services of the very special specialist whose usual habitat may be some central or special research institute, but this is very far from being a sufficient argument for making Local Governments dependent for all their scientific officers on an Imperial organisation. Moreover, the argument on the score of the financial inability of Local Governments to support the requisite scientific organisation is largely discounted in view of the recommendations for provincial financial autonomy contained in the Montagu-Chelmsford Report. The awakening of local interest in the potentialities of the application of scientific endeavour, together with the sense of responsibility going with the power of the purse, may be expected to effect more in the cause of local progress than the less partisan considerations of an Imperial Department.

The argument contained in (f), page 82, undoubtedly pertinent if the scientific requirements of Local Governments are to be satisfied by the recruitment of the "young and inexperienced" and would equally be necessary with recruits obtained "at as early an age as possible, preferably not exceeding 25 years" as recommended for the Imperial Chemical Service. If, however, as the Commission admits, recruitment for some time after the war will have to be of a special and therefore necessarily ad hoc nature, the likelihood of failures due to unsatisfactory development of a youthful officer is more remote. Moreover, the argument has reference mainly to the recruitment of the European officer, since, with recruitment in India it will be possible to institute such a system of apprenticeship or probation that there will be ample information available as to the suitability of a candidate for recruitment. The Imperial sink proposed is, moreover, only a remedy for unsatisfactory scientific development, the difficulty of dispensing with the services of an officer whose development is unsatisfactory for other reasons is common to all Government service.

The disadvantages which, in our opinion, are likely to result from the Imperial nature of the organisation proposed for the chemists of India, are the following —

- (1) The tendency will be for Imperial officers whose average period of deputation will be only five years, to have their interests not sufficiently identified with local needs. The man, for instance, who regards the subject of leather tanning dispassionately as an all-India problem, is not likely to do as much for a province as a man who knows that his success or failure is bound up in his efforts in the locality in which he is stationed.
- (2) The man with his eyes on chances of promotion through the length and breadth of India will not be likely to give the most patient research on problems of local interests.
- (3) The esprit de corps which it is claimed will arise in the proposed Chemical Service is likely to be an evil rather than a blessing. There is likely to be less harmonious co-operation among seconded members of various scientific services deputed, for instance, to an Agricultural Station, each with his own esprit de corps and his eye on promotion in his own service, than among officers recruited more directly for the institution in which they work. What is wanted, and what is unfortunately more difficult to encourage, is the esprit de corps of the local research or teaching community, all of which should work with a common ideal.

Our conclusions are, therefore, that as regards the administrative aspects of the proposed Chemical Service, immediate needs cannot be secured under service conditions, and that special recruiting should be resorted to as regards future needs, when the supply of suitable Indians will be more ample, the spurring up of a class of professional consultants and the expansion of the research activities of the Universities and other teaching institutions may altogether obviate the necessity of a Chemical Service.

We may consider the effect of the proposals on the science in its applied aspects. The rôle of a chemist in relation to industry may take the form of a routine control of the processes involved, in which case it is an obvious necessity that the chemist should be on the staff of the factory: it may merely concern the provision of pre-existing knowledge to the industrialist; or it may involve a research proper into new processes. In our opinion it is only in the second, purely consultative capacity, that a Government official could be successfully employed. It is obviously beyond the scope of Government to provide works for chemists. As regards research in any applied science where processes are patentable, a scheme by which a discovery by a Government official is regarded as the property of Government, and this, as the Commission points out, is the only workable arrangement, cannot but be unsatisfactory, firstly on account of lack of trust on the part of the employer, and secondly since the research worker would have no personal share in the fruits of his work. As far as our knowledge goes, an agreement for mutual partnership in the results of a patentable or secret process always exists between a research worker and the firm which employs him. In any case a regulation deterring a discoverer from patenting or withholding essential information regarding a process he may discover, is easily evaded.

As regards pure science, the recommendations of the Commission appear to us to tend in a dangerous manner to restrict the latitude which should be allowed to the worker. The result of the war in opening the eyes of the administrator to the benefits to be derived from the encouragement of scientific work may lead to disaster unless some percentage of the workers are spared from the efforts of the co-ordinator. We are of opinion that all scientific work, other than applied, where co-ordination of effort is obviously desirable, and in fact as in the case of Agriculture, at present exercised, should be completely free. The worker should be free to publish in whatever journal he prefers, since he is frequently the best judge of the most suitable place for attracting the greatest attention and consequent criticism to his results. Even the danger of overlapping may be very greatly exaggerated. Experience has shown that the antagonism of two workers or two schools of thought has been of the utmost benefit to the progress of the science in the fields where both were researching.

The proposals, in so far as they tend to the bureaucratisation of research, and a possible over-emphasis of the industrial aspects of science, will emasculate all individual effort.

The organisation of science should be on an essentially democratic basis. An organ of publication should be controlled by elected representatives of an all-India Society, together with officials, and subsidised by Government. Adequate scrutinisation of papers submitted for publication would be secured by the selection by the Editorial Committee of suitable referees. It is obviously impossible for one Chief Chemist, no matter how distinguished, to be able to direct, or report in an illuminating manner on all the varied work which would be submitted through him, if the Commission's proposals are carried into effect.

By far the most serious results may be anticipated on the scientific education of the country. It is gravely suggested that education would benefit from the seconding, for a rest cure of five years' duration, of jaded industrialists, who would thus be enabled to renew "in a well proportioned way their general knowledge of their special professional subjects." The aim of the educationalist should be to provide in all our Universities healthy schools of instruction and a real atmosphere of research. This will not be secured by a succession of seconded officers. A permanent policy must be maintained at each University: frequent changes in the instructional staff of a teaching institution all tend to lack of efficiency. The conditions of employment of professors at the Universities, or lecturers in the Provincial Colleges should be such that a man might look forward with satisfaction to the prospects of finishing the greater part of his life's work in the same surroundings.

The educational policy which will be pursued by Government, as is recognised by the Commission, will have greater effect in determining the future of the industries of the country than any other factor. The educational officer is regarded rather as a by-product of the Chemical Service, of which, however, if the employment of Indians is to become a reality, he must be the father and mother. By immediately strengthening and supplementing the educational institutions of the country, material will be provided at a rate adequate to keep pace with the industrial expansion of the country; the pioneer staff cannot be recruited under ordinary service conditions: for the material turned out a special service will not be necessary.

No. 704, dated Allahabad, the 11th April 1919.

From—The Hon'ble Mr. A. C. CHATTERJEE, I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of the United Provinces, Industries Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

I am directed to reply to your letter No. 589-D., dated the 7th December 1918, asking for the opinion of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor on the general proposals made in the Report of the Indian Industrial Commission. I am to embody below the conclusions that Sir Harcourt Butler has arrived at on the specific questions set forth in paragraph 9 of your letter.

2. With regard to the question whether provincial departments of Industries should be created or developed on the lines suggested by the Commission, I am to state that a department of Industries has now existed in this province for nearly ten years. The Industrial Commission has given in paragraph 306, page 189 of their Report, a sketch of the duties which a provincial department of Industries should perform. Of the various heads therein indicated practically all are already included within the duties of the provincial department of Industries in this province with the exception of:—

- (1) the collection and distribution of commercial and industrial intelligence, which is at present largely performed by the Government of India's own agency;
- (2) the work of passing Government indents and of purchasing and inspecting certain classes of Government stores;
—this has to a certain extent been done by the Director of Industries during the period of the war as a part of his functions as Controller of Clothing and Controller of Munitions—
- (3) the control of staff employed for the local administration of the Electricity Act;
—this duty is at present performed by the Chief Engineer to Government in the Buildings and Roads Branch—
- (4) the furnishing of advice to Government with regard to the Mines Act.

The Director of Industries has not so far been concerned very much with the administration of the Mines Act, inasmuch as owing to the absence of any large mineral deposits in this province the work has not been sufficiently important or specialised and the Act is at present administered through the Revenue authorities.

I am further to state that a Board of Industries was also constituted in this province about five years ago and was reorganised a year ago. A copy of the resolution, dated 14th May 1918, giving the constitution and duties of the Board, is enclosed herewith for the information of the Government of India. It will be found that the composition and strength of the Board as well as its powers are to a large extent identical with the recommendations made by the Industrial Commission.

But Sir Harcourt Butler is impressed with the necessity for progress and development and he thinks that the recommendations of the Commission on this point are generally helpful and sound. He is already considering how to expand the department.

3. In this connection, I am to state that His Honour is not disposed to agree at present with the suggestion made by the Commission that the provincial department of Industries should have control of the work that is now performed by the Agricultural Engineer. The agricultural engineering branch is the most popular and at present one of the most useful of the various activities of the Agricultural department. Sir Harcourt Butler would prefer to leave things as they are until further experience has been accumulated. It is largely a question of men. If there was a Mr. Chatterton in this province, His Honour would gladly follow the policy adopted by the Madras Government.

4. His Honour is of the opinion that it is not desirable to give the Director of Industries the position of a Secretary to the Local Government for commercial and industrial subjects. He is convinced that he should have direct access to Government. But the duties of a Secretary must interfere with the tours of the Director of Industries and it is important that the Director should be a touring officer with a first-hand knowledge of the industrial and commercial needs and conditions of the province. The whole question has been discussed many times in connection with the position of the Director of Public Instruction. Sir Harcourt Butler's experience leads him to think that the head of the department's first duty should be to press the claims of his department and that the Secretary to Government should be the mouthpiece of Government in Council.

5. The Government of India ask whether the responsibilities of the provincial department of Industries should include the local purchase of Government stores, subject to such degree of centralization as may be decided upon after consideration of the report of a special committee. Sir Harcourt Butler is in complete sympathy with the object aimed at, viz., a reduction in purchases from England and the encouragement of Indian industries. So far as purchases from England are concerned, His Honour is willing to accept the suggestions made in the Industrial Commission's Report, viz., that all indents on the Stores Department of the India Office should be checked first of all by the provincial department of Industries and again by the Imperial department. His Honour hopes that, if adequate and intelligent staff is appointed, this procedure will not cause any great delay and he agrees with the Government of India that it will secure considerable advantages by amalgamating indents and purchase in bulk. With regard, however, to the definite proposals made by the Commission for purchase in India in cases where the provincial Director of Industries is not able to arrange for purchase and inspection in his own province, I am to say that His Honour apprehends that the Commission's proposals if adopted may lead to delays and friction and will be against the policy of decentralization which is to be the keynote of administration in the future. It is understood, however, that the Commission did not wish to put forward any definite scheme for the allotment of functions between Imperial and provincial agencies. It seems best that the provinces should be left to determine the organization most suitable for themselves with regard to purchase in India. A central organization is needed to check all indents for the purchase of stores outside India. So far as purchase in India is concerned His Honour's view is that the functions of the central organization should be purely advisory. Subject to these comments His Honour agrees that the provincial department of Industries should have charge and control of the purchase in India of Government stores. He agrees also that a special committee of experts should be called to advise with regard to the degree of centralization that is necessary.

6. The Government of India further enquire whether the provincial department of Industries should be entrusted with the duty of the collection of local commercial and industrial intelligence. I am to say that His Honour is in agreement with these suggestions. A special staff will of course be necessary for the purpose.

7. With regard to question (c), viz., the methods of recruitment and employment of the officers of the proposed scientific and industrial services, I am to state that His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor has perused with some misgiving the actual recommendations made by the Industrial Commission. In paragraph 121, page 82 of the Report, it is stated that "the whole of the chemists would be under the control, for scientific purposes, of a senior officer, who might appropriately be called Chief Chemist to the Government of India. Under him directly will be the staff of the headquarters laboratory, including the physical chemist and the specialists not assigned to provincial branches. The other three groups (agricultural, organic and mineral chemists) would be under the supervision of three Deputy Chief Chemists. Junior members of any of the three groups would be lent to Local Governments and the principal Government departments for terms normally limited to five years. They would carry on the routine duties required, in some cases including teaching, and would undertake certain forms of research with the approval of the head of their service." In paragraph 126 it is further laid down that "the local authority should not sanction a programme of research work without consulting the head of the appropriate scientific service. This will prevent unnecessary overlapping or waste of time in taking up problems that are known to the central authority from wider experience to be infructuous."

8. This raises a very large question on which it is difficult to give an opinion until it is known how far the decentralisation proposals of the Reforms Scheme will go. It all depends in His Honour's experience on individuals and attitude. Sir Harcourt Butler has considerable experience of the Government of India, and does not wish to appear to be in any way in opposition to it. The great difficulty in practice is the congestion and delay which occur in the Government of India. The area which they have to supervise is too vast for any centralised machine. The local differences are also very marked between provinces. For many years His Honour has heard decentralisation preached and has seen centralization grow stronger. It seems to His Honour that the best results will be attained by close and constant contact between imperial and local departments. Both in Burma and in the United Provinces His Honour has received great assistance from the Government of India experts as advisory authorities. They frequently have a wider experience and outlook on which to base advice. But they cannot appreciate local conditions as local men, who have lived their lives among the people of a province, can do. It seems to be a case for compromise. As regards the Chemical services His Honour recognises that if the men are recruited as part of an organised provincial service or if they are casually recruited on terms special to themselves the prospects will not be sufficiently attractive to ensure the recruitment of the right type of men at a reasonable cost. Sir Harcourt Butler therefore concurs with the suggestion made in paragraph 5 of your letter that the scientific services may be recruited on an all-India basis, but the men should be attached to provincial Governments and should ordinarily be retained by them for the whole of their service as in the case of the Agricultural, Forests and other Imperial services. It is only in exceptional cases that there should be a transfer from one provincial Government to another or to the central Government. Moreover all men belonging to the scientific departments should be under the complete control of the provincial department and of the provincial Government. The functions of the central head of the service who will be attached to the Government of India, in relation to the officers serving under Local Governments, should be purely advisory. The Local Government should be at liberty to ask for advice with regard to the programmes of administration, demonstration or research but should not be compelled to accept the advice. And in all cases the principle of personal conferences between the imperial and provincial heads of departments should be encouraged.

9. The Commission recommend in paragraph 125 of their Report that suitable officers from the scientific services should be seconded to act as professors for, say, five years in the colleges under Government or University control. It is true that a research officer is all the better for a certain amount of educational experience and that if a scientific man is appointed to an educational post and displays special administrative ability, he ought to have the prospect of rising to high administrative appointment. His Honour is, however, opposed to the system advocated by the Commission. He considers that the qualifications needed in a professor are usually very different from those needed for research and applied science. A teacher should have a vocation. Moreover, constant transfers would be injurious. There are high administrative appointments in the Education Department itself. Special cases may arise where transfers between scientific services and the educational service may be desirable, but they should be the exception rather than the rule.

10. With regard to an Imperial Industrial service, Sir Harcourt Butler feels very doubtful whether one Imperial service can properly be organised in view of the great variety of duties that would be demanded of its members. The Commission state that the candidates shall be men possessing the qualifications of mechanical engineers. His Honour hardly thinks that the qualifications of a mechanical engineer will be a sufficient grounding for, say, the duties connected with the collection and dissemination of commercial and industrial intelligence. After all the number of such appointments will not be very large, at least at the beginning, and it is open to question whether the object aimed at, viz., attracting young men to this type of career, cannot best be attained by a time-scale of pay according to the nature of the duties. In this connection, I am to quote the opinion of the Upper India Chamber of Commerce, viz., there should be a provincial staff of industrial and scientific officers and that such staff should be supplemented by the employment of technical experts or industrial advisers to report and advise on matters of special interest and importance. "Such appointments will be of a temporary character and on such terms as would attract the best advice available. The committee of the Chamber attach the very highest value to the employment of expert advisers and they see no reason to apprehend that the recruitment of specialists would give rise to feelings of discontent among members of the permanent staff. They also believe that it will prove more economical to employ experts with the highest qualifications for particular work than to create a large number of appointments to a regular service. The needs of industrialists can only be met by specialists and specialists cannot be obtained by the recruitment into an organised Government service of partly educated students on low salaries with the prospect of eventual promotion to higher appointments." His Honour endorses these views. He would therefore deprecate the organisation of an Imperial Industrial service.

11. The Government of India finally ask what generally should be the relations between the Imperial and Provincial departments of Industries. The recommendations made by the Industrial Commission with regard to the functions of an Imperial department of Industries are set forth in paragraph 322 of their Report. In paragraph 356 the Commission have given instances of experimental factories which could be more appropriately started by Imperial agency and they have stated that in cases where the raw products dealt with are the property of a department like the Forest department it would be necessary to retain it under Imperial control. His Honour understands that the Government of India are ready to accept the view that provincial Governments should have the power to undertake industrial research and enterprise or to encourage the same without previous reference to the Government of India; also that provincial Governments should have an entirely free hand in the matter, except in cases where other provinces are likely to be seriously and adversely affected. Where for instance all the raw material for a particular kind of industry is to be found in one province and is limited in quantity the Government of India would have a voice in the inception of any industrial undertaking which will take up all or practically all the raw material available. There is no doubt that in actual practice such cases will be very rare. It is also understood that the Local Government will in all such matters take such action as commends itself to it without being compelled to approach the Government of India for previous sanction. The Government of India will in due course be kept informed of the schemes the Local Government takes up while the constant consultation which will take place between Imperial and provincial experts will remove the risk of a sudden interference by the Government of India. It is further understood that the Government of India will reserve to themselves the right to undertake and assist research and enterprise of their own accord, specially in cases concerning the safety of India and where the Government of India apprehend that the Local Government will not be able to devote sufficient funds for the purpose. As an instance may be mentioned the manufacture of lethal munitions. On the other hand the Government of India may also develop an industry like wood distillation, although a Local Government will not be debarred from starting an enterprise in wood distillation on a small scale if it chooses to do so. I am to state that His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor is willing to accept the foregoing definition of the relation between the Imperial and provincial departments of Industries. In short he agrees to the establishment of an Imperial department of Industries if its functions in relation to provincial Governments are advisory, and if it is likely to prove helpful. The Local Government will be always glad to have technical and expert advice from officers at the headquarters of the Government of India, but if the creation of an Imperial department means only lengthy correspondence instead of frequent personal discussion His Honour would not welcome the creation of such a department.

12. I am to say that the Government of India have not asked for the opinion of the Local Government with regard to the constitution of an Indian Industries Board as outlined in paragraphs 322 et seq. of the Report His Honour is not expressing any views with regard to this particular matter.

13. I am to enclose for the information of the Government of India copies of letters received from the Upper India Chamber of Commerce, the United Provinces Chamber of Commerce and also a copy of the proceedings of the United Provinces Legislative Council relating to a resolution that was moved there on the subject matter of this letter.

14. In conclusion I am to say that the root of the matter is the creation of a spirit of adjustment and personal consultation. It is impossible to have life in India unless the provinces are left to develop, subject to general control, on their own lines, which are understood by the people and which create a feeling of provincial patriotism. On a question of administrative system every doubtful point should be given in favour of the principle of decentralization, because India is far too vast for any one Government really to dictate or to exercise more than a general control. His Honour anticipates little practical difficulty if every Local Government is left to settle its practical problems with the Government of India instead of trying to lay down something that may apply to India as a whole.

Nº. 994-XVIII, dated Naini Tal, the 14th May 1918.

Resolution—By the Government of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, Industries Department,

Read—Resolution No. 1354-XVIII—415, dated the 29th August 1914, on the subject of technical education in the United Provinces.

OBSERVATIONS.—The constitution of the Board of Industries, which was established by Sir James Meston in 1914 in a view to co-ordinating industrial work and education in the province, has been for some time under the consideration of the Lieutenant-Governor. The Board has performed a very useful function and has furnished the Government with valuable help and advice, and His Honour wishes to take this opportunity of expressing his appreciation of its work. The experience gained during the last four years has, however, indicated that the constitution of the Board admits of improvement. Owing to the large number of members it is difficult to arrange as frequent meetings of the Board as are necessary in these days for the urgent disposal of matters connected with the organization of all the industrial resources of the province. Also the same Board deals with both industries proper and industrial and technical education. It is evident that members who are interested in industrial education are not always competent to give advice or to take action in matters connected with the organization of industries. It is also desirable that the Board should have a greater power of initiative and more control over detailed administrative work than is now possible with its large membership.

2. His Honour has therefore decided to reconstitute the Board by reducing its membership to fourteen and limiting the tenure of office of each member to two years. The Board will be divided into two sections, one of which will deal with industries and the other with technical and industrial education. Each of these sections will have a chairman and meet separately, but meetings of the full Board should be convened whenever it is found necessary to do so. The Director of Industries will be Secretary to both sections and executive agent to the Board, and he will arrange to hold meetings as frequently as possible.

3. As regards the education section, the practice hitherto has been to place before the advisory committees of the technical and industrial schools all matters relating to those schools, and then to forward their recommendations to Government through the Director of Industries and the Director of Public Instruction. This procedure has not worked satisfactorily and has often resulted in delays. In future, proposals and recommendations of the advisory committees should be sent to the education section of the Board, of which the Director of Public Instruction will be chairman and it will, after due consideration, forward them with the Board's views direct to Government.

4. The Committee of Management of the Thomason College, Rurki, the reconstitution of which is also at present under the consideration of Government, will no longer be a sub-committee of the Board of Industries.

5. Sir Harcourt Butler trusts that the revised constitution of the Board of Industries will enhance its utility and efficiency and will at the same time ensure a more expeditious disposal of business. The following gentlemen have been appointed members of the new Board:—

President.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. R. C. Hailey, C.I.E., I.C.S., Director of Land Records and Agriculture.

Industries section.

1. The Hon'ble Mr. H. R. C. Hailey, C.I.E., I.C.S., Director of Land Records and Agriculture (Chairman).

5. The Hon'ble Mr. C. Y. Orintamani, of Allahabad.
6. Rai Krishnaji, Honorary Magistrate, Benares.

Mr. C. R. O'Malley, Director of Industries (Secretary).

ORDER.—Ordered that copies of this resolution be forwarded to all heads of Departments, including the Director of Industries, and Principal, Thomason College, Rurki, Commissioners of Divisions, District Officers, Secretaries to this Government in the Public Works Department, Buildings and Roads and Irrigation Branches, and the Members of the Board of Industries, for information.

Ordered also that this resolution be published in the United Provinces Government Gazette for general information.

Copy of a letter, dated 26th February 1919, from the Secretary, Upper India Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, to the Secretary to Government, United Provinces, Industries Department, Allahabad.

I am directed to refer to your letter No. 174-XVIII-624 of the 23rd January and to the copy, forwarded thereunder, of letter No. 589-D. of the 7th December 1918, from the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry, on the subject of the proposals made in the Report of the Indian Industrial Commission for the establishment of an Imperial and Provincial Department of Industries.

My committee desire in the present communication to express their views on the points dealt with in the Government of India's letter. Their general views on the report of the Industrial Commission will be the subject of a subsequent letter.

As a preliminary to the present expression of the views on the points under reference my committee desire to quote in detail the recommendations bearing on these points made by the Chamber before the Industrial Commission.

Referring to "Technical Aid to Industries" my committee said:—

"In considering the broad question of Government technical aid to industries the committee note a reference to Government experts; and in this connection they feel that any scheme of assistance based on the importation by Government of an expert must, to be successful, be based on the obtaining by Government of thoroughly practical exponents of the industry on which they are supposed to advise. Mere theoretical knowledge obtained in a laboratory is worse than useless. What is wanted is thorough practical experience under varying conditions, and adaptability to circumstances; failing this the expert can merely serve to experiment and theorise at the expense of the business to which he is attached to assist.

At the present time a feeling prevails that some of the so-called Government experts who have been employed in the past do not seem to have inspired confidence or obtained credence among industrialists."

On the subjects of General Official Administration and of Organisation my committee advised as follows:—

"The functions of the Board of Industries, in whatever province established, should be purely advisory.

A Board of Industries should be constituted mainly of business men and of the heads of technical departments of Government, and it is in the committee's opinion absolutely essential that the President should be a senior business man.

In those Provinces we already have a Director of Industries who is a business man and the work which he has done during his tenure of office absolutely justifies the appointment of a business man as Director of Industries.

The Director of Industries should be a member of and the Executive Agent to the Board of Industries. The Board of Industries should be regarded as the supreme provincial authority on industrial matters and should, through its Executive Agent, have direct access to the head of the Local Government. This would necessitate the opinion of the Director of Industries being equivalent to that of a Secretary to Government.

There should be established an Imperial Department of Industries, separate and entirely distinct from the Department of Commerce. The functions of such a Department of Industries should be, in the main, to correlate the work of the Provincial Boards of Industries and to deal with matters of Imperial, as distinct from provincial importance, e.g., transport.

The committee advocate the establishment of provincial laboratories to deal with local provincial questions, and of a Central Research Institution to co-ordinate the working of the provincial laboratories and to check their work."

The views which my committee now desire to submit are, save in one particular, namely, the functions of provincial Boards of Industries, consistent with the recommendations previously made.

Of the three basic propositions stated in paragraph 1 of the Government of India's letter my committee agree in their approval of the first and second. They approve also of the first portion of the third proposition but they are unable to agree that the staff necessary for the provincial and Imperial departments of Industries can be best obtained and most advantageously employed by the creation of organised services.

They endorse the opinion that whatever functions may be deputed to provincial Governments the Government of India will, in certain directions, not be able to divest themselves of responsibility and that certain industries, as indicated in paragraph 2 of the Government of India's letter, will always be matters of Imperial concern.

They desire, however, to emphasise the importance of the principle which has been recognised by Government that the actual development of industries must in the main be carried out by the local authorities, and generally they approve of the recommendations made in respect of provincial departments. In place of the suggested Imperial Industrial service a modified staff maintained at the Central Research Institution would provide the equipment necessary for the purpose of correlating the work of the provincial departments, and my committee consider that greater efficiency will be obtained by concentrating on the establishment of these provincial departments and that by leaving them to exploit their individual provinces a spirit of healthy rivalry will be engendered.

Provincial Department of Industries.—The determination of both administrative and technical staffs should rest entirely with the Local Governments, under the advice of the local Boards of Industries. The retention of scientific or industrial educational staffs for technical colleges and schools must depend on whether such educational institutions are to remain under the Department of Public Instruction, or to pass over to the department of Industries.

It will be necessary, in the opinion of my committee, to establish provincial staffs of Industrial and Scientific officers such as Industrial Engineers, Inspectors of Factories, Electric Inspectors, Boiler Inspectors and Technological Chemists for provincial laboratories. My committee would, however, urge that the number of permanent appointments should be restricted to the actual needs of each province and they would emphasise the importance of interchange by provinces or members of their industrial staffs, both administrative and technical, preferably by deputation.

Permanent provincial staffs would be supplemented by the employment of technical experts or Industrial advisers to report and advise on matters of special interest and importance. Such appointments would be of a temporary character and on such terms as would attract the best advice available. My committee attach the very highest value to the employment of expert advisers and they see no reason to apprehend that the recruitment of specialists would give rise to feelings of discontent among members of the permanent staff. They also believe that it would prove more economical to employ experts with the highest qualifications for particular work than to create a large number of appointments to a regular service. The needs of industrialists can only be met by specialists, and specialists cannot be obtained by the recruitment into an organised Government service of partly educated students on low salaries with the prospects of eventual promotion to higher appointments. The formation of Technological Institutes, Polytechnics and Research laboratories will give the earnest student the full opportunity of qualifying himself as a specialist and until he is so equipped, trained experts must be obtained on terms which will be sufficiently attractive.

My committee do not approve of the proposal to transfer Agricultural Engineering to the control of the Director of Industries as they feel that the majority of small power plants to be transferred would be needed in agricultural areas for agricultural purposes and that technical advice on the erection and running of such plants would best be afforded by the Agricultural Department.

As regards the creation of an Imperial Chemical Service my committee see even less justification for this than for an Imperial Industrial Service. Their recommendations on this point have already been quoted. They would like to see the establishment of provincial laboratories to deal with local provincial questions and of a Central Research Institution to co-ordinate the working of provincial laboratories and to check their work.

My committee are fully agreed as to the necessity for the creation of an agency for securing a full and free exchange of information and a correlation of results between the various provincial departments of Industries and provincial laboratories. This agency can be provided without an Imperial service whether of Industry or of Chemistry.

The recommendation made in paragraph 7 of the Government of India's letter to establish a central organisation in India for the purchase of Government stores is warmly endorsed and my committee desire to say that they attach great weight to this proposal as an extremely valuable means of developing the industries of the country. They also approve entirely of the proposal made for decentralisation by the establishment of provincial agencies for the purchase of stores and they emphasise the necessity for the appointment of an expert committee to examine the details of this proposal.

The establishment of provincial agencies for commercial and industrial intelligence is essential to the prompt dissemination to the public of reliable information collected by experts.

An Imperial Industrial Service.—In making the recommendation in their evidence before the Industrial Commission that there should be an Imperial department of Industries my committee did not contemplate the erection of the huge and complicated structure which is described in Chapter XXII of the Industrial Commission's report. They approve of the creation of an Imperial department of Industries in charge of a Member with a seat on the Viceroy's Executive Council, but they cannot agree that it is necessary to establish a Board of three additional members each with separate charges and each equipped with a complete secretarial and clerical staff. What my committee did contemplate was a department to correlate the work of the provincial departments of Industries and to deal with matters of Imperial, as distinct from provincial, importance.

In conclusion, the views of my committee on the proposals as summarised in paragraph 9 of the Government of India's letter, are:—

- (a) that provincial departments of Industries should be created or developed on the lines suggested by the Commission, subject to the proviso that the provincial Board of Industries, or provincial Governments shall determine the staff;
- (b) that the responsibilities of provincial departments of Industries should include—
  - (1) the local purchase of Government stores, subject to such degree of centralisation as may be decided on after consideration of the report of a special committee, and
  - (2) the collection and prompt publication of local commercial and industrial intelligence;
- c) that there is no justification for the establishment of all-India services, Industrial or Chemical, or for a common system of recruitment;
- Provincial departments of Industries should have absolute discretion to recruit their staffs, administrative and technical, on special terms, and to engage temporarily experts for the peculiar industrial necessities of the province;
- d) that there should be machinery for the full exchange of information and the correlation of results by provincial departments of Industries to prevent overlapping of research or waste of effort or information; and
- e) that generally the relation between the Imperial and provincial departments should be as set forth in the committee's statement submitted to the Industrial Commission, i.e., that the functions of the Imperial department of Industries should be, in the main, to correlate the work of the provincial Boards of Industries and to deal with matters of Imperial, as distinct from provincial, importance.

Copy of a letter from the Secretary, United Provinces Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, to the Secretary to Government, United Provinces, Industries Department, Allahabad, No. 6806, dated the 3rd March 1919.

With reference to your letter No. 174-XVIII-624, dated the 23rd January 1919, forwarding copy of the Government of India's letter No. 589-D., dated the 11th November 1918, on the subject of the proposed establishment of an Imperial and Provincial Departments of Industries for the views of the Chamber I am directed to say as under:—

My committee are in hearty accord with the Industrial Commission on the principle that in future Government must play an active part in the industrial development of the country, but are strongly opposed to the creation of an Imperial Department of Industries in which is proposed to be centralised the control and direction of the advocated policy. In this country every province has industrial problems which are peculiar to itself and to handle and solve which the Local Governments are naturally in a better position than the Central Government. In their letter the Government of India express themselves in agreement with the proposition that "for obvious reasons the actual execution of the policy must mainly be effected by authorities under the control of the Local Governments." That being so, it stands to reason that these Local Governments on whom will devolve the bulk of the work of industrial development must be left reasonable freedom of action and initiative and not be hampered by the necessity of constant reference to, and direction from, the Central authority. It is somewhat surprising that the Commission contemplating all the time the "utmost possible decentralisation"—vide paragraph 214, page 140 of their report—should make recommendations which run in a quite contrary direction. It is unnecessary here to discant on the evils of over-centralisation in the Government of this country which has so often been described as top-heavy. The Secretary of State and the Viceroy in their report on Constitutional Reforms fully recognise these evils and base their proposals on a policy of decentralisation. The recommendations of the Industrial Commission have, as already pointed out, quite the opposite tendency.

One of the reasons why the Commission would leave the control and direction in the hands of the Central authority is their anxiety to "secure the maintenance of a uniform industrial policy." Now the policy enunciated by the Commission is that of active participation of the State in the country's industrial development. The Government of India accept this basic principle. The actual work of development is in any case to rest with the Local Governments. The particular directions this development would take would vary with the varying needs and possibilities of the different provinces. What then is exactly meant by the "uniformity of policy" is not clearly understood; unless, of course, it be apprehended that without the strict supervision and tutelage of the Central authority the Local Governments would lapse into inactivity or be otherwise incapable of carrying on a vigorous industrial campaign. There appear to be no grounds for that apprehension. Past experience at any rate tells quite a different story. It was only a few years back that the useful activities of the Madras Department of Industries were summarily put an end to by the higher authorities. In these provinces the Local Government's proposals for a technological institute met with a similar fate. Now with the changed policy of the supreme Government matters will, no doubt, be different, but there are no reasons to suppose that the Local Governments will in any way be less anxious than the Government of India to make up for past indifference and inaction. Nor is there any justification for doubting the former's capacity to do so.

As regards the financial resources of the Provincial Governments there will be vastly improved under the new system of finance, which, it may safely be assumed, will shortly be introduced. It is the Government of India who will then look to the provinces for the making up of its own revenue deficit. That leaves no force in the argument that the Provincial Governments will lack the requisite financial resources.

Now remains the question of inter-provincial problems, and military and other requirements of an Imperial nature. These, my committee agree, can rest only with an Imperial agency, but they submit that the existing Department of Commerce and Industry should be quite sufficient to deal with these questions.

My committee are, therefore, strongly of opinion that the idea of a new Imperial Department of Industries should be altogether abandoned and that industrial development should be entirely a provincial concern, for which the Local Governments, in their respective Departments of Industries, should be wholly responsible and in respect of which they should enjoy the greatest possible freedom of action and initiative. It is impossible to say in what shape the Reform Scheme will emerge from the Commission.

under the new régime the Local Governments would be more popular than the Central Government. That is the reason why my committee would have industrial development as a provincial subject because of all matters in the administration of which the people of the land should be given the greatest voice, that of the people stands foremost.

My committee are also strongly opposed to the creation of the various Imperial India services recommended. They fully associate themselves with the view that importation being necessary only recognised experts and specialists should be engaged on special terms and short contracts and on the express condition that the training of our own young men would form an important part of their work here. My committee repeat that the matter should be left entirely in the hands of the Provincial Governments. If the latter find the establishment of regular Industrial or Scientific services indispensable at any later stage let them organise the same. These will then be provincial and not Imperial services and under the control of the Government under which they will be serving. We have had enough of the anomaly of these Imperial services. Besides, the proposed services will be prohibitively expensive. My committee are, therefore, opposed to their creation on both administrative and financial grounds.

Extract from Proceedings of the Legislative Council for the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Government of India Act, 1915, dated Allahabad, the 24th January 1919.

RÉSOLUTION.

The Hon'ble Mr. CHINTAMANI moved the following resolution:—

"That this Council requests His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to represent to the Governor-General in Council, its opinion that the development of industries should be a provincial subject with full liberty of action to Local Governments; that Government of India officers should only stand in the relation of advisors to Local Governments, which may freely consult them; and that the recommendations of the Indian Industrial Commission that an additional member for Industries should be appointed in the Governor-General's Executive Council, that an Indian Industries Board should be constituted, and that Imperial Indian Chemical, Industrial and other services should be organized, should not be accepted."

He said:—

"I take it that it is unnecessary for me to detain the Council with any statement of the supreme importance of the Industrial problem to India. The latest pronouncement upon the subject, leaving aside the report of the Indian Industries Commission itself, is to be found in several eloquent passages in the Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms that was recently published over the signatures of the Secretary of State and the Viceroy. There Mr. Montagu and Lord Chelmsford dwell at length upon the political aspects of the economic question, and in one passage they remarked:—'But on all grounds a forward policy in industrial development is urgently called for, not merely to give India economic stability; but in order to satisfy the aspirations of her people, who desire to see her stand before the world as a well-poised, up-to-date country; in order to provide an outlet for the energies of her young men, who are otherwise drawn exclusively to Government service or a few over-locked professions; in order that money now lying unproductive may be applied to the benefit of the whole community; and in order that the speculative and literary tendencies of Indian thought may be bent to practical ends and the people may be better qualified to shoulder the responsibilities which the new constitution will lay upon them.' They were referred to the Industrial Commission and did not wish to anticipate the Commission's proposals, but they said:—'We may say that there are many questions of importance and difficulty related to each other to form the matter for a new administrative unit. The recommendations of the Industrial Commission themselves are highly important and far-reaching in character. The Commission definitely abandoned the idea that there could be any development of Indian industries worth the name except with a very active industrial policy by Government to back up private efforts. There are various circumstances that have combined to produce a situation in which the people unassisted by the Government do not find themselves able to go forward very quickly. Even in the materially advanced West, the theory that at one time found favour with a certain school of thinkers that the less the State did for industrial development the better, has been cast to the winds even by the best orthodox doctrinaires. It may be taken to be common ground that State activity for industrial development is essential, not merely unobjectionable and desirable, but very necessary, secondly, that there are circumstances in this country which render it doubly necessary that the State should pursue an active industrial policy. If this be so, the question arises: what is the administrative machinery? What is the system that will be best adapted to this new policy that has been followed? The Industrial Commission bestowed a great deal of attention upon this question. So much indeed, that one of the members, who wrote a dissenting minute, the Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, rather complained in that minute that too much importance was given to the question of administrative machinery. I desire, here, to pay my humble tribute to the Commission for the large number of recommendations of a substantive character which prove in various respects the necessity for the development of the existing policy or the inauguration of a new policy. But when I come to recommendations, which deal with this question of administrative machinery, I must take leave to part company with them. The Commission seemed to be obsessed with the idea that if any movement forward is to be at all possible, direction should be centered in the Government of India. The Commission proposed various important duties to be performed by provincial Governments and provincial departments of industries acting under provincial Governments; but ultimately as they said of old, 'that all roads lead to Rome,' they seemed to think that nothing effective and nothing useful could be done unless the activity of every province led by some means to Delhi and Simla. I may be accused, Sir, perhaps, of irreverence, but such little knowledge of the methods and the results of the activities of Simla and Delhi as I can gather as a mere non-official looking at the temple from the outside, does not encourage me to believe that if this series of recommendations of the Commission are to be given effect to, the result will be such as we can congratulate ourselves upon. Confining ourselves for the present to these provinces, and to the proposals made by the Local Government from time to time with regard to industrial development, is it not a fact that our experience is altogether discouraging to the idea that any good can come from this constant reference to Simla and Delhi? Over eleven years ago one of Your Honour's predecessors held a conference at Naini Tal which arrived at very important conclusions, the foremost of which was the establishment of a Technological Institute at Cawnpore. Your Honour and the present Secretary to Government in the Industries department were both intimately associated with the Conference in 1907, and it is therefore superfluous for me to say anything by way of commendation of that particular recommendation of the Conference. But now that Your Honour has come back to these provinces after this distance of time in an exalted capacity, I think you have found that far as the most material of the recommendations of the Conference is concerned, you are where you were, and that the policy of the Government can best be illustrated by the couplet—'To promise, pause, postpone, and end by letting things alone.' If the Local Government had the financial resources placed at its disposal and also a reasonable amount of discretion and liberty of action given to it, I feel certain that the industrial activity of this Government in these eleven years would have been much more beneficial to the people of this province than what happens to be. Some time ago, Your Honour made a speech in the Mayo Hall in which you gave your own view of the Government of India, but possibly now that you happen to be at the head of the Government, although you speak from a knowledge derived from the interior of the Government of India itself, there may be a disposition to discount that opinion. But when an uncompromising opinion is expressed of the administrative system and administrative machinery, it is not to be taken as a mere statement of fact.

machinery thereof by the Viceroy himself and the Secretary of State, that opinion can not be disposed of in the same manner. Now what do we find in the Montagu-Chelmsford Report with regard to the Government of India as it is at present? They say in paragraph 266:—

‘We think we have reason for saying that in some respects the machinery is no longer equal to the needs of the time. The normal work of the departments is heavy. The collective responsibility of the Government is weighty, especially in time of war. There is little time or energy left for those activities of a political nature which the new situation in the country demands. A legislative session of the Government of India imposes a serious strain upon the departments, and especially on the members in charge of them. They have not merely to carry on their heavy task of administration and to share in the discussion and decision of grave matters of policy, but they have to prepare themselves to meet a growing volume of criticism at meetings of the Legislative Council; and when, as has now happened, they are called upon in addition to deal with urgent and complex questions of constitutional reform, the burden becomes one that it is unreasonable to impose on so small and highly-worked a body of men.’

Later on they said:—‘We find the necessity for reforms admitted, principles agreed upon, and decision taken, and then long delays in giving effect to them. Difficulties are realized, enquiries are started, commissions report, and then there is a pause.’ ‘How does it happen that announcements are made that arouse expectations only to defeat them? We know that it is not from any intention of deluding the public. We suggest that it is because the wheels move too slowly for the times; the need for change is realized, but because an examination of details would take too long, promises are made in general terms, which on examination it becomes necessary so to qualify with reservations as to disappoint anticipations and even to lead to charges of breach of faith. We suspect that a root cause of some political discontents lies in such delays.’ ‘But the Government of India are in the worst case. In all important matters they have to consult Local Governments, and then to secure the approval of the Secretary of State.’ ‘References to the India Office are a second fruitful cause of delay.’ ‘A further cause contributing to delay is that the departments at headquarters are now overworked.’

“Now there are two points that emerge from this. In the first place, that, owing to its very structure, delays are inevitable in the Government of India. Is that structure going to be materially modified, so that we may hope that in future that will not happen which has happened in the past? It may be said that the Industrial Commission recommended the appointment of a separate Member for Industries with its own Secretariat and all the paraphernalia incidental to it, and that therefore it may be reasonable to expect that there will not be the same cause for complaint for delays in future as there has been in the past. Sir, the Department of Commerce and Industry was established at the end of 1904; fourteen years have elapsed since then. Subsequently another department with a member in charge has been added to the same Government. Does experience encourage the belief that at Simla or Delhi or, mentioning a smaller thing, even in the provinces where the Secretariat establishments have been largely increased, an addition to the number of officers necessarily means a quickening of work? I do not think the Secretaries to the Government themselves will plead guilty to the charge, that because they are more in number now than they were formerly therefore they are in a position to dispose of work more quickly than before. The necessity of references to the India Office and the respective proposals made with regard to the future of Local Governments and the Government of India raise another question. What the fate of this reform scheme will be we do not know now. But assuming for the sake of argument that, whatever modifications are made, some reforms will be carried through both Houses of Parliament this year, and that there will be some alteration, some change, in the constitution of the Local Governments as well as in the Government of India, we shall still be left with this, that the Government of India will be less popular and more bureaucratic than the Local Government will be. The Local Governments will have much greater need of acting in response to public opinion than the Government of India will have. If the subject of the development of industries is one in which the people are keenly interested, if it is a subject on the right solution of which the future of the country will depend to a material extent, does it stand to reason that its control should rest with Government which will be less responsible to public opinion than the Local Governments will be? I think not. This Legislative Council already expressed its opinion on this point in the month of August. It will be remembered that at the special meeting held to consider the Reform Scheme a resolution was passed by a majority of this Council in favour of the subject of the industrial development being entirely provincial and also transferred, so that the delays incidental in making frequent references to Simla and Delhi may be avoided and further, that action may be taken in response to, and in sympathy with, the demands of public opinion. The stimulus that has been given to the development of Indian industries by the Department of Commerce and Industry during the last 14 years does not encourage in me for one, the belief that the mere fact that the department will be multiplied by two and that there will be one Member for Commerce and another for Industries, more will be done than hitherto. The Industrial Commission have enumerated at length the responsible duties that should vest in the provincial Director of Industries. I will read that passage in order to show what an important part the provincial Directors will have to play and how illogical it is for these Directors that the Local Governments should not be in a position to give effect to their opinions. They say:—'Provincial Directors would have a wide range of responsibilities. They would advise and assist local industries of all kinds in technical matters and would in many cases give direct financial aid. They would control industrial and technical education. They would collect industrial and commercial information, and would be the advisers of their Local Governments in industrial and commercial matters. They would arrange for the local purchase and inspection of stores. They would have under them a staff including engineers, technological chemists, specialists in various industries, craftsmen and technical and industrial teachers of various grades. The Deputy Directors would assist the Directors in most of these functions; and in particular would themselves inspect institutions for technical education they would assist the smaller private industrial concerns and supervise the work of engineers and industrial specialists. They would also organize and administer the various forms of assistance to cottage industries. The special intelligence officers at Bombay and Calcutta would collect and supply commercial and industrial intelligence in these cities especially in respect of foreign trade.' These will be the duties that provincial Directors will have to perform. They will have to be much more important personages than they are at present, as the salaries that are proposed to be given to them will be much higher than at present. There will be quite an army of officers serving under them. The provincial Governments will be finding the funds that will be needed for them. While even at present the financial assistance which the Government of India has rendered to provincial Governments for industrial development has been exceedingly limited, it will be still more so in future, for the very reason that a new system of provincial finance will come into being. The Government of India will be simply living upon the charity of provincial Governments, among which Madras and these provinces will have to pay the largest bounty. The argument that provinces will not have the requisite financial resources cannot, therefore, hold good, nor can the argument that all provincial Governments will be incompetent to manage their affairs; for the provincial Governments do manage even now much more important affairs and will continue to do so; and all the praises that are sung of the efficiency of the system are absolutely in vain if we are to be told that this policy of active industrial development requires constant supervision from the Government of India. The length to which the Commission went in this direction is shown by the fact that they want to send down Imperial inspectors even to visit the technological schools which will be under the control of the provincial Directors of Industries. Those who remember the memorandum that was laid before the Royal Commission on Decentralization in 1904 by Sir John Hewett with regard to the manner in which these Imperial inspectors in general affect the activities of the Local Government, will have no difficulty in concluding that it is a perfectly absurd recommendation that officers of the Government of India should be sent down to inspect even the small technical schools that are maintained in the various provinces.

"The Commission also say that there should be an Indian Board of Industries, an Imperial industrial, an Imperial chemical, an Imperial botanical and God knows how many more Imperial other services. Now, Sir, no one who closely studies the Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms and also the Report of the Royal Commission on Public Services will have any difficulty in concluding that the entire tendency of the future will be to minimize, as far as possible, what are called these imperial services and to increase the number and the importance of provincial services controlled entirely by provincial Governments. Are we now to support a proposal that new imperial services should be brought into existence? The recommendations of the Industrial Commission on this point run directly counter to the whole tendency of the policy that has been enunciated in the Report on Constitutional Reforms. Where imperial service officers who are not entirely under the control of the Local Governments are appointed inconveniences arise from time to time to which reference was made in the memorandum of Sir John Hewett placed before the Decentralization Commission which I have already mentioned. I object altogether to this policy of bringing into existence new organized services for the purposes of industrial development and technical education. Informed opinion is against even the present Indian Educational Service. I have heard it said by several educational experts that the wisest policy would be for men to be appointed as occasion arose, specially qualified men, on terms arranged for in each case, so that no vested interests may grow up and the best available talent may be obtained in every case and from anywhere.

"Among the witnesses before the Industrial Commission was Mr. H. P. Gibbs, General Manager of the Tata Hydro and Electric Supply Company. His opinion is worth referring to.

He said — 'No man should be imported into India unless he is a recognized expert in his particular line. He too should be engaged on short term contracts and made to understand that he is being engaged and paid to teach our local men just as much as to introduce and carry on his work. The young man from abroad who is educated but inexperienced should not be brought to India and allowed to get his practice here.'

"Directly the contrary to this is the recommendation of the commission. They want that recruits for new Imperial services should be obtained at as early an age as possible (they indicate 25 years). They will be men who have received theoretical training in England and other countries, they will come here to pick up practical knowledge and they will spend several years in doing that. It will not be any part of their duty to bring up Indians themselves to be able to perform those duties. Japan has followed quite a different policy. She has sent her own sons abroad, she has imported experienced men for temporary periods and with a stipulation that they must teach the Japanese themselves. The result has been that indigenous experts have enormously increased in number and Japan is now able to rely mainly upon her own men for its own purpose. In our country a different policy has been followed. In department after department which requires any technical knowledge or skill we continue to be dependent upon imported agency very much to the same extent as before. Take the Agricultural department for one. There are agricultural colleges in India. How many men have been trained in these colleges who are considered by the Government competent to hold the higher posts in that department? Almost none. I apprehend that if the Commission's recommendations in regard to the organization of these new Imperial services are to be accepted we shall have a corps of officers being continually imported from abroad and no adequate number of Indians competent to take charge of the work and help in the progress of the country. No doubt the Commission's recommendation was that recruitment should, as far as possible, be in India itself, but they proceeded to add that at present it is out of the question and that therefore these services should be manned by men imported from abroad. It is a pious hope that in the space of a few years more Indians will be trained and that more Indians will step into the various departments of Government. Experience has belied such a hope, and I have no reason to think that in the future we shall fare better than we have in the past.

"My own idea is that the Commission having made excellent recommendations with regard to the financial aid that Government should render to industries and with regard to the provision of facilities for technical education, have gone altogether on the wrong track in showing distrust of the capacity of provincial Governments to organize their own departments and to carry on their own work and in suggesting the appointment of a member for Industries and the establishment of Imperial services with headquarters at Simla and Delhi to supervise the work that is done in the provinces. Neither for financial reasons nor for administrative reasons can I reconcile myself to the wisdom of this policy. I think that much better results can be obtained if Provincial Governments are made wholly responsible for the development of industries and if they are allowed reasonable freedom of action with regard to the steps that should be taken in various directions. The only share of the Government of India in this direction should be where military requirements have to be met and where also arrangements have to be made for the purchase of stores in India in place of the purchases that are now made in England through the Stores Department of the India Office. It is quite possible to circumscribe the limits within which the activities of the Government of India are required, and if this is done, I am confident that it will be found that if the present Department of Commerce and Industry is maintained it will quite suffice to look after all that the Government of India need look after, if necessary, with an increased strength of the establishment under the Member for Commerce and Industry. Beyond that I will not go at all, and I am encouraged to think that I am not altogether wrong, not only because one of the members of the Commission, the Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, has largely dissented from the recommendations of the Commission, although I am sorry to say that he has approved of the recommendations that there should be a separate Member for Industries, but also because Your Honour, with the large experience you have, expressed the opinion in a speech delivered at Cawnpore in the end of November last that you were rather alarmed by the recommendations of the Commission to centralize direction and control at Simla and Delhi. We have had experience of over-centralization during the régime of Lord Curzon. His successor came only to undo what his distinguished predecessor had done. For a time an effort was made at centralization; but the lesson had to be unlearned and larger powers had to be delegated to Local Governments. Why unlearn the lesson at this time of the day and restart a policy of centralization in respect of a subject in which the people are materially interested and in which it may be hoped more progress will be made if the direction is left to provincial Governments, reconstituted as we believe they will be in accordance with the proposals contained in the Reforms Scheme, than if they are to be centralized in Simla and Delhi.

"It has not been possible for me within the time at my disposal to make any detailed criticism of the reasons that the Commission have advanced for the particular recommendations which they have made, but I think I have not failed to show that the principles underlying their recommendations, namely, that control should be centralized at Delhi and Simla, is altogether wrong and calculated to diminish our hope for the future. In this connection and for the reasons I have stated above, I regret that the Viceroy and Mr. Montagu in their reports showed a distinct bias in favour of the proposal that there should be a Member for Industries in the Government of India. Whether that is so, because they have arrived at the conclusion that the present strength of the Executive Council of the Governor-General was inadequate, that altogether the executive staff of the Government was inadequate to cope with the work that came before them, or whether they arrived at the conclusion that there should be a Member for Industries, on the merits of the recommendation of the Industrial Commission, I cannot tell. In either event it is regrettable that they have shown a distinct bias in favour of a separate Member for Industries. I do hope that they have not hopelessly committed themselves to it, and they will be open to reason in the light of the public criticism that has been uttered?"

The Hon'ble MR CHATTARJEE said :—

"The various matters which the honourable mover of the resolution has discussed in the course of his eloquent speech are admittedly distinctly important and Your Honour recognizes that an opportunity should be given to the Council to ventilate these questions before a decision is arrived at either by the Local Government or by the Government of India. But these questions are at present under discussion between the Government of India and the Local Government, and it is not possible for the Local Government to express any opinion on them. The Government will therefore take no part in the debate, but the proceedings will be submitted to the Government of India."

No. 3726, dated Bombay Castle, the 10th April 1919.

From—P. J. MEAD, ESQ., C.I.E., I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Revenue Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

I AM directed to reply to the Government of India's letter No. 589-D., dated December 7th, 1918, on the general proposals summarised in paragraph 9 of their letter under reference.

2. The Governor in Council is in substantial agreement with the general principles underlying these proposals and accepts the various suggestions set forth in these papers, subject to the following remarks.

3. I am to say that it is understood that the analogy between the proposed Imperial service and the Agricultural and Forest services now employed in Bombay will be complete as regards their employment under, and unfettered control by, this Government after recruitment, and that to this extent the original suggestions made in the report of the Indian Industrial Commission as regards loans of expert staff for short periods to Local Governments and the retention of a large measure of control in the hands of the Central Government, should be modified. As regards the position of the Chief Chemist under the Government of India towards research work under this Government, the Governor in Council does not apprehend that there will be any cause for friction, as the purely advisory nature of this officer's functions is clearly set forth in paragraph 126 of the Industrial Commission's report, and he cordially welcomes the valuable assistance which will thus be made available. As regards the power of control to be exercised by the Central Government in respect of industries which fall within the categories laid down in paragraph 2 of the Government of India's letter, the Governor in Council recognises that there may arise rare occasions on which restrictions may have to be imposed on the Local Government's activities in the general interests of India, but subject to this reservation and to such modified limitations as may ultimately be retained for all departments of Local Governments vis-à-vis the Central Government, this Government should be free to carry out any measures which may seem to them calculated to promote and assist industries within their administrative limits. Further, the Governor in Council would gravely deprecate any insistence upon the Central Government's sanction before proceeding with any scheme. The Governor in Council considers that a free interchange of information between the Central and Local Governments is of the greatest importance for the effective prosecution of research and experiments throughout India, and agrees that the Central Government should be kept fully informed of any important activities within provincial limits. I am to suggest that this procedure provides adequate opportunity for control by the Central Government in the rare cases when such control may be necessary, and gives such freedom of action as is essential for the prompt despatch of business. On this understanding, I am to say the Governor in Council accepts the principle of control by the Central Government in exceptional circumstances and in the general interests of India. At the same time, the Governor in Council recognises, I am to say, that research experiments and demonstrations undertaken within this Presidency may have to be supplemented by further research and experiments, either within or without the Presidency, in the general interest of India, and while conceding the right of the Central Government to carry out such supplementary work wherever it may seem most desirable, the Governor in Council trusts that any work of special importance to this Presidency will be located in or close to this Government's laboratories or demonstration factories, with a view to afford provincial workers the fullest measure of assistance. The question whether such supplementary workers should remain under the control and in the pay of the Central Government, or be lent for short periods to this Government, is one that may be decided in each case on its merits.

4. The Governor in Council recognises the advantages, and accepts the general principle of Imperial service, but until it is definitely decided which posts will be reserved for these Imperial services and what officers are suitable for absorption into these services, the Governor in Council considers that this Government should not be precluded from recruiting men to fill existing or proposed posts which are considered necessary for the Department of Industries in this Presidency. He is, however, of opinion that some further consideration will be required before deciding how far it will be desirable to staff educational posts, especially in Arts Colleges, from these services, rather than from the Indian Educational Service, as at present. It is possible, I am to point out, that departmental and collegiate discipline may suffer by too facile prospects of more congenial and remunerative employment in other branches of so wide a service, and there may be a tendency for the members of such a service to fail to identify themselves with their Department or College in all the activities demanded from them. A member of a College staff has other duties besides instruction in this particular subject, and the staff is often only adequate if all members work willingly in the common interests of the College. The Governor in Council would prefer to proceed tentatively in the first instance and while maintaining recruitment for these educational posts with the Educational Department as at present would so adjust the recruitment for the Imperial Scientific Services of the Industries Department as to make it possible to meet a call from the Educational Department for the services of a limited number of the men engaged.

5. In this connection, the Governor in Council would emphasise the paramount necessity for the recognition of the Educational Department's complete control over officers working in their Department, whether they belong to the Imperial Department of Industries or not. The point is emphasised because the proposal has been made to utilise the spare time of science lecturers in certain institutions under the Educational department for research work on behalf of the local Department of Industries, and has been tentatively accepted subject to certain conditions. So long as the Educational Department decides what proportion of a lecturer's time be devoted to industrial work and it is clearly understood that for disciplinary purposes the Principal's authority over his staff remains unaffected the Governor in Council is of opinion that such opportunities of research, to be arranged between the two departments, may be productive of useful results.

6. The Governor in Council cordially welcomes the proposal for the purchase of Government stores in India. The actual distribution of the work of purchasing and passing such stores between the Imperial and Local Government can well await the report of the expert committee suggested, but it is obvious that any Local Government must depend largely at the outset on the advice and assistance of the central organization, and in the later stages also the business sense of Bombay, which will be well represented on the local Director's Advisory Committee, may be trusted to rely on the best expert advice available, whether local or central, and to buy in the cheapest market with due regard to the quality of the goods.

7. The proposals set forth in the Industrial Commission's Report for the collection and utilisation of commercial intelligence also commend themselves. I am to say, to the Governor in Council. The present understanding between the local Department of Industries and the Director-General of Commercial Intelligence and the Trade Commissioners is that the main function of the Director-General is to foster the export trade while the Trade Commissioner pays special attention to India's requirements which can be met from the British Empire, and the Director of Industries concentrates on the possibilities of increasing local manufacture. Each officer or department must have, however, a general grasp of the situation, and the Governor in Council considers that while the above may continue to be accepted as a definition of their main fields of activity, the scheme devised by the Commission will be well calculated to give each officer or department the necessary perspective and to provide the commercial and industrial public with the information which will serve their interests best.

8. To sum up the above conclusions, I am to express the view that—

- (a) the Provincial Department of Industries should be created for Bombay on the above lines ;
- (b) the purchase of stores in India should be accepted in principle and worked out in detail with the help of a committee of experts and the collection of local commercial and industrial intelligence should be organised on the lines suggested ;
- (c) the principles of expert criticism and Imperial recruitment on the lines explained in paragraph 3 above, should be accepted, leaving the question of absorption of present or proposed provincial staff into such Imperial services to later consideration ;

- (d) the Imperial control should be limited to such financial and other checks as are finally accepted for all departments of a Provincial Government and to special cases of paramount importance to India as a whole, to be dealt with on their merits as they arise.

No. 792, dated Ootacamund, the 28th April 1919.

From—The Hon'ble MR. A. Y. G. CAMPBELL, C.I.E., I.C.S., Acting Secretary to the Government of Madras, Revenue (Special) Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

IN reply to Mr. Ley's letter No. 589-D., dated the 7th December 1918, regarding the proposals made in the report of the Indian Industrial Commission for the establishment of an Imperial and Provincial Department of Industries, I am directed to enclose a copy of Mr. Innes' letter No. G. C.-295, dated 20th January 1919, in which the various aspects of these proposals are fully discussed. The Government have had the advantage of a conference with Mr. C. E. Low who has cleared up certain doubts which were entertained by the Local Government as to the attitude or intentions of the Government of India as regards certain of the proposals under consideration.

2. In the letter under reply reference is made particularly to the proposals contained in Chapter XXI of the report of the Indian Industrial Commission on the Provincial Departments of Industries and an expression of the views of the Governor in Council is invited on certain proposals which are summarised in paragraph 9. This summary does not cover all the points referred to in Chapter XXI of the report, but it appears from paragraph 10 of the letter under reply that the Government of India do not at present require the Local Government to enter into a discussion of proposals not included in paragraph 9 of Mr. Ley's letter.

3. Subject to these limitations and to the remarks that follow, the Governor in Council accepts generally the recommendations of the Commission for the future development of the Provincial Department of Industries in this Presidency.

4. The Government understand from Mr. Low that questions relating to the powers and functions of the proposed Provincial Board of Industries will be left for decision to the provincial administrations with reference to local conditions.

5. The Governor in Council also presumes with reference to paragraph 312 of the Industrial Commission's report that the relations of the Director of Industries with the Local Government being a purely domestic matter will be left to the discretion of the Local Governments concerned.

6. As regards the responsibility of the Provincial Department of Industries for the local purchase of Government stores, I am to state that the Madras Government are in general agreement with the recommendations of the Commission in paragraphs 197—198 of their report including the proposal that there should be a stores branch in each Provincial Department of Industries. They would, however, suggest that the stores branches should be established in business centres and run on business lines; the Governor in Council also hopes that he will be given an opportunity of examining the recommendations of the special committee referred to in paragraph 9 (b) (1) of the letter under reply before orders are passed on it.

7. With reference to the responsibility of the Provincial Departments of Industries for the collection of local, commercial and industrial intelligence, I am to state that, as pointed out by Mr. Innes in paragraph 28 of his letter, the practical effect of the proposals contained in Chapter XI of the report appears to be that certain statistics which have hitherto been collected, published and commented on mainly by the Board of Revenue, should in future be dealt with by the Department of Industries. These proposals will require detailed examination; but the Governor in Council agrees that the principles on which they are based are sound.

8. In paragraph 306 of the Industrial Commission's report it is proposed that the responsibilities of the Provincial Departments of Industries should include the control of technical and industrial education and the control of the staff employed for the local administration of the Electricity, Factory and Boiler Acts and the furnishing of advice to Government on the industrial and commercial aspects of the Mines Act and of the rules for mining leases and prospecting licenses. As these items are not referred to in paragraph 9 of the letter under reply, and as it is clear from paragraph 10 that the Government of India do not require remarks on technical and industrial education the Madras Government reserve their remarks on these matters in detail and confine themselves to the statement that they are in general agreement with the proposals that Provincial Department of Industries should have these responsibilities.

9. The next question on which the views of the Local Government are invited is what arrangement is most suitable for utilising the officers of the proposed Indian Industrial and Chemical Services in order to combine the advantages of a common system of recruitment, and central criticism of wider question of research, with the control which the Local Governments must necessarily exercise in executive and administrative matters and to secure the fullest utilization by the Local Governments of their own staffs on local problems.

10. The Governor in Council recognises that some provincial administrations would be unable individually to offer adequate attractions and suitable careers to the many specialists required to carry out the policy recommended by the Commission, and that from this point of view it is desirable to pool the limited provincial requirements in the matter of staff in order that men with the necessary qualifications may be attracted to the provincial departments at the least possible cost to the State.

11. The Governor in Council understands from Mr. Low that the Indian Chemical and Industrial Services will be similar in constitution to other Indian services such as the Indian Civil Service and the Indian Forest Service. It is also understood that the period for which officers of these services will be placed at the disposal of the Local Government will not, as a matter of practice, be limited to five years, but that they will as a general rule be placed practically at the permanent disposal of the Local Government as is the case with the members of other services, though they would be liable to transfer to other provinces or to service in the Imperial Department. In dealing with the Chemical Service in paragraph 305 of the report, the Industrial Commission suggest that the Imperial Government would be concerned with questions of the promotion and distribution of the staff. The Governor in Council presumes that so long as the services of any member of the Industrial or Chemical Service are placed at the disposal of the Local Government, his promotion and posting will be left to the discretion of that Government. Subject to these remarks the Madras Government would accept the proposals for the creation of Indian Industrial and Chemical Services and for the placing of members of those services under the orders of Local Governments so as to provide the superior staff required for the Provincial Departments of Industries as well as for the Imperial Department of Industries.

12. In order to provide central criticism on wider questions of research the Governor in Council recognises the desirability of the establishment of Imperial research institutes. If, however, officers in Imperial research institutes are given higher pay than the corresponding officers of provincial institutes, the difference in pay should be substantial and should be justified by an increase in responsibilities, so that the officer employed in an Imperial institute may be qualified to advise as to the work done in provincial research institutes if necessary. In this connection I am to invite the attention of the Government of India to the importance of making an equitable distribution of the proposed Imperial research institutes among the several provinces. In deciding the number and location of Imperial institutes, regard should be had to the essential differences between conditions in Southern India and those which obtain in the north. For example, a single specialised research institute for the group of subjects relating to oil-seeds would not meet the requirements of India as a whole, and if it were decided to establish such an institute in Northern India it is probable that another Imperial institute would have to be established for research in connection with tropical oil-seeds in Southern India. Moreover the usefulness of a research institute to an industry varies inversely with the distance of the institute from the locality in which the industry is established. Mr. Low explained that the question of allocating the research institutes was intentionally left vague by the Commission as they considered it to be a matter that should be considered by a small expert committee. I am to commend these remarks to the notice of the Government of India when the question is under final consideration.

13. As regards the recommendation in paragraph 312 of the Commission's report that Directors of Industries should ultimately be selected from the Indian Industrial Service, I am to say that the Madras Government are in general agreement with the Commission's recommendations, but consider that, if no officer of the Indian Industrial Service serving in the province is considered by the Local Government to be suitable for the appointment of Director, the Local Government should have complete liberty of choice in making the appointment after considering the qualifications of any officer of the service employed elsewhere who may be recommended to them.

14. As regards relations between the Imperial and Provincial Departments the Governor in Council would observe in the first place that the proposals for the creation of an Imperial Department of Industries and for the development of certain industries by the Imperial Department are open to the objection that they will create a tendency towards centralization, and that there will be considerable danger that the industries of one province will be developed by the Imperial Department with money contributed by another province. There was a natural apprehension on the part of the Madras Government that this tendency towards centralization would become more marked in the course of time and might result in the loss of initiative on the part of the Provincial Governments. It was, however, explained by Mr. Low that the Provincial Governments will be given a free hand in the initiation of industrial experiments, provided always that these experiments are not likely to be prejudicial to the interests of India as a whole and that the Provincial Governments will be competent to enter on a course of action even against the advice of the Government of India, provided that the entertainment of the necessary expert staff is within their powers of sanction. In the light of these explanations the Governor in Council would accept the view that it is desirable to entrust to the Imperial Department of Industries the development of certain industries on the lines indicated in paragraph 2 of the letter under reply.

15. It would appear from the official summary of the report that the Commission proposes to lay on the Imperial Department of Industries the responsibility for the "industrial policy of Government and the inauguration and carrying out of a uniform programme of industrial development throughout the country." The functions of the Imperial Government as set out in paragraph 214 of the Commission's report include a duty to "watch over provincial administrations in order to secure the maintenance of a uniform industrial policy." The expression "uniform programme" is somewhat vague and suggests considerable interference with the programmes of Provincial Governments. The Madras Government, however, understand that the expression need not necessarily be interpreted as indicating any intention on the part of the Commission that the Imperial Department should interfere otherwise than by suggestion and advice in matters within the competence of the Local Government. Mr. Low has informed this Government that the Commission's intention was merely to ensure that one Provincial Government should not lag behind the others in industrial development, and that if one link in a chain was lacking the Government of India might endeavour to persuade the Provincial Government concerned to supply the link or, failing local enterprise, the deficiency might be supplied by the Imperial Department. In view of this explanation, the Governor in Council accepts the proposals of the Commission in this respect.

16. In paragraph 179 of the report the Commission suggests that arrangements should be made for the provision of specialist officers of the Imperial Department of Industries to visit industrial and technical educational institutions and to advise the Local Government regarding the correct methods of imparting such education. While the Governor in Council would welcome such inspection and advice by specialists, he agrees with Mr. Innes that the provincial inspectors of industrial schools should not be replaced by these visiting specialists. The staff under the control of Local Government should be maintained not only for purposes of inspection of industrial and technical schools but also for the submission of detailed proposals in connection with the management of existing schools and the opening of new schools. The Provincial Director of Industries should have at hand a staff capable of advising him on educational matters and of working out details in connection with new institutions without reference to the Imperial Department of Industries.

17. The functions of the Imperial Department in respect of the work carried out by Provincial Departments of Industries should be mainly advisory. The Imperial research institutes should be so staffed and equipped that the work done in them will be of a higher quality than that which can ordinarily be done in a provincial research institute. The Imperial Department may also, in the opinion of the Madras Government, control the development of certain selected industries for special reasons and, where necessary, take up, in the interests of India as a whole, industrial work which is not taken up by the Provincial Government concerned.

No. G. C.-295, dated the 20th January 1919.

From—C. A. INNES, ESQ., I.C.S., Director of Industries, Madras,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Madras, Revenue (Special) Department.

I HAVE the honour to reply to Government's memorandum No. 1293-I.—18-3, dated the 21st December 1918, in which I am directed to report on the proposals of the Indian Industrial Commission specified in paragraph 9 of the Government of India's letter No. 589-D., dated the 7th December 1918. The points on which my opinion is asked are the following:—

- (a) whether Provincial Departments of Industries should be created, or developed, on the lines suggested by the Commission;
- (b) whether the responsibilities of these departments should include —
  - (1) the local purchase of Government stores, subject to such degree of centralization as may be decided upon after consideration of the report of a special committee, and
  - (2) the collection of local commercial and industrial intelligence;
- (c) what arrangements are most suitable for utilizing the officers of the proposed Indian services, industrial and chemical, in order to combine the advantages of a common system of recruitment, and central criticism in wider questions of research, with the control which Local Governments must necessarily exercise in executive and administrative matters and to secure the fullest utilization by the Local Governments of their own staff on local problems; and
- (d) what generally should be the relations between the Imperial and Provincial Departments.

2. General remarks.—Before dealing with these specific questions, I venture to offer a few general remarks on what is undoubtedly the most prominent feature of the administrative proposals made in the Industrial Commission's report. At the Conference held on the 23rd and 25th November Sir Thomas Holland pointed out that in its report the Commission had been careful to avoid the word "centralization," and claimed that the centralization to which reference was made at the Conference was essentially a centralization of advisory functions, executive and administrative functions being decentralized to Local Governments. I do not think that it is necessary to argue the point. It must be clear to any one who reads the report carefully that throughout it is centralizing in tendency, and though the Commission claims that its scheme is "in general accord with the administrative changes" proposed in the Reforms Scheme, and though in paragraph 360 of the Reform Report the Viceroy and the Secretary of State certainly give the proposals of the Commission a preliminary benediction, I confess that I do not think that it is possible to square the proposals of the Commission with the second of the four formulæ laid down in paragraphs 188—191 of the Reform Report. It may be admitted that industrial reform is essentially complementary to political reform, but it is equally evident that we have two antagonistic forces at work. The Commission is concerned solely with India's industrial deficiencies, and deliberately it has set itself to devise the most efficient way of remedying those deficiencies. The Reform Scheme, on the other hand, of set purpose, is prepared to sacrifice efficiency to other and wider considerations. Hence the one scheme hinges on centralization and efficiency, the other on decentralization even at the expense of efficiency. Ultimately, therefore, the decision depends on the view taken regarding India's industrial position. If the Commission is right in holding that India's backwardness in industrial development is so serious as to involve political, economic and even national danger, it is justified in asking Local Governments to agree, in the interests of efficiency, to a period of centralized control.

3. Clearly, if it were possible, it would be preferable to leave it to each Local Government to work out its own industrial salvation. India is a continent rather than a country. It is nearly, if not quite, as large as Europe and it contains upwards of 300 millions of people. The provinces into which it is divided differ widely from one another in the matter of climate, physical characteristics and resources, and whether the test of area or population be applied, the major provinces correspond rather to the larger than the smaller nations of Europe. Prima facie, it seems absurd to endeavour to direct the industrial development of a country of this size and of these varying characteristics from Simla and Delhi, or to prescribe a "uniform programme." The more reasonable course would be for the Government of India to confine itself to the encouragement of such industries as are essential from the point of view of national safety or are of more than provincial importance, and with these reservations to leave it to Local Governments to work out their own problems with their own staff in their own way. There might be inequalities between the different provinces. Some might be more progressive than others, others again might be actually apathetic. But in some at least there would be real live development especially if Local Governments were free from the paralysing necessity of seeking sanction before they made a new appointment or took a new step. Further there is our own narrow Madras point of view. To put it bluntly, Madras is going to pay the piper, but the Government of India is going to call the tune. From paragraph 206 of the Reform Report, I see that nearly one-third of the gross provincial contributions to the Government of India is to be levied from Madras. On the other hand, industrially the future lies mainly with Bihar and Orissa and Bengal, and there is a considerable danger that Bengal industries will be developed with Madras money.

4. This is one side of the case. On the other hand, it must be remembered that the Commission was appointed to "examine and report upon the possibilities of the further industrial development in India," and it is not surprising that they have considered the question from the point of view of India as a whole. Their examination has shown that India is lamentably deficient not only in certain essential materials but also in the production of certain essential articles. Avowedly their object is to make India self-contained industrially in men as well as materials. Several schemes for industrial reorganization were placed before them. Deliberately they chose the scheme which, in their opinion, was the one most likely to permit of an early start and a rapid advance. It is a compromise necessitated by the conditions of the problem, and though it is not as an ideal scheme, more is not claimed than that it offers the most hopeful line of immediate progress, and that provided that there is co-operation between the Imperial and Local Governments, there is no reason why it should not work well. I am quoting from Sir Thomas Holland's Convocation speech. On political, national and every other ground, the need for the development of Indian industries by Indians is urgent. In the circumstances of India, Government must abandon its Laissez-faire policy and must play an active part in this development. But it cannot do so "unless provided with adequate administrative equipment and forearmed with reliable scientific and technical advice." These are the two premises on which the proposals in the Report are based. If they are granted, Sir Thomas Holland has claimed that the rest of the Report in its main outlines follows automatically. It is largely a question of funds. For though they are large, the provinces are poor. The net surplus in each province, if the proposals of the Reforms Report are accepted, will approximately be as below:—

Province.	Surplus in lakhs of rupees
Madras	63
Bombay	13
Bengal	10
United Provinces	48
Punjab	32
Burma	21
Central Provinces	5

These surpluses do not leave much margin for additional large scale expenditure on industrial development, and it is clear that most Provincial Governments could not afford to employ all the specialists which will be required if Government is properly to play the part marked out for it. Madras might be able to have reasonably good services, but what about Bengal or Bombay? Industries, moreover, so act and react upon one another that from the point of view of Indian development, it would be a mistake to treat the provinces as water-tight compartments. The problem must be treated as a whole. Sulphuric acid is an excellent instance. Sir Thomas Holland once said that the measure of country's industrial development was to be found in its consumption of sulphuric acid which is merely another way of saying that many industries depend for their existence on cheap sulphuric acid. Sulphuric acid is now made from imported sulphur by more than one firm in India, but it is doubtful whether so long as the sulphur must be imported from Sicily or Japan the acid can ever be produced sufficiently cheap to render economically possible many of the other industries dependent on its use. Consequently steps have been taken by the Indian Munitions Board to encourage the establishment of zinc-smelting works. The zinc ores obtainable in Burma contain large quantities of sulphur, and one of the processes in the works will be the recovery of the sulphur in the form of sulphuric acid. This is an excellent example of good results accruing from a wide view of industrial deficiencies and resources taken by a central authority. A deficiency which hampers progress throughout India is noted. A survey is made of the resources of the country. The necessary raw material is found in Burma. It is decided that it should be worked up in Calcutta where coal is cheap, and in this way the deficiency is in a fair way to be remedied. Similar instances might be multiplied (paragraphs 73—83 and 320 of the Report), and it is clear that there is need for the "wider outlook" of an Imperial Department. Already the Indian Munitions Board has shown how much can be done by a central authority, and to all intents and purposes it is merely proposed to carry on the Indian Munitions Board under another name.

5. Personally, therefore, having regard to the considerations mentioned above, particularly to the general poverty of the country and to the dangers, political and economic, inherent in its present industrial backwardness, I think that the Commission was justified in its treatment of the subject. If any rapid change for the better is to be made in the development of Indian industries, it is necessary to think Imperially instead of provincially, to consider the problem as a whole and to pool the limited resources available in order that they may be used to the best advantage of India. If these views are accepted, the need for an Imperial Department of Industries requires no further argument. It will initiate the main lines of policy and in matters of lesser importance will co-ordinate the work in the different provinces. At the same time, the stage should be purely transitional, and as in political reform so in industries the goal should be the largest possible measure of decentralization to Local Governments at the earliest possible date.

6. So far I have endeavoured to deal with the Report on its broadest aspect. It is now necessary to go further and examine in detail the proposals made by the Commission for the administrative machinery required to carry out the policy of the Report. They propose as already mentioned the creation of Imperial and Provincial Departments of Industries, and I propose to take up first the question raised by the Government of India as to the relations between these departments. This question also involves the consideration of the proposals of the Commission in respect of the industrial and chemical services.

7. The Imperial Department of Industries.—The proposed Imperial Department of Industries, as I have already pointed out, is practically the Indian Munitions Board under another name. It will consist of a Board of three members with a President who will be a member of Viceroy's Council and who will have power to overrule his colleagues. The Department will be charged "with the direction and co-ordination of the general industrial policy of the country and the proper performance of certain functions of high national importance." It will deal with the following subjects and departments:—

- (1) Geology and minerals (including the geological survey of India and the administration of the Indian Mines Act).
- (2) Salt.

- (3) Indian Explosives Act and the Indian Petroleum Act.
- (4) Stationery and Printing.
- (5) Inventions and Designs.
- (6) The collection and distribution of commercial and industrial intelligence.
- (7) The supply of stores and the administration of the Stores Department.
- (8) The Indian Factories Act.
- (9) The general encouragement of industries including the grant of assistance or concessions to industrialists in cases of more than provincial importance.
- (10) Advice to Local Governments regarding the improvement of industries and the conduct of industrial and technical education.
- (11) The administration of the various Acts relating to steam-boilers.
- (12) Electricity.
- (13) Ordnance Factories.
- (14) Inspection of Ordnance Stores.
- (15) General direction and application of chemical research and the control of the proposed Chemical Service.
- (16) Imperial factories for research or demonstration. Most of these functions require no comment. The Department of Industries will merely take over functions now belonging to other departments of the Government of India, and in respect of these functions there will presumably be no change in the relations between the Government of India and the Government of Madras. Instances are Nos 1, 2 (which presumably refers only to the department of Northern India Salt Revenue), 4, 5, 12 and 14. As regards the various Acts mentioned (Nos. 3, 8, 11 and 12), similarly I presume that no change will be made. The Government of India will lay down principles and policies and will amend the Acts where necessary, but the local application of the Acts will be left to Local Governments. No. 6 (the collection and distribution of commercial intelligence) and No. 7 (the Stores Department) are dealt with, as directed, separately.

8. Its general control of industrial policy.—There remain, however, certain functions proposed for the Imperial Department which are more open to controversy. From the official summary of the Report, it appears that the Commission proposes to lay on the Imperial Department the responsibility for “the industrial policy of Government and the inauguration and carrying out of a uniform programme of industrial development throughout the country.” It is, of course, the function of the Government of India to prescribe general principles and to lay down broad lines of policy, and after reading the Report, I do not think that the “uniform programme” of development referred to mean more than that the Government of India will be expected—

- (1) to take certain steps which will remove some of the most glaring deficiencies of India's industrial position;
- (2) to initiate certain lines of scientific research;
- (3) to initiate certain surveys of great economic importance such as the coal survey (paragraph 94) and the hydrographic survey (paragraph 99);
- (4) to adopt certain large measures which are likely to be of great benefit to Indian industries in general, as for instance, the arrangements proposed for the purchase of Government stores; and
- (5) generally to lay down the principles on which Local Governments may suitably assist the development of local industries.

In other words I do not think that the above phrase need necessarily be interpreted as indicating any intention on the part of the Commission that the Imperial Department should interfere otherwise than by suggestion and advice in matters within the competence of Local Governments. Much, however, depends on what the powers of the Local Governments will be in the future especially in regard to the creation of new appointments and to expenditure on new schemes, and how those powers are likely to be affected by the Commission's proposals in respect of the services. I will refer to this point later.

9. Its functions in regard to the development of Industries.—Nor do I see much difficulty in the division of functions between the Imperial and Provincial Departments as regards the direct encouragement of industries. Their respective spheres are fairly easily defined (vide paragraph 2 of the Government of India's letter and paragraph 320 of the Report), though naturally there may be doubtful cases on the border line. Generally speaking, the Government of India will deal with the development of "key" industries, i.e., industries which are vital for purposes of national defence or are an essential link in a whole chain of other industries. All other industries will be left to the care of the provincial departments and Local Governments concerned. The Imperial and Provincial Departments will naturally be in the closest touch, and there is no danger of overlapping or confusion. There may be cases when the Local Government wishes to encourage an industry in its province which the Government of India has already taken up. Such cases will be decided on their merits. It may be that the Local Government will decide that the industry in question is of such local importance that it should be encouraged in the Madras Presidency even though arrangements may already have been made to foster it in some other province, and if so, the Local Government's decision, which will be passed after consideration of any arguments which the Government of India may bring to bear, will naturally be final. Similarly, there may be purely local industries which the Local Government may wish to encourage. The Imperial Department will be consulted (since the whole scheme presupposes close co-operation between the Imperial and Provincial Departments) and may disagree either as to the necessity of helping the industry or as to the method of encouragement proposed. Full weight will of course be given to the views of the Government of India, but the decision will rest with the Local Government. The only centralization should be centralization of advisory functions. The Government of India may legitimately ask to be consulted, but it should not force its views on the Local Government. This I believe to be the intention of the Report. At any rate we ought to insist on this interpretation. There is no danger of wild cat schemes being taken up against the advice of the Government of India. There are too many checks. In the first place, a Local Government which disregards the advice of the Imperial Department will incur a considerable responsibility. Secondly, there is the proposed Board of Industries, to say nothing of the Standing Committee proposed in the Reforms Report (paragraph 232). As a matter of fact, if, as I suppose is probable, the Department of Industries is a transferred subject under the Reform Scheme, I regard the advisory functions of the Imperial Department as a valuable safeguard, and I think that it should be a recognized principle that in all schemes of industrial development, the Imperial Department should be freely consulted, provided that the ultimate decision rests with the Local Government.

10. Scientific research.—Scientific research, which is perhaps the most hopeful method of encouraging the development of industries, is sufficiently important to be dealt with separately. It opens up of course the whole question of the organization proposed for scientific research, but this question will be dealt with below. For the moment all that it is necessary to say is that the Commission contemplates Imperial Scientific Services in general and in particular an Imperial Chemical Service, the junior members of which will be lent to Local Governments. At the head of this Chemical Service will be a Chief Chemist, and each branch will be supervised by a Deputy Chief Chemist. The functions of these high officers will be to exercise the necessary critical check over the research work of junior officers wherever they may be at work, to prevent overlapping, to correlate the results of scientific research all over India and to arrange for the publication of those results in an authoritative all-India journal. Parenthetically I may remark that I consider that the danger of overlapping may be pressed too far. India is such a big country that there is no reason why the same problem should not be investigated in different parts of it, and personally I should object to the Madras Department of Industries being warned off some particular problem, which may be of great importance to local industries merely because the investigation of that problem has already been taken up in some other province. The Commissioner's insistence on the danger of overlapping of research however has reference, I imagine, mainly to the existing state of affairs when the number of scientific officers available is ludicrously out of proportion to problems which require investigation and when it is necessary to make the best possible use of our very limited resources in respect of scientific advice.

11. Imperial Research Institutes.—What I am chiefly concerned with now is the actual division of scientific research work between the Imperial and Provincial Departments. It was suggested to the Commission by some witnesses that all branches of scientific research should be grouped in a single institute (paragraph 128), but after referring to the Indian Institute of Science at Bangalore, the Commission was "definitely of opinion that its value to the industries of India is reduced by its distance from the places in which they are carried on". Consequently, the Commission very properly declined to contemplate "chemical research for all India in a single institute" (paragraph 129). From paragraph 126 it is clear that the Commission contemplates research by scientific officers lent to Provincial Departments and research naturally implies laboratory equipment. But the Commission also proposes the establishment of specialised Imperial research laboratories (paragraph 130). Incidental references are made to the necessity of research on certain metallurgical and chemical problems at Sakchi (paragraph 130), on tanning (Appendix D, paragraph 11) and on vegetable oils (paragraph 114), but it is suggested that the location of these Imperial research institutes as well as the selection of the groups of subjects should be settled by expert opinion obtained through the medium of the Committees proposed for the purpose of working out the organization of the scientific services (paragraphs 130 and 123). The proposals are a little vague. It may be that the Commission proposes to establish Imperial research institutes only for certain specialised subjects which, though extremely important for Indian industries generally, are only of indirect interest to most Local Governments. The institute proposed for metallurgical problems at Sakchi is a case in point, and if this is the intention, there is nothing to be said. But it is apparently the view of the Committee that Imperial research institutes should be established for such groups of subjects as tanning, tan stuffs and tannin extracts, and oils and fats in which of course nearly all Local Governments are directly interested, and the Commission appears to contemplate an organization of small provincial institutes dealing with research on these subjects and working in close touch with a large, well-equipped central research institute. It is unfair of course to criticize this proposal in the light of the past experience of the Agricultural Department in respect of Pusa or the Forest Department in respect of Dehra Dun. Ex hypothesi, the provincial departments will have their own staff of technical and scientific officers, ex hypothesi the Chief and Deputy Chief Chemists will exist for the purpose of co-ordinating and correlating research all over India, ex hypothesi there will be an all-India journal which will be an authoritative record of research all over India, and it may be admitted that the local Departments of Industries will be in a far better position than they have been hitherto to make use of and apply the results of research work done in the Imperial research institutes. On the other hand, provincial jealousies will inevitably be roused when the question comes to be settled where these Central Research Institutes are to be placed. The principle is laid down (paragraph 130) that the institutes should be established in industrial centres in order that the staff may maintain close relations with industrialists and industrial work and that their investigations may be vitalised by the constant presentation of fresh problems of practical interest. Applying these principles, the Tanning Research Institute would probably be established at Cawnpore or Calcutta and the Oils and Fats Institute in Calcutta, Bombay or again Cawnpore. Neither institute will be established, it may be assumed, in Madras, though Madras has more tanneries and is probably richer in oil seeds than any other province. The result must be that provinces which have the good fortune to be selected as the site for one of these specialised Research Institutes will have a great advantage over other provinces. It is well known that Mysore derives incomparably more benefit from the Indian Institute of Science than any other province, and the Commission itself admits that the value of a research institute to industries varies directly with its distance from the industrial centre. The ideal plan of course is for each province to have its own research institute for the problems in which it is interested, especially as in a country so large and with such varied physical and climatic characteristics as India, the problems to be investigated differ naturally from province to province. But probably the answer will be that for financial reasons this solution is not possible, and that it is better to concentrate Imperial funds on the establishment of a few really well-equipped and adequately staffed institutes than to fritter away those funds in subsidizing a number of comparatively weak provincial institutes. Most scientists, I think, would take this view, and it may also be admitted that these large institutes offer considerable advantages in the way of training up Indians in research. From the all-India point of view the organization contemplated by the Commission of small provincial research institutes working in close touch with one large central institute is probably right, but if this view is taken, two points should, I think, be pressed on the Government of India. In the first place, efforts should be made to distribute the proposed Imperial Research Institutes fairly among the provinces. For instance, if the Metallurgical Institute is established at Sakchi, which though not in Bengal is close to Calcutta, and if Cawnpore is selected as the site for the Tanning Research Institute, then the Oils and Fats Institute should be established in Bombay or Madras. Secondly, in deciding as to the number and location of these institutes regard should be had to the fact that conditions in tropical Madras differ essentially from those in the North. A single specialised research institute for the group of subjects based on oil seeds, therefore, would not satisfy the requirements of India, and if it is decided to establish such an institute in Northern India, it should be considered whether another Imperial Institute should not be established for research on the tropical oil seeds of South India. It may be taken for granted of course that the mere fact that an Imperial Institute has been established for research on one group of subjects will not operate as a bar to a Local Government establishing its own provincial Research Institute for the same group of subjects.

12. Technical and Industrial Education.—It will be seen from paragraph 7 above that the tenth function of the Imperial Department is to advise Local Governments regarding the conduct of industrial and technical education and from paragraphs 179 and 363 of the Report it appears that this advice is to be tendered through the medium of "thoroughly qualified visiting experts." It is pointed out that separate experts are required for metal-working, textile and wood-working schools, and that no one Local Government would be able to find full-time employment for all these men. It is, therefore, suggested that the ordinary inspection should be done by the Director of Industries and his superior staff, and that the schools should periodically be inspected by itinerant Imperial experts. Apparently it is not contemplated (paragraph 319) that the provincial departments should include the appointment of an Inspector of Industrial Schools, and the suggestion seems to be that this officer should be abolished, and that his place should be taken by itinerant experts. *I cannot work up any enthusiasm for this proposal. One of the members of the Indian Industries Board will deal with industrial and technical education (paragraph 325) and will be a touring officer. His advice ought to be invaluable to a Provincial Director of Industries. But I do not agree that the Provincial Inspector of Industrial Schools can adequately be replaced by visiting experts. The value of Mr. Fyfe to me is not merely that he inspects all schools but that he relieves me of a great deal of routine work connected with the Trades School and the working of the Grant-in-aid Code and the Educational Rules. He is always at hand for purposes of consultation on questions of policy and on proposals to open new schools, and I can send him out at any time to inspect any particular school or to make local inquiries into applications for recognition of new schools. I should have no control over the visiting experts and could not use them for any of the above purposes. Nor would their advice be much good except on purely technical questions. They would have no knowledge of school management. I am not in favour of the proposal. As regards weaving schools, it is unnecessary as far as Madras goes. We shall have our own weaving expert. As regards wood-working schools, it is similarly unnecessary. Mr. Fyfe, our present Inspector of Schools is an expert wood-worker. And as regards metal-working schools, if in the Industrial Service we have no expert metal-worker, at any rate ex hypothesi under the Commission's proposals the headmaster or superintendent of Government metal-working schools will be an expert at his job, and I should prefer to use him for the purpose of inspecting, on the technical side, other metal-working schools.

13. The Services.—So far in dealing with the relations between the Imperial and Provincial departments, I have proceeded on three assumptions. I have assumed—

- (i) that the powers of Local Governments both in creating new appointments and in sanctioning new schemes involving expenditure will be greatly increased;
- (ii) that the functions of the Imperial Department vis-à-vis the Provincial Departments of Industries will be mainly advisory, and
- (iii) that in the case of a difference of opinion regarding a matter within the power of a Local Government, the advice of the Government of India will be treated with great respect, but in the last resort the decision will rest with the Local Government.

But new schemes or new lines of research may require special officers to deal with them. These officers when recruited will presumably belong to the proposed Imperial Industrial Service or the proposed Indian Chemical Service, and the fact that these services are both to be Imperial services may operate as a serious check on the independence in industrial matters of the Local Governments. The proposals of the Commission in regard to these services are the most difficult part of the report.

14. Imperial Industrial Service.—The organization of the Provincial Departments of Industries contemplated by the Commission will include a Director and Deputy Director of Industries, Industrial Engineers, Principals and Professors of Technical Colleges, Inspectors of Factories, Boiler Inspectors and Electrical Inspectors. Similarly, the Imperial Department will require controlling and senior officers for the various departments mentioned in paragraph 320 of the Report. The range of functions will be very wide, and the Commission is of opinion that the best way of overcoming this difficulty will be to train up men in an Imperial Service. Ultimately, it is proposed, the service should be recruited from Indians trained as Mechanical Engineers in this country, and a time-scale of pay rising to Rs. 1,500 per mensem is suggested. The recruitment of the service is to be effected by a committee working under carefully prescribed rules, but the report is silent as to the authority which will promote and distribute the staff. I gather, however, that as in the Indian Chemical Service, the Imperial Department will promote and distribute the staff.

15. The Indian Chemical Service.—The proposals in regard to the Indian Chemical Service are much the same. The service will be organized into three groups—(a) agricultural, (b) organic and (c) mineral. Each group will be under the “supervision” of a Deputy Chief Chemist, and the whole service will be controlled “for scientific purposes” by a Chief Chemist. Members of the service will be “lent” to Local Governments normally limited to five years, and the recruitment, distribution and promotion of the staff will be the function of the Government of India. It is proposed to appoint an expert committee to formulate proposals for the organization of the service and its terms of employment.

16. These proposals were fully discussed at the conference with Sir Thomas Holland, and it is not necessary to go over the ground again. I note in passing that I do not suppose that it is the intention of the Commission that the Government of India should post officers to different provinces as Directors of Industries. It is true that ultimately it is suggested that these officers should be recruited from the industrial service and that that service will be an Imperial service. But a Director of Industries will not be like a Postmaster-General or a Collector of Sea Customs. He will be engaged in duties in which Local Governments are vitally interested, and he may even be an ex-officio Secretary to Government. No Local Government could possibly agree to such an officer being appointed by the Government of India, and I take it that the intention is merely (1) that the appointment should ordinarily be filled from the Industrial service and (2) that if no officer of that service serving in the province is considered suitable, the Local Government should consult the Government of India, and while reserving to itself complete liberty of choice, should consider the claims of any officer recommended by the Government of India. At any rate, in my opinion, this is as far as any Local Government can reasonably be expected to go.

17. Even apart from the fact that the services will be controlled by the Government of India in the matter of distribution and recruitment, the mere constitution of these services on an Imperial basis is clearly a centralising measure. As a matter of fact, it will alter fundamentally the relations between the Local Governments and the Industries Department of the Government of India. Local Governments, I believe, are empowered under the Civil Account Code to create permanent appointments (other than those ordinarily held by gazetted civil officers recruited in England), provided that the remuneration of the appointment does not exceed Rs. 800 per annum, and they have larger powers in the creation of temporary appointments. These powers moreover, I believe, will shortly be enlarged. But if the Industrial and Chemical services are constituted Imperial services, obviously the Local Governments must surrender these powers. I imagine that a Local Government could not, even temporarily, increase the cadre of a strictly Imperial service. If, therefore, we wished to recruit an additional Industrial Engineer and if we had a suitable Indian for the appointment, we could neither create the appointment nor appoint the Indian. The sanction of the Government of India would be required for the new appointment, and all we could do would be to apply to the Government of India for a man. I have no doubt that the Government of India would readily agree both to the new appointment and to the selection of the man we wanted. But the fact remains that the effect of the proposal to create Imperial services does alter for the worse the position of local Governments vis-à-vis the Industries department of the Government of India. That department's functions will not be essentially advisory except in certain matters expressly reserved to itself. Through its control of the services, it can intervene effectively even in matters which ordinarily would be entirely within the competence of the Local Government.

18. This appears to me to be the main objection to the proposal. For the rest, it is merely a question of balancing advantages and disadvantages. Personally as regards the Indian Chemical Service, I would be prepared to waive even the above objection, and I think the advantages of the Commission's proposal distinctly outweigh the disadvantages. The dangers are that if we get a good man in Madras, he will be caught up aloft just when he is beginning to make himself really useful, and that our scientific officers, unless they are of mere average ability, will be mere birds of passage always hankering to get back to service directly under the Government of India. Nor do I think that any useful purpose would be served by stipulating, as I thought of suggesting, that special allowances should not be given to officers serving in Imperial Research Institutes and that such officers should not be given high sounding titles. Officers of the Indian Chemical Service will look for promotion to the Imperial Department. In Imperial Research Institutes they will come directly under the eye of the Imperial Department, and to the keen scientist, apart from all other considerations, the attraction of working in large well-equipped research institutes will of itself prove irresistible. These institutes therefore inevitably, and from a broad point of view quite rightly, will attract the best men. But I do not see how these disadvantages can be avoided if we admit the Commission's main premise that, in these days of specialization, no Local Government could possibly afford to employ all the chemists and specialists it is likely to require. In my opinion we must accept this proposition, and if we do so, obviously it is the governing factor in the case. The Government of India must have its own staff of chemists and specialists. My hypothesis that staff will be larger than any that a Local Government can afford to employ. Further, it will work in larger and better-equipped research institutes. For these reasons alone, it seems to me that we must join in with the Government of India. It would never do to have in India a large Imperial Chemical Service plus a number of small separate provincial services. The latter would be overshadowed. Our officers, besides being expensive to recruit, would never be happy. They would always be scheming for appointments in the larger service with its greater opportunities and its more spacious prospects. If we refused to let them go, there would be discontent and restlessness, and further, without as far as I can see any compensating advantages, we should have all the disadvantages, inseparable from small isolated services. - These disadvantages are very serious. I have not the faintest idea, for instance, what we should do if Doctor Marsden fell ill and had to take leave just after starting his dyeing school, and Mr. Nayudu at the Leather Trade School has been in a position to intimidate us just because of the impossibility of replacing him. Difficulties of this kind are unavoidable in the case of isolated services.

appointments, and my conclusion is that it is better to accept the inevitable and adhere to the proposed Indian Chemical Service. But whether Government accept this view or whether they prefer to have their own separate staff of chemists, I am much in favour of the proposals in paragraph 126 of the report. The Chief Chemist and Deputy Chief Chemists proposed are likely to be most useful in maintaining professional standards, in subjecting local research to a continuous critical check, and in preventing Provincial Chemists from embarking on infructuous lines of work. I agree also that an authoritative chemical journal for all India is most desirable. Whatever method of organisation be adopted, therefore, I think that Government should welcome these features of the report, and it should be noted that it is doubtful whether these appointments can be justified unless the proposals of the Commission for an Indian Chemical Service are adopted in their entirety.

19. The case for an Imperial Industrial Service is very similar. It is unquestionable that the aim and object should be to train up Indians for the Imperial and Provincial Departments of Industries, and it must be admitted that the best way to obtain a continuous supply of adequately trained Indians is to offer a definite career in a regularly constituted service. It is also clear that if we have a service at all it must be an Imperial service, for the various appointments in the Provincial Department could not appropriately be filled from the limited cadre of that department. For instance, the proposal to include factory and boiler inspectors in the service can be justified only on the assumption that these appointments will be held for limited periods by junior officers. In Madras it is not necessary to pay officers of this type on a scale rising to Rs. 1,500 per mensem (paragraph 334). It is possibly doubtful whether all the different appointments required for the items of work specified in paragraph 330 of the report can usefully be combined in a single service or filled by a uniform system of recruitment. But it is true that the majority of the officers of the service will require engineering experience, and on the whole I consider that it is best to have a single Imperial service. For one thing, if the Chemical service is an Imperial service, the members of the Industrial service will claim the same status, and for another I think that the disadvantages inherent in a small isolated service are greater than those of centralization. On the whole therefore I think that the idea of an Imperial Industrial Service may be accepted on the understanding that the Local Government will be consulted before any officer is removed from or transferred to its province. The question is not a pressing one, for it will be a long time before arrangements are made for the adequate training of Mechanical Engineers in India, and in the meantime I presume that the service will continue to be recruited by the system of judicious opportunism, the Government of India acting as a sort of central exchange in the matter of appointments.

20. The Provincial Department of Industries.—In Madras it is not necessary to argue the general question whether the Department of Industries should be developed. The Government of Madras has always shown the way to other Local Governments and the Government of India in its industrial policy, and the Commission has paid us the compliment of basing its recommendations very largely on the policy hitherto followed in Madras. Nor do I think it necessary (nor indeed proper) to offer any remarks at this stage on the points raised in paragraphs 311 and 313 of the report regarding the qualifications and pay of the Director of Industries. The questions requiring immediate consideration are:—

- (i) the functions of the department,
- (ii) in particular the proposal that agricultural engineering should be transferred back to the Department of Industries;
- (iii) the proposal to establish a Board of Industries; and
- (iv) the suggestions of the Commission as regards the relations between the Director of Industries and Government.

It must be obvious that much could be written on each of these questions, but as I have particularly been asked to submit my views at a very early date and as I understand that the Hon'ble Mr. Low will be visiting Madras next month to discuss controversial points with Government, I think that it will be sufficient if I merely indicate my opinion and give very briefly the reasons on which it is based.

Its Functions.—The ideas of the Commission regarding the main lines of work of the Department of Industries are explained in paragraph 306 of the report. (a) calls for no remark at this stage. In (b) the most important proposals relate to the collection and distribution of commercial and industrial information and to work connected with Government stores. These proposals will be dealt with separately.

22 Industrial and Technical Education.—(c) is important as it raises the controversial question whether industrial and technical education should be controlled by the Department of Industries or the Department of Public Instruction. The Industrial Conference of 1908 defined industrial instruction as "instruction in the performance of definite operations not necessarily involving the teaching of general principles but only of their application" and stated that the object of technical education was to train students to apply theoretical principles to practical purposes. It recommended that the control of both industrial instruction and technical education should rest with the Department of Industries, but eventually a compromise was effected. It was decided (G. O. No. 1625-Revenue, dated 18th June 1909):—

- (i) that the School of Arts and the Reformatory School should be retained under the control of the Department of Public Instruction;
- (ii) that schools where the education was purely of a commercial character should remain under the Education Department, and
- (iii) that in the case of schools where the instruction was purely intellectual or commercial and partly manual or technical, the principle should be followed that if the training was predominantly intellectual or commercial, the school should remain under the Educational Department, whereas if it was predominantly manual or technical, it should be transferred to the Department of Industries.

As the result of these orders certain schools were made over to the Department of Industries, and the orders have worked quite well. Every now and then a doubtful case has arisen, but the Director of Public Instruction and I have never had any difficulty in coming to a decision. The general effect is that I look after industrial education and as regards technical education (apart from the Engineering College) there is not any. Separate arrangements are proposed for colleges (paragraph 178), and in regard to industrial and technical education, it is evident from Chapter X of the report that the Commission contemplates chiefly handicraft schools and the provision of facilities for training artisans, foremen and mechanical engineers. In the handicraft schools the main object will be the imparting of manipulative skill. In the training of artisans, foremen and mechanical engineers the training will consist partly of workshop training and partly of class instruction. The intensity of the class instruction will naturally vary with the class of student under instruction, but in all these cases stress is laid on the prime necessity of workshop training. The training of craftsmen, artisans and foremen clearly, I consider, should rest with the Department of Industries, and I think myself that the same remark applies to the training of mechanical engineers. The Director of Public Instruction should of course be consulted as regards the class instruction, but the Director of Industries is more likely to be able to arrange for the workshop training. In many ways he will be brought into close touch with the owners of workshops, and his department will be better equipped for the supervision of the workshop training. Further, the provision of proper technical education is one of the first conditions of industrial development in India, and the Director of Industries necessarily will be far more interested in the subject than the Director of Public Instruction. I think therefore that Government may accept generally the proposition that as proposed by the Commission in paragraph 177, the control of Technical and Industrial education should vest in the Department of Industries. Government of course will reserve the right of deciding whether particular schools should be controlled by the Education or Industries Department such as Reformatory Schools and the School of Arts.

23. Administration of Factory, Boiler and Electricity Acts.—The fourth section of the department's work is the control of the staff employed in the local administration of the Factory, Boiler and Electricity Acts and the furnishing of advice to Government on the industrial and commercial aspects of the Mines Act and Mining rules. It seems unnecessary to discuss these proposals as far as they relate to the administration of the Factory and Boiler Acts. They are obviously proper, and the mineral wealth of a country is such an important factor in industrial development that every one will agree, I think, that the Director of Industries should be consulted to the extent suggested by the Commission. The control of the staff engaged in the local administration of the Electricity Act is a more doubtful question. But personally I agree with the Commission for the reasons given in paragraphs 228 and 229 of the report. The Department of Industries exists for the purposes of helping existing industries as well as of fostering new ones and is likely to view the questions that come up from the right point of view.

24. Agricultural Engineering.—It will be seen from paragraph 307 of the report that the Commission strongly urges the retransfer of the Pumping and Boring Department to the Department of Industries. This is an important question which Government will no doubt desire to have separately discussed. I note however that I am strongly in favour of the Commission's proposal. The reasons for the transfer to the Agricultural Department are stated in Mr. Chadwick's letter printed in G. O. No. 524-Revenue, dated the 7th March 1916. I am not prepared to deny that there was strength in the case presented by Mr. Chadwick to Government. But the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Mr. Chadwick based his case largely on the assumption that he would be able to secure an Agricultural Engineer who at once was a highly skilled Mechanical Engineer and possessed expert knowledge of agriculture under Indian conditions. In point of fact he secured a man who occupied, I believe, a comparatively subordinate position in the Drainage Department of the Madras Corporation. Nor do I admit that this was a mere accident. Isolated posts offering no prospects of advancement are always difficult to fill, and even if Mr. Chadwick had secured the type of man he wanted, there would have been perpetual difficulty in replacing him when he went on leave or retired. In my view, an officer must be trained for a job of this kind, a large Mechanical Engineering Department offers the best training ground and a wider field of selection and further overcomes the difficulty of isolation and want of prospects. At any rate the fact remains that now that the Agricultural Department has got its way and has its own Agricultural Engineer, I do not believe that applications for borings or for installations are disposed of with greater promptitude or with greater attention to agricultural conditions than in the days when the Pumping and Boring Department was a branch of the Department of Industries. On the other hand, the present system has led to grave administrative inconveniences. Instead of one large self-contained service, we have two weak services. Both suffer from the inevitable disabilities of small services—want of prospects, discontent and restlessness, and inadequate supervision. Further as G. O. No. 1275, dated 3rd May 1917, shows, it is difficult precisely to define the limits of the activities of two departments, and there are overlapping and duplication of staff. This is particularly the case in the working of the compounding system. Mr. Stuart has his staff of supervisors and mechanics engaged in inspecting oil-engines driving pumps. I have my staff of supervisors and mechanics engaged in inspecting oil-engines driving rice hullers and cotton gins. The work is identical—either staff could do the other's work. I entirely agree that it is most important that the Agricultural Department should be consulted before pumps are installed. At present, I suppose, that applications are first considered by the Circle Officer of the Agricultural Department, and then forwarded with his remarks to the Agricultural Engineer. The only difference would be that the applications would be forwarded to an Industrial Engineer. There would be no loss of time, and in all essentials the procedure would be precisely the same. I entirely agree again that there is scope for most useful work in adapting modern agricultural machinery to Indian conditions. The question inevitably will become more and more important as prices rise and wages go up, and I entirely agree that it is sufficiently important to demand the full time of a highly-skilled engineer working in the closest possible touch with the Agricultural Department. But if it be granted that the Department of Industries is to be developed into the highly skilled technical department contemplated by the Commission, obviously the Agricultural Engineer instead of being an isolated officer attached to the Agricultural Department should be one of the Industrial Engineers of the Department of Industries who, if they make good, will have the prospect of promotion to high administrative posts. I cannot see that there would be any difficulty in arranging for one or more of these Industrial Engineers to work in collaboration with the Department of Agriculture. One of the most important recommendations of the Commission is that the Department of Industries should be equipped to deal with power plants and machines of all kinds, and it is particularly important in Madras where the trend of industrial development undoubtedly lies in the direction of the supersession of hand labour by small power installations. The present system of splitting up the work which is primarily engineering work between the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Industries is open to the administrative objections I have pointed out, and if the system is continued, the development of the Department of Industries on its natural lines will be stunted and hampered. One large Department independent of the Public Works Department for its staff, offering in itself reasonable prospects of promotion and linked up intimately with other similar departments in India is obviously preferable to two small Departments, and I am strongly of opinion that the Commission's recommendations should be accepted.

25. The Proposed Board of Industries.—This question is discussed in paragraphs 308 and 309 of the report. Public opinion is in favour of some sort of board, and for this reason alone I think that we must have a board. Government moreover are already committed to this course, and the only reason why we have not got a board now is that I have been preoccupied with Munitions work. For this reason I consider that the only practical question now is what sort of board we should have. I should prefer a mere advisory board and I do not agree that it would be difficult to get responsible and competent men to sit on such a board. But the mere fact that the Commission has expressed an authoritative opinion in favour of a board which must be consulted on certain specified subjects and whose advice cannot be disregarded without a reference to the Local Government makes it difficult merely to appoint an advisory board. I consider that we should ascertain from the Director of Industries, United Provinces, the precise functions laid down for the Board of Industries in that province, and that for the present Government should merely express its willingness to consider the appointment of a similar Board in Madras.

26. Relations of the Director of Industries with the Local Government.—In paragraph 312 of the report, the Commission proposes that the Director of Industries should ex-officio be a Secretary to Government for commercial and industrial subjects. This is a question on which every one naturally will have his own views, and I doubt if Government will want my opinion. Personally I think that the balance of advantage is against the suggestion. In my opinion, the head of a department should put his departmental point of view. Government naturally will attach due weight to that point of view, but in arriving at its decision must take other and wider considerations into account. This I imagine is the justification for the system under which Secretaries and Under-Secretaries criticize proposals of the Board of Revenue. The objection might perhaps be waived in view of the advantage of short circuiting work and bringing the Director of Industries into closer touch with his member, but there are other practical points to be considered. The Director of Industries will not be in the same office as the Secretariat, he is a touring officer, and he does not and should not accompany Government to the Hills. Again in time he will probably be a technical man recruited from the Industrial Service and technical men, whatever their other virtues, are not always skilled in the technique of Secretariat work.

27. Local Purchase of Government Stores.—Chapter XII of the report may be consulted. It is certain that the best way of encouraging Indian industries is to buy from the manufacturing firms. My experience is that European business concerns in this country are apathetic in this matter. They have always been in the habit of importing what they want from the United Kingdom and they are very ignorant of the manufacturing resources of India. It is not always their fault. It is no use, for instance, for them to offer for sale Punjab cutlery: their customers will have Sheffield cutlery, and it may be taken as certain that for many years to come they will go on importing their requirements from the United Kingdom. The United Kingdom moreover is a very different place from what it was five years ago. Its workshops have been modernised, old machinery has been ruthlessly scrapped, and the country is far better equipped for an aggressive foreign trade. It is going to be a difficult business, therefore, to keep Indian industries alive, and it is absolutely essential that Government should take no strong line in the matter of the local purchase of Government stores. A considerable amount of experience has already been gained in this direction by the Indian Munitions Board, and I see no reason why followed by the Indian Munitions Board should not be improved and developed. Centralization is unavoidable. Orders must be bulked if only to get the advantage of buying wholesale and it is bad policy artificially to foster provincial industries by buying inferior articles at a higher price when better articles can be obtained at a lower price elsewhere in India. There need be no fear that local industries will be neglected, specially if a branch of the Central Stores Department is included in the local department of industries. The Provincial Director can be trusted to fight for his own local industries. I have no exact idea of the volume of the annual indents of the different departments in Madras, but it is probably quite large enough to justify the establishment of a stores branch of the Department of Industries. But at present it is not necessary to go into details. Government, I think, may safely agree to the principle of the Commission's proposals, subject to the remark that it should be given an opportunity of criticizing the recommendations of the small expert committee suggested in paragraph 196 of the report.

28. Commercial and Industrial Intelligence.—The practical effect of the proposals contained in Chapter XI of the report appears to be that certain statistics which have hitherto, I think, been collected, published and commented on mainly by the Board of Revenue should in future be dealt with by the Department of Industries. Among such statistics may be mentioned those relating to railborne trade, minerals, road and river traffic, production, employment and prices of articles of industrial importance. These proposals will require detailed examination. For the present all that it seems necessary to say is that the report contemplates a more or less expert Department of Industries advising Government on all matters concerning commerce and industries and that if Government accept this view, it seems to follow that the department should collaborate with the Director of Commercial and Industrial Intelligence in compiling and commenting on information relating to industries and trade. The principle of the proposal seems right.

29. I have another reference from Government (No. 796-I-18—1, dated 2nd November 1918) on the subject of this report. I do not think, however, that any special reply to it is necessary, and I propose to examine the report in detail and to address Government separately on the various recommendations made.

No. 1621-Ag. (Revenue), dated Peshawar, the 1st May 1919.

From—The HON'BLE SIR GEORGE ROOS-KRFPPEL, G.C.I.E., K.C.S.I., Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, North-West Frontier Province,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

I HAVE the honour to refer to Government of India, Commerce and Industry Department, letter No. 589-D., dated 7th December 1918, relating to the Industrial Commission's report and asking for an expression of my views on certain general proposals for the establishment of Imperial and Provincial Departments of Industries.

2. As has already been brought to notice in connection with the enquiry of the Industrial Commission, industrial organization in this province to all intents and purposes is non-existent. Any commercial importance which can be claimed by the frontier districts is due now, as it has been in the past, to the fact that the ancient trade routes from Afghanistan and some of the Central Asian markets lie across them. The life of the great majority of the inhabitants is pastoral and agricultural, though there is no considerable surplus of agricultural products; capital and skilled labour are alike wanting; there are no industrial centres; with the exception of Peshawar there are no towns of importance. Only three privately owned factories (two cotton ginning and one cotton ginning and pressing) and one joint-stock industrial company are working and the operations of the latter in the province are limited to the extraction of a little coal dust in the Hazara district. The development of the natural resources of the North-West Frontier Province in respect of timber and minerals is, of course, a matter requiring the closest attention, but from paragraph 10 of the Government of India letter it is understood that this need not be discussed in relation to the proposal to establish a provincial department of industries.

3. In view of the above facts and the narrow scope of the industrial interests and the immediate industrial possibilities of the province, the creation of a provincial department cannot be considered and it does not seem of advantage, therefore, to discuss the connected questions with regard to the responsibilities of such a department, the recruitment of officers, the correlation of functions between the Imperial and Provincial Governments, etc. It can only be said that this province must certainly depend on the Government of India for such experts as may be required for the development of organized industries or for the investigation of its resources in raw materials. A well-equipped central organization, such as is referred to in paragraph 4 of the letter under reply is, therefore, the only arrangement which will meet the needs of the North-West Frontier Province.

4. In considering the practical administrative measures which may be taken for the development of the industries of the province with due regard to its circumstances and the resources of the Administration I have, however, had the advantage of the advice of Mr. Low, who visited the province last January and fully discussed the question. The conclusions which were reached as the result of this discussion were that attention might be directed advantageously by this Administration to the improvement of indigenous industries and that an industrial school might be established in Peshawar, with a subsidiary organization for teaching village artisans improved methods and the use of modern tools at their homes. It was also decided that an officer might be appointed for the control of industrial and agricultural work in the province who would supervise the school working under a qualified headmaster and the demonstration parties visiting villages. With regard to the industrial school it was agreed that the Central Provinces Government might be addressed and asked, if possible, to allow the Headmaster of the Nagpur school of the Handicrafts to visit this province and work out proposals for a similar scheme. I have since ascertained that as Mr. Cove, the Headmaster of the Nagpur School, is taking 9 months' leave he cannot be spared to visit Peshawar, but I trust that on his return it may be found practicable for the visit to be arranged. With respect to the appointment of an officer for the control of industrial and agricultural work it must be explained that at present the only officer available in this province for the purpose is the Revenue Commissioner, whose other duties preclude his detailed supervision of industrial education and development. Mr. Low was of opinion that on general grounds the linking of industrial and agricultural work under a single officer is a mistake, yet, in the peculiar circumstances of the North-West Frontier Province, he considered that such a scheme might work very well. He thought that an officer of the type at present working as deputy directors of agriculture in other provinces might be suitable for the above purpose. A man of this class, who had a fair knowledge of mechanical engineering and had had some experience, would be competent to supervise the working of a school of handicraft under a skilled headmaster and of peripatetic parties for demonstrating weaving, carpentry, etc., in the villages, while he would, of course, be fully able to control agricultural work. The appointment of this officer will be considered when the Industrial School is started.

No. 2050-Com., dated Calcutta, the 3rd May 1919.

From—The Hon'ble Mr. C. F. PAYNE, I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Commerce Department.

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

I AM directed to reply to your letter No. 584-D., dated the 8th December, 1918, regarding the report of the Indian Industrial Commission.

2. The Government of India lay emphasis on the vital importance of the development of the industries of this country, and while postulating that certain large questions must be handled by the Central Government, they admit that industrial development will mainly be the concern of the Local Governments. They therefore invite the opinion of the Governor in Council on the proposals made in Chapter XXI of the report of the Commission. Of these the following are more particularly mentioned in your letter under reply:—

- (i) The creation of an Imperial Industrial Service mainly composed of men who have been trained as mechanical engineers.

- (ii) The creation of a similar Imperial Chemical Service.
- (iii) The creation of a central organization for the purchase of stores under the Central Government, which will be supplemented by provincial agencies working under the Local Governments. It is suggested that the actual distribution of the organization between the Central and Local Governments should be left to a small committee to be appointed later.
- (iv) The acceptance by the Local Governments of the responsibility for the collection of local commercial and industrial intelligence.

The Government of India enquire whether these proposals commend themselves to the Governor in Council. They also raise the general questions of (a) the use that can be made of the experts who are to be recruited for the Imperial Service, (b) the relations between the Imperial and Provincial Departments of Industries, (c) the status of the expert officers already employed in Government service, and (d) the method and terms of recruitment of those who will be required for the new departments, though this point is reserved for subsequent discussion. It is announced that the Government of India contemplate the creation of a central department, which will consult this Government later with regard to the details of the proposals now made.

3. The recommendations of the Commission as to the organization required to initiate and carry on the policy advocated by them are contained in Chapters XXI and XXII of their report. Chapter XXII deals with the creation of an Imperial Department of Industries, the duties of which are defined in paragraphs 322 and 324. The Department will consist of a Member in charge, who will be assisted by an Indian Industries Board of three ordinary members, of which he will be the President. The usual Secretariat staff, including a Financial Adviser, will be attached to the Department, which will be located at the headquarters of the Government of India. The immediate recruitment of an Imperial Industrial Service to perform the functions enumerated in paragraph 330, and the immediate appointment of provincial Directors and Deputy Directors with subordinate staffs lent from the Imperial Service, are also proposed. Officers of the Industrial Service on recruitment will usually be assigned to a particular province, as in the case of other Indian Services, and will then come under the control of the Local Government. An officer so allotted would apparently serve out his full time in the province to which he is originally posted, unless transferred, for special reasons, by the Government of India. Apart from experts on particular subjects the rate of salary suggested for the mechanical engineer class is Rs. 450 monthly while on probation, and thereafter Rs. 500 rising by annual increments to Rs. 1,500. It is, however, recognised that, at first, individual selection for particular posts will be necessary until the normal recruitment for the Imperial Service takes effect.

4. Chapter XXI deals with the organization of the provincial departments, and it is on this that the opinion of this Government is more particularly invited. Briefly, the object aimed at is to bring under the new department all the existing commercial and industrial activities of Government, and to provide it with a staff that will be adequately equipped in scientific, technical and business knowledge, the administrative experience required being in the first instance furnished by the Director himself. Gradually the experts recruited for the Imperial Service will become trained in administration, and eventually the provincial Directors will be appointed from the ranks of that service. The proposals made for the organisation of the new department are as follows:—

- (i) The control of technical and industrial education will be the concern of the Local Governments, except for two central institutions maintained by the Central Department for high grade engineering, and for metallurgy and mineral technology respectively.
- (ii) The existing organisation of the Agricultural and Forest services and the Geological Survey will not be disturbed.
- (iii) The department will be entrusted with the collection and distribution of local commercial and industrial intelligence.

- (iv) The department will also take over the local administration of the Electric, Factories and Boilers Acts, and will advise Government on the industrial and commercial aspects of the Mines Act and of the rules for mining and prospecting leases.
- (v) The Co-operative Credit Department will be brought under the provincial Member in charge of Industries. This proposal is presumably open to further examination in the light of the decision as to transferred and reserved subjects under the Reforms Scheme.

5. In addition to the transfer of these activities to the new department, the Provincial Director will assume responsibility for the new work summarised in paragraphs 306 and 331. In order to enable him to deal with this the following staff is suggested. The Provincial Director will be a Secretary to Government and will be advised by an Advisory Board, of which he would be Chairman, comprising from six to twelve members, mainly non-official, who would have power to co-opt others and to appoint sub-committees. It is also suggested that local district committees should be constituted which would be in close touch with the Director and the Advisory Board. It is stated that the Provincial Director should at first be preferably an industrial or businessman, but that ultimately he will be promoted by selection from the Imperial Service. The salary suggested is Rs. 2,500—3,000, though at first a higher salary may have to be paid. He will have under him, in addition to the existing staff to be taken over, a Deputy Director on a salary of Rs. 1,000—1,500, three industrial engineers on salaries of Rs. 1,250 and Rs. 1,000, and a Commercial Intelligence Officer on a salary of Rs. 1,500. Chemists, for whom a salary of Rs. 300—500 is suggested, will be appointed when necessary, but ordinarily the chemical work, which will be mainly of an analytical character, will be done by the professors in technical colleges and schools, who will act as experts and consultants in their special subjects. In addition the department will have under it a certain number of Circle Officers with territorial charges throughout the province. These will be men with engineering qualifications, who will be appointed locally on salaries ranging from Rs. 200 to Rs. 700. A senior ministerial officer will be in charge of the office of the Director on a salary of Rs. 500. Ultimately, the staff of the provincial department will be as stated in paragraph 319, and detailed estimates of the expenditure are given in statements I and II of Chapter XXIII.

6. The Governor-General in Council regards the expediency of encouraging industrial development in this country as an issue which has already been admitted on all sides. The subject is technical and outside the experience of the ordinary officer, and further criticism of it would be a waste of time. It is also, in his opinion, a matter of great importance that something practical should now be done to give effect to the recommendations that have been invited and received not only from officers, committees and commissions specially appointed to report on this matter, but also from the public. Opinion has long been in favour of a forward policy in industrial matters, but hitherto the difficulty has been to determine the exact measures that should be adopted. For this purpose, presumably, the Industrial Commission, which was more or less an expert body, was appointed to advise as to methods. Their recommendations have now been received, and the Governor in Council is willing to accept their advice as better than any alternative that he can suggest. He is prepared to make a beginning on the lines advocated in their report, and wishes to do so as soon as possible, so far as the funds at the disposal of this Government will permit. But he is of opinion that for the future we must be guided by the experience gradually gained and that it will be useless to try to settle every detail before such a beginning is made. The essential matter at present is to create an organization which can advise Government as to the policy to be followed: developments will follow later. In view of these considerations the Governor in Council proposes to concentrate attention more on the steps that should be taken immediately than on any discussion as to the different points raised. In particular it seems to him that the relations between the provincial and Imperial departments will evolve themselves as experience is gained and that it is impossible to define the ideal arrangement a priori.

7. Until recently little has been done in the Presidency to assist in the development and encouragement of local industries. The position was surveyed on more than one occasion, but, as has been shown in paragraphs 110 and 111 of the Commission's report, little of a practical nature was evolved or given effect to. In 1909 sanction was obtained to the appointment of a Superintendent of Industries and Inspector of Technical and Industrial Institutions in Bengal, and it was expected that this step would lead to some industrial development. But from the start the energies of this officer were almost completely absorbed by his educational work. In time the encouragement and development of industries by means other than educational became a question of such outstanding importance that an application was made in this Government's letter No. 9-T.—Com., dated the 8th May 1915, for the appointment of a Director of Industries, who could get into touch with local industries and study their problems, and generally be in a position to give valuable advice and assistance hitherto lacking. Owing, however, to financial exigencies, the consideration of the question was deferred until 1917, when this Government again pressed the proposal of 1915 upon the urgent consideration of the Government of India in their letter No. 35-T.—Com., dated the 15th May. The present appointment of Director of Industries in Bengal was a direct result of the war. The organization of the Munitions Board, which was created on the 1st of April 1917, required provincial Controllers of Munitions in each circle, and the Government of India suggested that the two appointments should be combined, and that a Director of Industries should be appointed in Bengal who should also be the provincial Controller of Munitions under the Government of India. The proposal was accepted, and this Government agreed to bear the entire charges on account of the salary and allowance of the Director of Industries. The appointment, however, of Director of Industries is only a temporary one, and for the present co-terminous with that of Controller of Munitions.

8. The views of this Government are not invited on the Imperial organization proposed, but on the grounds already stated I am to say that the Governor in Council accepts this as a suitable basis for future development. With regard to the provincial organization suggested in the report of the Industrial Commission, many of the points raised can appropriately await discussion hereafter. Among these the Governor in Council includes the suggestions that the provincial Director of Industries should take over agricultural engineering, that the Co-operative Credit Department should be placed under the provincial Member or Minister in Charge of Industries, that local district committees should be constituted, and that the provincial Director should occupy the position of a Secretary to the Government. He accepts the main proposition of a provincial Director assisted by an Advisory Board and with functions on the lines suggested, and proposes immediately to concentrate attention on the manner in which the duties stated in paragraph 306 can best be handed over to the new department. These functions may be classified as follows:—

- (a) The encouragement and development of industries on the lines of paragraph 306 (a) and (b) in part.
- (b) The collection and distribution of commercial and industrial intelligence.
- (c) The purchase and inspection of stores.
- (d) The control of technical and industrial education.
- (e) The administration of the Electricity Act.
- (f) The administration of the Factories Act.
- (g) The administration of the Boiler Act.
- (h) The administration of the Mines Act.

The existing position as regards these various branches of provincial activity is indicated briefly below.

9. Such encouragement and development of industries in this Presidency as has hitherto been given was really the direct result of the war. The work of the Munitions Board in Calcutta increased very rapidly after the appointment of the Director of Industries. This work was largely administrative and generally of great urgency, and the local Director has been almost entirely occupied with work done as Controller of Munitions, and has had no opportunity to organize the local Industrial Department, except in so far as such action was necessary to meet urgent war demands. During the last two years conditions have been abnormal, and the whole manufacturing resources of the province have been directed to supplying the needs of the armies overseas. It is, therefore, very difficult to separate the industrial work done by the Director of Industries in the province from the work done for the Indian Munitions Board. He has been chiefly occupied with the investigation and encouragement of industries brought into prominence by the actual needs of the moment, and more particularly by the increasing demands for the army and the restriction of imports imposed by the priority procedure. For instance, much has been done to encourage the tanning of leather, the manufacture of jute-mill and tea-garden stores, and porcelain and pottery, and a great part of the Director's work has been directed towards providing the supply and transport of the raw materials required by the local manufacturers. Practically all essential materials have been controlled, and the assistance of the department has been regularly invoked by firms requiring supplies of these. As a result, manufacturers in this province have made much use of the advice and assistance of the department, and His Excellency in Council considers that advantage should be taken of the confidence which has been established and that a nucleus of the proposed new department of industries should be appointed immediately to carry on the work which would otherwise cease with the demobilisation of the Indian Munitions Board.

10. At present no authority under the Local Government exists for the collection and distribution of commercial and industrial intelligence. The Government of India have an agency for the purpose in this Presidency in the person of the Director-General of Commercial Intelligence, and in connection with the reorganization of that officer's department this Government in its letter No. 5819-Com., dated the 8th November 1914, made a recommendation for the retention of the central collecting agency with the Government of India and the establishment of a staff of trade correspondents at all trade centres working under the Local Government and supplying information to the central agency ordinarily through the Local Government. It was then contemplated that the provincial Director of Industries should have functions distinct from, though intimately connected with, those of the trade correspondents, but in the light of the proposals now made the Governor in Council sees no reason why the provincial Director of Industries should not assume the responsibility for this particular branch of commercial and industrial work.

11. Prior to the constitution of the Indian Munitions Board and to the difficulties experienced during the war in obtaining articles from the United Kingdom, supplies of stores for the public services were regulated by the rules promulgated by the Government of India, Commerce and Industry Department, Resolution No. 5829—5876-11, dated the 21st July 1913. In accordance with them, provided certain conditions are fulfilled, various articles, whether manufactured in India or not, or whether manufactured from Indian or imported material, should be purchased in India; while other articles not manufactured, or which cannot be purchased, in India should be obtained on indent from the Director-General of Stores, India Office, London. It is also permissible for certain classes of articles to be purchased outside India. Indents for stores on the Director-General have hitherto been submitted through the Government of India, except in the case of those officers to whom the power has been delegated to indent direct on the Director-General, but with the creation of the Indian Munitions Board indents have been submitted through that channel.

In connection with the suggested central stores department the results of the enquiry to be made by the expert committee will be awaited; but the Local Government are of opinion that if the position of the local Director is to be adequately maintained, it is desirable that he should play an important part in the matter of supplies, which should not be unduly centralized.

12. As regards the control of technical and industrial education, this at present rests with the Director of Public Instruction, under whom there is one whole-time officer, known as the Superintendent of Industries and Inspector of Technical and Industrial Schools, on a salary of Rs. 1,000—100—1,500 a month. This officer's duties are to inspect and report on all institutions for technical and industrial instruction. The duties of supervision and inspection exercised by him cover five schools of art, five schools of engineering and surveying, and 67 technical and industrial schools, in addition to the central weaving institute at Serampore, the Principal of which himself supervises generally the work of five minor weaving schools. Among other duties, the Inspector is also (i) Secretary to the Joint-Technical Examination.

Board; (iv) Assistant Director of Public Instruction for technical and industrial instruction, in which capacity he has to formulate all cases connected with these branches of education for submission to the Director of Public Instruction; (iii) a member of the Governing Body of the Board of Visitors of the Civil Engineering College of the final B Class Examination Board and of the Mining Educational Advisory Board; (iv) Secretary to the Amin Examination Board which has been formed for conducting the examinations of survey schools; and (v) Secretary to the local City and Guilds' Technological Examinations Board. The post is outside the cadre of the Indian Educational Service.

13. The Indian Electricity Act, IX of 1910, and the rules framed under the Act at present fall under the administration of the Public Works Department, Roads and Buildings Branch, in Bengal. The Inspector under the Act and his staff are also appointed by the Public Works Department. In addition to his duties under the Act and the rules, the Inspector is technical advisor to the Local Government in all matters relating to electricity. He is also advisor in all matters connected with electricity schemes for power, lighting and fans in Government buildings outside the area of Calcutta; he prepares estimates for, calls for tenders for, and passes, work of this nature carried out on contract. In Calcutta itself, however, a separate Electrical Division exists for the work undertaken and maintained by Government in their buildings. The Government of India has already made enquiries in connection with the scheme for the reorganization of the Public Works Department as to whether this inspector and his establishment should remain subject to the administration of the Public Works Department, and the Governor in Council is considering the matter in that connection, but he would here remark that he sees no objection to transferring the administration of the Act, together with the inspector and his staff, to the proposed Industrial Department. He would, however, leave all matters relating to electric light, fan and power installations in Government buildings in the whole province under the control of the Public Works Department.

14. The administration of the Indian Factories Act, 1911, is at present entrusted to a whole-time staff of factory inspectors with duties extending over Bengal, Bihar and Orissa and Assam, and consisting of a Chief Inspector on a salary of Rs. 800—50—1,000 a month, two inspectors on Rs. 400—30—700 a month with, at the moment, a temporary inspector on Rs. 490 a month. There is also one whole-time certifying surgeon in receipt of Rs. 600—20—800 a month, exercising jurisdiction over factories within a certain area in which a large number of children are employed. The department is at present under the direct control of Government, with no intermediate authority between Government and the Chief Inspector. It is the duty of the various officers to examine the premises, machinery and prescribed registers, to take such evidence of persons as may be deemed necessary, and to exercise such other powers as may be required for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of the Act. In short, the inspectors are responsible for the administration of the Act within the area for which they are appointed. They are required to inspect within such area every textile factory at least four times a year and every other factory at least once a year, and to satisfy themselves that the provisions of the Act and of the rules framed under the Act relating to the health, safety, hours of labour, etc., of the persons employed therein are being observed. The whole-time certifying surgeon, and other medical officers authorized within their jurisdiction to exercise the power of a certifying surgeon under the Act are required to examine children desirous of being employed in a factory, and to grant them certificates of age and physical fitness for such employment.

15. The Steam Boilers and Prime Movers Act, 1879, is administered at present by the Local Government in the Marine Department through the Steam Boiler Commission. This Commission is a mixed body of officials and non-officials, with the Commissioner of Police as their permanent President. An Inspector of factories is Vice-President and Secretary, and receives an allowance for his work with the Commission. There is a staff of eight inspectors, including a senior inspector on Rs. 500—20—600, two inspectors on Rs. 450—10—500, and five inspectors (one temporary) on Rs. 350—10—450. The charges of the department are met from the Boiler Fund, which is a local fund financed by the receipts from fees for the inspection of boilers. The duties of the officers are the inspection of boilers and the grant of certificates of fitness of these boilers. It is now proposed to make the Boiler Department a department of Government under the control of the provincial Director of Industries, and pending a full decision on this question a proposal has been submitted to the Government of India for the appointment of a Chief Inspector on Rs. 1,000—50—1,250, who will replace the present Vice-President and act as Secretary to the Boiler Commission.

16. The establishment of the Department of Mines, consisting of one Chief Inspector and four inspectors, is under the control of the Government of India. The local jurisdiction of each inspector of mines, other than the Chief Inspector, is, however, detailed by this Government under the Indian Mines Act, 1901, the Chief Inspector having jurisdiction under the Act throughout British India. The duties of the inspectors consist chiefly of investigating the conditions existing within mines. They are also, on the recommendation of the Chief Inspector, appointed by this Government under the Land Acquisition (Mines) Act, 1885, to investigate and report on the working of the minerals under land acquired by Government under the Land Acquisition Act.

17. These are the various activities which would come within the scope of the Department of Industries, and the Governor in Council proposes as a beginning the following permanent arrangements:—

- (1) The creation of a provincial Board of Industries.
- (2) The appointment of a Director of Industries on a salary not exceeding Rs. 3,000 a month.
- (3) The appointment of a Deputy Director of Industries on a salary not exceeding Rs. 1,500 a month.
- (4) The appointment of five Circle Officers on salaries of Rs. 200 to Rs. 700 a month.
- (5) The subsequent gradual organization of the department round this nucleus on the lines advocated in the Commission's report.

This will be sufficient for a start in the new work to be undertaken by the department including the collection and distribution of commercial and industrial intelligence, and the purchase and inspection of stores; but His Excellency in Council also contemplates the appointment of an industrial engineer on a salary not exceeding Rs. 1,250 a month, and a commercial intelligence officer on a salary not exceeding Rs. 1,500, as soon as suitable men can be obtained.

At present the existing establishment of the Industrial Department consists only of the temporary Director and his establishment, at a monthly expenditure of Rs. 4,050. The appointment of the officers mentioned above, together with their necessary establishments, will involve an additional expenditure of Rs. 16,200, as shown in the attached statement, bringing the total expenditure of the department to a sum of approximately Rs. 2,43,000 per annum, an annual increase of Rs. 1,94,400 on the existing expenditure. Provision sufficient to cover the cost of the whole establishment exists in the budget of the current year; and if sanction be given to the entailment of the above officers, the Governor in Council will at once proceed to make the necessary arrangements. The proposals, in so far as they cover existing departments, involve an expenditure, which is shown in the budget of 1919-20, to the following extent:—

The Boiler Inspection Department is now a local fund (the proposed to make this a Government) department, the present expenditure for which amounts to Rs. 85,000, but this will necessarily be increasing on the transfer of the department to Government and the further expenditure have been raised by the Public Services Commission. The expenditure on the Factories will also require strengthening, while the emoluments of the Inspector will be increased as a result of the recommendations of the Public Services Commission. In addition it will be necessary to make provision for experiments and demonstrations. The budget of the current year expenditure on a research tannery, which has been established, and an un-allotted sum of half-a-lakh of rupees for schemes of industrial development not yet elaborated.

18. The early orders of the Government of India upon these proposals are now requested in order that the Local Government may proceed with the development of the department.

 to the Government of Burma, Development Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

I AM directed to submit the views of the Local Government on the observed. The proposals set forth in paragraph 9 of your letter No. 589-D. of the authorized with 1918, regarding the establishment of an Imperial and Provin-surgeon under the Department of Industries.

present by the Lieutenant-Governor is entirely in favour of the creation or Steam Boiler Co. of Provincial Departments of Industries, and he approves non-officials, with the recommendations in Chapter XXI of the Report on the An Inspector of Industrial Commission regarding the lines to be followed. He

 The charges of will be secured in Burma by placing all three departments fund financed by Development Commissioner regarding whose appointment the duties of the Governor is separately addressing the Government of India.

This officer will be a member of the Board of Development—one of the four Boards with which His Honour in his Reform Scheme for Burma proposes to carry on the government of the province. The Board will occupy a place analogous to that of a Member of the Executive Council in other provinces. His Honour agrees that the Director should be advised and assisted on the lines suggested in paragraph 308 of the report by an Advisory Body of the strength and composition outlined in paragraph 309 and that the members of this body should receive travelling allowances and fees for attending meetings (paragraph 310). The nucleus of such a body already exists in Burma in the Provincial Resources Advisory Committee which was created in connection with the efforts made to develop the material contribution of the province to the war. As regards the Director of Industries (paragraph 311), the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the first holder of the appointment in Burma will probably have to be an official; he agrees however that ultimately he should be a member of the proposed Imperial Industrial Service. The Commission recommends (paragraph 312) that the Director should be appointed a Secretary to the Local Government for commercial and industrial subjects. Sir Reginald Craddock is not prepared to accept this suggestion offhand. The arguments in its support go too far; they tell equally in favour of every head of a department being the Secretary to Government in his department, and if carried to their logical conclusion would involve the inclusion in the Secretariat of every departmental head and the abolition of the present Secretariat system save for subjects not under the charge of any separate officer. It would be difficult to justify any differentiation in this respect between the Director of Industries and the heads of the Departments of Agriculture, Forests and Co-operation, to mention no more. His Honour deprecates the imposition of too many duties on the new appointment at the outset. The Burma Director of Industries, as he conceives him, will for several years after the creation of the department be mainly a touring officer. If he is also the Secretary to Government in his department he will either be an inefficient Secretary or an inefficient head of his department. It may be possible in time to appoint him a Joint-Secretary to Government, Development Board, but His Honour is not prepared to make a final pronouncement on this point. It must be remembered that the Director of Industries will ultimately be a member of the Imperial Industrial Service. Members of that service will not necessarily be distinguished by aptitude for Secretariat work, and an inefficient Secretary may easily prove a serious handicap to the Department of Industries. The Director will in any case work in close personal touch with the Development Commissioner and through him with the Development Board. The pay of the post might be fixed at Rs. 2,500—100—3,000; the lower salary of Rs. 2,000—2,500 suggested in paragraph 313 of the report will not suffice in Burma. The backward condition of industries both large and small in the province renders it essential that a detailed survey of the possibilities of industrial development should be started and carried through with reasonable expedition. To assist the Director in this task two Deputy Directors will be needed in Burma from the outset. This is the view of the Provincial Industrial Committee which was created to prepare material for the use of the Industries Commission and the Lieutenant-Governor concurs in it. The incremental pay of Rs. 1,000—1,500 suggested in paragraph 314 of the report will probably suffice for the Deputy Directors, who, at the outset will be recruited from Government services. The further organization of the department and the appointment of Industrial Engineers, Chemists and Circle Officers (paragraphs 315-17) should be postponed until the preliminary examination is complete. The province already possesses an Agricultural Engineer who is now under the control of the Director of Agriculture; as suggested in paragraph 307 of the report he will come under the Department of Industries as soon as it is formed.

3. (b) Whether the responsibilities of Provincial Departments of Industries should include—

(1) the local purchase of Government stores subject to such degree of centralization as may be decided upon after consideration of the report of a special committee; and

(2) the collection of local commercial and industrial intelligence.

(1) Sir Reginald Craddock has no doubt that the local purchase of stores should be one of the duties of the Provincial Department of Industries. This subject is dealt with by the Commission in Chapter XII of their report where they conclude (paragraph 197) that there should be an Imperial Department of Stores with Provincial agencies forming part of the Provincial Departments of Industries. While they suggest that the whole question should be examined by a small expert committee, they contemplate the following procedure. Indents for stores required by provincial officers will be examined by the Provincial Director of Industries. He will arrange for the purchase of such items as can be bought with advantage either locally in the province itself, or in another province of India through the provincial Director of Industries, and will forward indents for the remaining items to the Controller-General of Stores who will arrange for their purchase in India or through some buying agency in England as he thinks best. The Lieutenant-Governor apprehends that some modification of this general scheme will prove necessary in the case of Burma. The geographical isolation of the province differentiates it from the other provinces of India. Communications between Burma and India are a practical monopoly of one powerful steamship company with the result that the rates of freight between Burmese and Indian ports are out of all proportion high in comparison with rates on lines where competing agencies are available. For this reason it has frequently been found cheaper to purchase through the Stores Department of the India Office many articles which an Indian province could procure more cheaply in India. So far as Burma is concerned, a central purchasing agency in India is not a necessity. A central agency for the collation and distribution of information would doubtless be useful, but even this is not obligatory if each Provincial Director keeps his fellow-Directors acquainted with the manufacturing resources of his province. The question whether it is cheaper to purchase in England or in India is one which must be decided with reference to the peculiar position of this province. English stores are usually shipped direct to Burma and do not pass through an Indian port. Information regarding shipping charges and shipping lines from England to Indian ports is of no value so far as Burma transactions are concerned, and a Controller-General of Stores in India would be in a less favourable position than the Burma Director of Industries for studying the relative advantages of import from England and import from India. His Honour therefore recommends that if the proposed Imperial Department of Stores is created, the Controller-General of Stores in India should not control the purchase of stores for Burma, though he should be prepared to furnish the Burma Director of Industries with advice regarding the most suitable sources of supply in India itself. Liberty should be left to the Burma Director to decide in the case of indents for stores which are not manufactured in Burma whether to obtain them from England or from India, and, in the latter case, to deal directly with the Provincial Director of the province whence the stores can be most cheaply supplied. The cost of carriage is a very heavy proportion of the total cost of imported stores; and it may frequently be cheaper to purchase higher priced stores at a centre whence the expenses of carriage to Burma are less than to purchase cheaper stores at a centre less favourably situated in regard to carriage.

His Honour concurs in the remarks of the Commission in paragraph 198 of their report regarding the importance of an efficient inspecting staff; but this work should, wherever possible, be left to provincial experts. Imperial experts will no doubt be required in India where eight provinces cannot all be provided with expert staffs of their own and where they exist Burma would always be grateful for their help and advice. But no one can live in Burma long without perceiving that experts of this kind are distant, inaccessible and often unappreciative of the local feelings. For example, the Burmans are anxious to see the development of industries in Burma, but they have not the slightest predilection for Indian goods as distinct from British. Economy is no doubt desirable, but circumlocution and delay imposed upon Burma in the mistaken notion that she prefers Indian Swadeshi goods will cause irritation instead of gratification.

(2) Sir Reginald Craddock agrees that the collection of local commercial and industrial intelligence should form part of the functions of Provincial Departments of Industries. He does not, however, accept the conclusion of the Commission in paragraph 184 of their report that outside Calcutta and Bombay the work can be done by the Provincial Director of Industries. He considers that Rangoon, no less than Calcutta and Bombay, requires a special Intelligence Officer. On the one hand, the size of the province and its vast potentialities demand the services of a Director whose duties do not preclude long absences from Rangoon; on the other hand, the importance of the commercial interests centred in Rangoon—after Bombay and Calcutta the chief port in the Indian Empire and the centre of the rice-milling and oil-refining industries in India—to His Honour's mind, clearly indicate that the collation of statistics of commercial and industrial intelligence will require the services of a special officer. The special officer might be a Personal Assistant to the Director of Industries, stationed permanently in Rangoon, in touch with all the commercial interests of the province and ready to attend to enquiries and to supply information in the absence of the Director and of his deputies on tour.

4. (c) What arrangements are most suitable for utilizing the officers of the proposed Indian services, industrial and chemical, in order to combine the advantages of a common system of recruitment, and central criticism in wider questions of research, with the control which Local Governments necessarily exercise in executive and administrative matters and to secure the fullest utilization by the Local Governments of their own staff on local problems?

The Lieutenant-Governor considers that the proposed Imperial Industrial and Chemical Services should be organized much on the lines of the Imperial Forest Department. Certain experts directly employed under the Government of India and the high administrative posts in the provinces would be borne on an India list. The remaining appointments would be on provincial cadres. Officers on recruitment would be assigned to specific provinces and would ordinarily be retained in these provinces throughout their service unless required by the Imperial Government to fill posts in the India list. Indian members of the service should not be posted to Burma. The Provincial Industrial Committee are unanimous on this point and the Lieutenant-Governor concurs with them so far as the Imperial Industrial Service is concerned. There is less objection to the employment of Indians in the Imperial Chemical Service, but even there His Honour would restrict their employment in Burma to very exceptional cases.

5. (d) What generally should be the relations between the Imperial and Provincial Departments?

The views of the Commission regarding the necessity for an Imperial Department of Industries and its functions are set out in Chapter XXII of their report. The Imperial Department is designed to provide the machinery required to ensure the uniform development that alone will make India self-contained both economically and for purposes of defence. It will ensure not only the production of raw materials but the organization on a large scale of manufacturing operations for the production of the articles necessary for this purpose. Sir Reginald Craddock agrees that if the Indian Empire is to be treated as a unit, so long as Burma forms part of that unit, the Government of India must remain responsible for the general industrial policy of the province. The possibility that Burma some day will form a separate unit should not, however, be overlooked. Geographically and ethnologically Burma is not a part of India. It is capable of independent development on lines of its own, and Sir Reginald Craddock is convinced that no steps should be taken in the development of the province which ignores the probability that, so far as can be foreseen, its ultimate destiny is separation from India. The account of Government's industrial policy in recent years which is given in Chapter VIII of the Commission's report indicates that the industrial backwardness of India is due, not to lack of enterprise on the part of Provincial Governments, despite the restrictions, financial and other, on their powers, but to the deliberate policy of the Imperial Government. The main function of the Imperial Department of Industries, as His Honour conceives it, should be to organize co-operation between the Provincial Departments in the various provinces with a view to economy of effort. Its guiding principle in its dealings with Provincial Departments should be to assist and not to control. It should deal with broad and general questions of policy and should confine interference with the activities of a Provincial Department to cases where these activities are set in a direction detrimental to Imperial interests in the widest sense. So far as possible it should work through the agency of Provincial Departments. Applicants for Government assistance, in industrial enterprises in the larger provinces, should ordinarily approach the Provincial Department, which will naturally invoke the assistance of the Imperial Department in matters beyond its capacity. The specialized institutions of research which the Commission favour in paragraph 130 of their report should be under provincial control. Such institutions will doubtless be located in those provinces which are most interested in the results attained. The interest of the Imperial Department in these institutions should take the form of subsidies towards their establishment and maintenance. So far as technical and industrial education is concerned the Commission rightly recommend (paragraph 305 of their report) that its control should lie entirely with Provincial Governments, subject to advisory inspection by an Imperial agency, but they foreshadow the need for the establishment of two central institutions under Imperial control, one for the highest class of instruction in engineering, and the other for metallurgy and mineral technology. Sir Reginald Craddock admits the need for these exceptions at the outset and for many years. But the time may come when the growth of local industrialism will demand the equipment of this province with local institutions of its own.

ANNEXURE 2 (1).

Summary of Local Governments' views on points mentioned in paragraph 9 of Mr. Ley's letter No. 589-D, of 7th December 1918.

Points.	Governments.	Replies.
(a) Whether Provincial Departments of Industries should be created or developed on the lines suggested by the Commission.	Assam ...	Accept.
	Bihar and Orissa	Strongly support proposal, but point out that financial resources of Local Government are insufficient to carry it out. Do not approve of idea that Director of Industries should be Secretary to Government.
	Central Provinces	Accept views of Commission ; desire to engage nucleus staff at once ; will consider best means of correlating industrial with other kindred departments when Reforms Scheme has been introduced.
	Punjab ...	Agree with Commission's recommendations, but think that functions of Department of Industries should include work of registration of Joint-Stock Companies, and more specific provision is needed for giving Education Department a voice in questions of general education included in technical and industrial training ; they also think that a Development Commissioner is wanted as Chairman of a Board of Industries, to secure co-ordination of industries with other related departments.
	United Provinces	Generally agree with proposals which are mainly on lines already followed in United Provinces, except that the Director of Industries should not be a Secretary to Government, and the Agricultural Engineer should not be transferred to the Department of Industries, at least at present.
	Bombay ...	Agree.
	Madras ...	Agree generally ; and specifically accept proposals of Commission in respect of control of technical and industrial education, but consider position of Board of Industries and relations of Director of Industries with Local Governments require decision in light of local conditions.
	North-West Frontier Province.	Only a very minor form of provincial organization is possible. This was worked out in discussion with Mr. Low and is accepted by the Government of the North-West Frontier Province.
	Bengal ...	Accept views of Commission, subject to further consideration of detail, and propose to entertain a nucleus staff and create a Board of Industries.
	Burma ...	Support Commission's scheme for Provincial Department of Industries, which should be co-ordinated with Agriculture and Co-operative Credit under the control of a Development Commissioner, who would himself be a member of the proposed Development Board. Are not in favour of making the Director a Secretary to Government.

Points.	Governments.	Replies.
(b) Whether responsibilities of department should include :	Assam ...	(i) Strongly support purchase of stores in India, but express no definite opinion on proposals for central purchasing organization. (ii) Agree.
(i) Local purchase of Government stores, subject to such degree of centralization as may be decided on after consideration of report of a special committee.	Bihar and Orissa	(i) Provisionally accept idea, provided Local Government has power to purchase all stores obtained in India. They admit that in practice order should be placed with central agency when economy could be effected. (ii) Agree.
(ii) The collection of commercial and industrial intelligence.	Central Provinces	(i) Agree, subject to consideration of report of special committee, and to necessity of encouraging local industries. (ii) Agree.
	Punjab ...	(i) Agree. (ii) Agree.
	United Provinces	(i) Agree with system of purchase in India through industrial departments, but are inclined to think that purchasing should be in hands of Provincial Departments and functions of central organization should be advisory. Agree that committee should be appointed to advise on degree of centralization necessary. (ii) Agree.
	Bombay ...	(i) Agree ; actual allocation of duties may await report of committee. (ii) Agree.
	Madras ...	(i) Agree, but hope they will be allowed to examine report of special committee. (ii) Agree.
	North-West Frontier Province.	(i) and (ii) No views.
	Bengal ...	(i) Agree, but think purchase of stores should not be unduly centralised. (ii) Agree.
	Burma ...	(i) Owing to geographical and political aloofness of Burma, recommend that Provincial Director of Industries should have a free hand to decide in case of articles not made in Burma, whether to buy them in England or in India, and that position of Controller-General of Stores in India, vis-à-vis the Director of Industries in Burma, should be advisory only. (ii) Support proposals, but desire a special provincial intelligence officer for Rangoon.

Points.	Governments.	Replies.
(c) What arrangements are most suitable for utilizing the officers of the proposed services, chemical and industrial.	Assam ...	Relations with Local Governments of members of all-India services should be the same as in case of agricultural and for forest services.
	Bihar and Orissa	Members of all-India services should be lent to the provinces on conditions similar to those obtaining in agricultural and forest services. Agree that all-India chemical and industrial services are needed.
	Central Provinces	Have no doubt of advantages of proposed services, having experienced difficulties described by Commission. But experts attached to Local Governments should remain ordinarily so attached throughout their services; appointment and promotion of Imperial officers within Provincial Departments should be matter for Local Governments who might also recruit men on special conditions; but such men should not become members of all-India service without sanction of Imperial Government.
	Punjab ...	Agree in necessity of an industrial service and of a chemical service, after allusion to criticism of certain local officers, which are not accepted. Think selection of new department should not be confined to young and inexperienced chemists, and would encourage formation of strong local school of chemistry for research and teaching in connection with university.
	United Provinces	Accept necessity of all-India scientific services, subject to their relations with Local Governments being on same lines as in case of agricultural, forest and other all-India services. They should be under complete control of Provincial Department and Local Government, and their relations with central heads of services should be advisory only. Local Government values advice of Imperial officers but should not be compelled to follow it. Do not accept idea proposed by Commission of sending officers of scientific services for 5 years to colleges or universities. Are opposed to idea of an industrial service, because appointments will not be very numerous, incumbents will have to perform great variety of duties, and qualifications of mechanical engineers will not be suitable for all these. Prefer separate time-scales of pay according to nature of duties. Agree with local Chamber of Commerce that expert advisers should be employed for particular works.
	Bombay ...	Recognise advantages of Imperial recruitment of industrial and scientific services; but as interim measure desire to recruit other suitable men. Further consideration is required as to staffing of educational institutions from scientific services.

Points.	Governments.	Replies.
(d) What generally should be the relations between Provincial and Imperial Departments.	Madras ...	Agree that such services are needed, on understanding that Local Governments should have same administrative relations with members of the services employed under them as in the case of other all-India services. Accept the necessity for an industrial service on lines laid down by Commission.
	North-West Frontier Province. Pro-	The province must rely on Imperial experts.
	Bengal ...	Agree in necessity for services, provided members assigned to provinces come under control of Local Governments and serve out their full time, unless transferred for special reasons.
	Burma ...	The proposed services should be organized on the lines of the Forest Department.
	Assam ...	Officers of Imperial Departments should be advisory in their relations with Provincial Departments.
	Bihar and Orissa	Not mentioned.
	Central Provinces.	Recognise general responsibility of Government of India for industrial policy, but this responsibility should be exercised by advice and personal discussion, which are an absolute necessity to Local Governments. Imperial Government should not interfere in matters of executive details within a province, save where it is necessary to guard extra provincial interest from serious loss. Local Governments should not have to submit the schemes for sanction, merely for the Imperial Government to see that their schemes do not offend against certain principles governing relations of Imperial and Local Governments.
	Punjab ...	In matters of general administration, control of Local Government should be paramount, but Imperial Department should exercise a very close supervision in all technical matters where expert knowledge is necessary.
	United Provinces.	Agree to Imperial Department, if its functions are advisory and if it is likely to prove helpful. Local Governments must have full power to initiate research and industrial experiment, except in cases where other provinces are likely to be seriously injured. Government of India will be kept informed of what Local Government is doing, so that latter may not have to apply for sanction. Government of India will also retain right to undertake research and industrial enterprise, especially in cases where safety of India is concerned and where Local Governments cannot find funds.
	Bombay ...	Imperial co-ordination should generally be exercised by system of advice and discussion; control should be limited to such financial and other checks as are finally accepted for Provincial Governments generally, and to special cases of paramount importance for India as a whole.

Points.	Governments.	Replies.
	Madras ...	Functions of Imperial Department should be mainly advisory, and Local Governments should be allowed full power of initiating work. But Imperial Department should also take up work which Local Governments are unable to perform, and might control development of certain selected industries for special reasons.
	North-West Frontier Province.	No views.
	Bengal ...	Accept Imperial organization proposed as a suitable basis for future development. Relations between Provincial and Imperial Departments should be left to develop themselves as experience is gained.
	Burma ...	Agree as to general responsibility of Government of India for industrial policy, so long as Burma remains part of Indian Empire. This responsibility should be exercised by guidance rather than control, interference being confined to cases where Provincial activities threaten to prove detrimental to Imperial interests.

ADDRESS BY SIR THOMAS HOLLAND.

Sir Thomas Holland opened the conference with the following address:—

I have asked for this privilege of meeting you in conference, firstly, to thank you for the help you have all given the Munitions Board in taking up problems that seemed to be of urgent importance during the war, and, secondly, to discuss with you various suggestions that have been made as to the way in which it will be most profitable to organise chemical research especially in its bearing on the utilisation in the country of Indian raw material.

The war has demonstrated to us the necessity of making each large unit in the Empire self-contained in the matter of munitions. The war has also shown that modern munitions means practically all the requirements of a civilised community, plus the special machinery used by the soldier in the field. Above all things the war has shown that the chemist is a more dangerous fighter than either the gunner or the cavalry soldier.

It is not necessary for me to remind you of the fact that chemistry is the foundation of all modern civilised activities; you also can recall many instances of the way in which normal chemical activities in peace time may be turned readily to account for war purposes. The manufacture of liquid chlorine on a large scale was a necessary part of the German process for the manufacture of artificial indigo. The manufacture being thus established as a weapon to kill an Indian industry, was available, when war broke out, for use on a large scale as an instrument to murder men.

Hitherto, there has been a tendency in India to import our physical science direct from Europe, although in the natural sciences,—geology, botany and zoology,—the work done in India has been of far more than local importance: our naturalists have been among the most distinguished of those who have built up these three divisions of natural science.

Chemistry, however, has a greater claim than either of the physical sciences for special recognition here. Apart from the fact that we must in future maintain a staff of all varieties of chemists, just as we must maintain any other variety of soldier for purely military requirements, the new industries of India will largely depend on the raw materials of the country, and research work on these materials can be done only on the spot. This applies, with little qualification, to the mineral and inorganic products, while with regard to organic or vegetable substances, it applies with absolutely no qualification whatever.

Whether the research work is done on vegetable dyes, on essential oils, on drugs, on tanstuffs, or on foodstuffs the only chemical research of value will be that done in co-operation with the botanist and bacteriologist, and under conditions that permit of discovering the best conditions under which the plant can be grown and harvested.

It is obvious that whether a plant is grown for its fruit, its juices or its fibrous products, it varies in productivity according to very slight variations of climate and soil, according to the time of year, and even sometimes according to the time of day at which it is collected. Apart altogether from the subsequent problems of curing and manufacture, the chemical work necessary to detect the most favourable conditions of growth, can be done only on the spot where abundance of raw materials, grown under varied conditions, can be subjected to investigation. It would be just as wise to refer the investigation of an Indian village crime by report to the London police, as to do no more than send samples of our vegetable products for examination at the Imperial Institute.

This is altogether apart from the duty of training the educated young men of the country to qualify for research and technical work. We need not touch that question to-day, though it ought to be an essential part of the organization of every scientific and technical department.

You all know how the beet-root was developed by science in Europe, until, before the war, it was possible for the European sugar manufacturer, working with the disadvantages of a temperate climate, to cut out the Indian sugarcane at a distance of some 5,000 miles. I have been told that this indicates the death knell of trade in tropical vegetable products; that, similarly, the chemist of Europe will kill for ever the production of natural indigo.

That, however, is not my particular form of pessimism; what science can do in Europe against the disadvantages of a temperate climate, it should be able to do more abundantly by turning tropical advantages to account. Science is not the monopoly of Europe; but we must do more than transplant the results if it is to grow in India: we must undertake our own research work here.

I have spoken thus because I want the authorities to realise that the chemical problems are not even yet touched by appointing a single chemist to analyze the doubtful materials passed by the Collector of Customs, another to inspect our explosives, another to assist the Director of the Geological Survey, a tinctorial chemist to the Madras Government, and another lonely chemist in the Forest Research Institute at Dehra Dun. Each of these suffers from isolation, from want of esprit de corps—from absence of prospects as each runs into his official coecum.

Organized confusion exists in India among chemists more conspicuously than among representatives of other sciences. Many of them overlap in their activities; few of them that are officials have any limits laid down for their activities; it is not possible for anyone to obtain their collective opinion on chemical questions. Yet among the many problems that cry out for solution in India chemical questions are the most important, as well as the most numerous.

I propose to ask your views among other things as to the best method of official reform. As a basis for discussion, I will outline one scheme which has been already suggested; and, as this matter has been brought to the notice of the Industrial Commission, I should like to be in a position to convey to my colleagues your views regarding this suggested scheme of official organization.

The principal chemical problems in connection with Government activities are divided among:—

- (a) Agriculture.
- (b) Forest products.
- (c) Drugs, perfumes, essential oils and dyes.
- (d) Tanning.
- (e) Sugar and alcohol manufacture.
- (f) Saltpetre refining.
- (g) Salt and khari manufacture.
- (h) Mineralogy.
- (i) Metallurgical inspection.
- (j) Explosives manufacture.

For administrative purposes these might be controlled in three groups:—

- A. Agricultural Chemistry, with the chief laboratory at Pusa.
- B. Organic Chemistry, with two chief laboratories at Dehra Dun and Bangalore.
- C. Mineral Chemistry, with the chief laboratory at Kalimati or Calcutta.

Each group might be placed in charge of a senior officer, one of whom will be Chief Chemist to the Government of India; or it might possibly be better to have three Deputy Chief Chemists for the three groups, with a Chief Chemist at Dehra Dun and Simla, his status and functions being analogous to those of the present Surveyor-General.

Junior members of the service could be lent to the Local Governments and principal Government departments for terms normally limited to five years. These officers would carry on purely routine duties and in some cases teaching, the principal problems of research being undertaken at the chief laboratories according to their nature.

All results of scientific and practical value would be published in the Records of the Indian Chemical Department, which would be issued in three series and edited by the three Deputy Chiefs. Once a year the whole staff of chemists might assemble for a week's conference successively at Pusa, Dehra Dun, Bangalore and Calcutta. This conference should be attended by private chemists, including manufacturing chemists and chemical members of the Education Department. Papers read at this conference, if approved by a small committee, might be published in the Records, which would thus establish at once a definite position of authority and value in scientific literature.

Even if you, the Commission and Government were to accept such a scheme it would not be practicable, on account of recruitment difficulties alone, to work it under war conditions; but there are many questions arising from such a scheme that we might profitably discuss to day.

There has been a certain amount of correlation among you during the past few months, due to the friendly action of Dr. Simonsen, very generously acting as an Honorary Adviser to the Munitions Board. The objects before us were the following:—

- (1) the possibility of preparing in India certain chemicals which are essential to the textile and other large industries, but which cannot be imported in sufficient quantities, if at all, during the war;
- (2) the possibility of manufacturing other chemicals which are ordinarily imported and might be made in India under normal conditions of trade;
- (3) the best way to assist firms with advice, undertaking for them search where their own staff has not the time or facilities;
- (4) the preparation, on a relatively small scale for the Medical Services, of drugs that can be made just as well in the laboratory as in the factory;
- (5) the systematic investigation of war materials of probable economic value;
- (6) the publication, when possible, of results.

If we cannot at once get an organised department of chemistry, there is still much under all these six heads that we can do under war conditions and indeed for war purposes. For example, in the manufacture of certain drugs, why cannot we enlist the help of students to make these in the laboratory, just as we can organise work parties of women for the manufacture of comforts for the troops? I feel sure that dozens of advanced chemical students would gladly give up their spare time to this work, and college authorities would be willing to grant facilities if only some one could be induced to set out the tasks and arrange for a satisfactory inspection of the products. It would not be safe to manufacture all drugs in this way, but there are some in which a wide latitude of quality is possible and easily determinable, and the work would have to be organised under the supervision of the Medical Store Department.

Turning to the other questions, a valuable series of results have been obtained already. At the Indian Institute of Science, for example, Drs. Hay, Fowler, Sudborough and Watson, in addition to their previous programme, have taken up, at the suggestion of the Munitions Board, the electrolytic preparation of white lead, the refining of waste copper, the enzymatic hydrolysis of fats and the preparation of varnish. The utilisation of copper waste has been the subject of three reports by Dr. K. S. Caldwell, who carried the work as far as possible with the existing laboratory equipment at the Patna College. When considering proposals for enlarging the equipment, it was discovered that Dr. Hay had also taken up the work at the Indian Institute of Science and thus a certain amount of overlapping has inadvertently occurred. Mr. A. R. Normand, at the Wilson College, Bombay, has been investigating methods for preparing soluble chromate from chrome iron-ore and for the conversion of acetylene into acetaldehyde and acetic acid. Mr. F. L. Usher of the Central College, Bangalore, will present to the Science Congress the results of his work on the oxidation of alcohol to acetic acid; he has also been engaged on colloidal medicinal preparations. Mr. H. B. Dunncliff proposes, when the tamarind fruit is again available, to study this source of tartaric acid; he has already in conjunction with Lala Hashmat Rai at the Government College, Lahore, been at work on the purification of nim and til oils. The question of manufacturing citric acid is being taken up at the Khalsa College, Amritsar, by Mr. W. H. F. Armstrong in conjunction with Mr. Sher Singh. Dr. P. C. Ray of Calcutta is taking up the manufacture of formaldehyde and is investigating the poisonous principle of ricin in castor-oil cake. Mr. V. N. Sarangdhar of the Wilson College, Bombay, has reported on the isolation and cultivation of the specific yeast associated with mahua flowers and on the efficiency of various methods of estimating sugar. Mr. Bellars at the Rangoon College is investigating the value of Burmese black varnish as an electrical insulator.

I should like your advice as to how these results can most suitably be made available to manufacturers and to other workers who may be following up similar lines unknown to us. Some of the reports will be read to the Science Congress and afterwards published as a supplement to the Journal of the Asiatic Society; but it would be an advantage if the papers on chemical questions were kept together in some publication with a distinctively chemical flavour, a publication which would be recognised by workers in other countries to cover all that really matters, in the way of chemical work in India. Your views on this question will be valued by the Munitions Board.

With this question is bound up that of the organization required to set out programmes of work so that each chemist gets an appropriate task without an undesirable amount of overlapping.

A very difficult question is that of the conditions under which advice should be given to, and research undertaken for, industrial firms. Manufacturers naturally do not wish to have made available to their competitors results obtained at their expense or based partly on new research work and partly on their own experience. If the industrial chemists on the staff of a public institution be allowed to draw fees as consultants, it will be necessary to provide for the interests of those chemists that are engaged on problems equally important though not of a kind that a firm could turn immediately to practical account.

The system adopted by the Geological Survey follows the common rule of most public services in giving information and advice without charge to all bona fide enquirers. Advice cannot usefully be given under such circumstances without the receipt of information from the enquirer, and such information is never published without permission.

If we adopt the system of allowing officials to accept private consulting practice for fees, the consultant may find himself in the embarrassing position of receiving information on the same subject from competitors. In ordinary private practice he would naturally decline to advise two competitors, and a firm would be shy about consulting a chemist who is already known to be engaged by a competitor. This would result in failure to make full use of the services of an official, and that is undesirable in a country like this with such a small number of qualified industrial chemists.

We might profitably discuss the question of whether, or when, one should publish the results of a technical investigation undertaken on behalf of and at the expense of a manufacturing firm. Is it fair to use a public institution without giving the public the full value of the results? The general interest of the public and the special interest of the firm might perhaps be met by adopting a recognised interval before publication; but this course becomes in practice far less simple than it seems; for there is seldom a definite date for concluding an investigation; it always dovetails into side issues and dependent investigations. So far as I have been able to study this difficult question, there appears to be a balance in favour of the conclusion that a public official should be purely a public servant; he should treat with confidence results placed at his disposal but should be free to publish those obtained as the outcome of his researches. Ordinarily, publication is so late and is necessarily so imperfect compared with the practical points known to the firm for which the work is done, that the firm gets a sufficient start ahead of its competitors in the same line. Often they would be able to obtain patent protection for essential parts of a new method.

In considering the question of co-ordinating chemical research, it is obvious that a systematic investigation of Indian raw materials, especially vegetable products, is about the most urgent. In spite of the valuable results obtained at Dehra Dun, at the Indian Institute of Science, at the Imperial Institute in London, and in our various colleges, only the fringe of this subject has so far been touched. For this work the chemist requires the co-operation of the Departments of Agriculture, Forests and Botany. It thus appears desirable to organize the chemical fraternity for representation on the Board of Scientific Advice.

The co-ordination attempted during the past year by the Munitions Board has been accomplished by your friendly co-operation through Dr. Simonsen as Secretary of the Congress; our first object has been to meet some urgent demands arising directly from the war. But we have done very little so far, and must be content with small things so long as we are in India so desperately short of chemists free of heavy routine work. This conference will result, I hope, in valuable suggestions for operations in the immediate future as well as in advice of value to the Industrial Commission which will be required to report on the question of organizing the scientific services to meet industrial needs.

In addition to the question of official organization it has been suggested that we might consider to-day a proposal to establish in India a section of the Society of Chemical Industry. The size of the country is against the adoption of any one capital city as a centre, while in each city the number of chemists is insufficient for effective discussion of subjects. An alternative suggestion, which is at variance with the usual organization of the Society, is to form a section which will meet annually as a branch of the Science Congress. Your views on this subject will be welcomed by the Council of the Society who have been already in communication with Dr. Simonsen.

DISCUSSION.

Sir Thomas Holland's address was followed by a discussion as to the order in which the matters raised in the address should be taken up later in the day.

2. It was agreed that a sub-committee consisting of Drs. Simonsen, Sudborough and Caldwell should make proposals for the conduct of researches, on the present basis, during war time.

3. The official organization required after the war for dealing with chemical problems was taken up by Dr. Sudborough.

4. Dr. McWilliam agreed to open the discussion on advice to industrial firms.

5. Dr. Meldrum took charge of the discussion on the publication of results.

6. Dr. Fowler agreed to present the case for the establishment of a section of the Society of Chemical Industry.

7. The meeting adjourned at 1-30 P.M.

Co-ordination of chemical research during the war.

8. On resuming at 3 o'clock, Dr. Sudborough reported that the sub-committee had agreed upon the following general principles:—

- (a) that a monthly list of researches in progress should be circulated;
- (b) that, at the foot of the list, a list of problems awaiting investigation should be printed;
- (c) that chemists undertaking research work for the Board should be requested to inform the Board of any problems that occur to them.

It was agreed that the allocation of researches should be left in charge of a single chemical adviser, as it was considered that the number of chemists was too small and that they were too scattered to enable proper arrangements to be made by a committee. It was therefore considered desirable to have a permanent chemical adviser for the Board who should, when necessary, constitute a committee for the consideration of any particular problem. This would appear to be especially necessary when any request for expenditure on an investigation was made. The chemical adviser should also tour regularly and consult with officers conducting researches and also with chemists engaged in works. He would then be in a better position to advise the Board in case special expenditure was required.

9. There was general agreement that investigators should not be paid for any particular piece of research but that assistance to them would frequently be necessary in order that the mechanical and routine portions of research could be carried through without valuable waste of the researcher's time. For this purpose it was thought that research assistants might be appointed. These might engage in teaching and, accordingly, their pay might be met, partly by the Local Government or by the authorities of the institution in which they are working, and partly, as regards the assistance given in research, by a subsidy from the Munitions Board. It was thought that the appointments might generally be for one year and renewable, but that other conditions, such as the amount of salary, would have to be determined by the circumstances of each particular case. It was mentioned that firms might, on occasion, pay for these assistants for definite pieces of work.

Government organization of chemical research after the war.

10. Dr. Sudborough in opening this discussion, differentiated between the organization of chemistry and the organization of chemists and drew attention to the differences between research in pure science and work on the applications of science to industry. While the investigation of the applications of science to industry can be organized, the researcher in pure science must be left to work entirely as he wills. The conference strongly endorsed the opinion that the position of the worker in pure science must, after the war, be carefully safeguarded as, with attention now strongly rivetted on the practical applications of science, there might be a grave disaster at the end of ten or fifteen years if progress in pure scientific research was not provided for.

11. The organization of chemists in a Government service, in the ordinary sense of this expression, was then considered. Dr. Sudborough thought that one drawback was connected with the fact that success in work on the applications of science to industry depended on these applications being taken up by manufacturers. He was in doubt whether manufacturers would approach a Government service or department in which the results obtained would be public property. Manufacturers naturally make a claim on work done for them. Messrs. Shepherd and Jackson thought that there would be no difficulty on this point provided advice to industrial firms was given on carefully planned lines and that adequate precautions were taken to prevent the leakage of confidential information and for securing to the manufacturer, at least for a time, the results of the investigation. These points were again taken up later in the discussion.

12. Dr. Sudborough was also doubtful whether the best work could be obtained from members of a service drawing fixed pay, working under fixed conditions, and having fixed office hours. It was generally recognised that the members of such a service were not likely to tie themselves to fixed office hours and the practical difficulties in this respect were reduced to those connected with the subordinate staff. On this point also it was not thought that in practice any real difficulty would arise.

13. It was agreed that the Government chemical service should include all chemists in Government service, for example, chemists in the Departments of Customs and Excise, in educational institutes and in the Forest and Agricultural Departments.

14. Dr. Sudborough next discussed whether there should be a single central chemical research institute for the whole of India or whether there should be two or three institutes as suggested in Sir Thomas Holland's address. Against one centre it was urged that the Forest and Agricultural Departments must have pure chemists in touch with them, that in the case of metallurgy, for example, it was necessary, in the case of many problems, to be in touch with the works and in nearly all cases to be in "the atmosphere" of the works. Dr. Sudborough thought that most problems, forest, agricultural, and metallurgical, could be worked out at any centre. Sir Thomas Holland considered that nine-tenths of the Government work would be concerned with ascertaining the value of raw materials and that this fact must be considered in forming a judgment. The general opinion was in favour of centralization at a single institute, but opinion was undecided as to the particular locality in which this central institute should be established. It was generally agreed that the situation should be such as would enable research work to be undertaken all the year round and that vested interests, such as already exist at Dehra Dun, Pusa and Bangalore, had to be taken into account. The facts that the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore, is not a Government institution and that if it ceases to be organized on its present basis, the site reverts to the State of Mysore, were points for consideration.

15. There was general agreement that research work should not be cramped by financial restrictions and that the widest latitude in expenditure should be allowed within the limits of the budget grants.

16. It was agreed that such a Government service could only be Imperial. It would not prove possible for even the larger provinces to maintain a sufficiently large staff of chemists for work in all branches of the science. It was pointed out by Sir Thomas Holland that while decentralization is desirable and natural in executive work, centralization is the better policy in advisory work. An imperial department can control local eccentricities and, although it is apt to be unsympathetic to local enthusiasms, the balance is in favour of centralization. Scientists require to be controlled and local ignorance requires to be instructed.

17. Consideration was then given to the training of students and apprentices at the Government Central Research Institute and to the question whether the work at this institute could be combined with a post-graduate training in research. It was agreed that, while it was necessary to train Indians for the future chemical industries of India, teaching should form no part of the functions of the institute, although graduates and others might be attached to officers of the institute to receive an indirect training by assisting them in their work.

18. The Government institute would undertake standardizing work such as is done at the National Physical Laboratory and analytical work as at Somerset House.

19. Sir Alfred Bourne enquired what the position of non-Government chemists would be in the event of the establishment of a large Government service of chemists. Messrs. Shepherd and Jackson thought that there would be no cause for opposition or antagonism: there would be an annual conference in which all chemists would participate and the journal or other publications of the department would be available for the publication of the works of outside chemists. In this connection, it was pointed out that a Government department will publish work without a close regard for expense and that both Government and non-Government chemists would be enabled to have their work published in a recognised publication and on a scale, as regards style and illustrations, which a chemical society could not bear.

Advice to industrial firms.

20. It was agreed that firms ought to be able to consult the Government Chemical Research Institute on technical points and that a fee should be charged for the advice given. It is necessary to have a protective tariff against trivial enquiries and it was recognised that firms of standing would themselves desire to pay fees to preserve their self-respect. It was also agreed that these fees should be so high as not bring the Government service into competition with private consulting chemists.

21. The case of poor firms which are unable to pay will require consideration and the head of the department should have power to accept problems for investigation without payment. All applications for investigation on behalf of firms must be dealt with by the head of the department and no individual member of the staff should engage in technical work without the sanction of the head of the department. It was generally recognised that, up to a certain point, public information must be given freely by a Government institute.

22. The allotment of fees was then considered. The danger of the members of a public service directing their energies towards the mere earning of fees was recognised. It was also pointed out that, although one member of the institute might have charge of an investigation, he would require assistance to some extent from his fellow-researchers in the institute. It was thought that fees might be properly divided, more or less, on the basis of one-third to the institute, one-third to the investigator, and one-third to the other members of the staff. The latter share would ensure general contentment and the willing assistance of the rest of the staff and would also safeguard the position of the workers in pure science.

23. It was pointed out that one firm might apply for information already communicated to another firm and it was recognised that such information could be given only in certain circumstances; for such reasons, the head of the department must have power to refuse to undertake researches or to give information. Provision must also be made against the possibility of firms suing Government for leakage of information communicated confidentially to the institute for the purposes of a research undertaken for them. Such a leakage might occur accidentally. These possibilities were cited as indicating the need of carefully laying down the lines on which work can be undertaken for private firms.

24. While research is being conducted during the war, on its present basis under the Munitions Board, it was agreed that the best method of dealing with results would be to put a good firm into touch with the investigator who had done the work.

25. It was agreed that, ultimately, with the organisation of a Government service, the establishment of a journal was essential and that the head of the department, in consultation with the staff, must have power to decide whether results should or should not be published. As regards work done for firms, it was recognised that the information should be treated for a time as confidential and it was suggested that three or five years from the date of the investigator's report was a suitable period.

Formation of a section of the Society of Chemical Industry.

26. Dr. Fowler thought that, in the future, one might reasonably anticipate the formation of sections at Bombay, Cawnpore, Madras, Calcutta and Lahore, but at present did not see how more than one section for the whole of India could be started. Even with only one section, the great distances which separate the individual chemists would prevent the holding of regular meetings. It seemed impracticable to form a section at any one centre—say Bombay—where a sufficient number of chemists could be secured as members for holding regular meetings. Incidentally, Dr. Fowler drew attention to the functions of the Institute of Chemistry, of which the basis is to be widened, so as to include the whole profession. As regards the Society of Chemical Industry, the conclusion arrived at was that the conference could do nothing at present to start such a section and that till chemists in India increase in numbers and a Government service or department is organised, the chemists must utilise the chemical section of the Science Congress for the publication of their papers and the organisation of the Munitions Board for the utilisation of the results obtained by them.

27. Sir Thomas Holland, in closing the proceedings, hoped that the discussion would assist in opening the way to important developments.

Extract from the Agricultural Journal of India. Volume XIV, Part II, April 1919.

III.—THE FIRST CHEMICAL MEETING.

The first meeting of Agricultural Chemists and Bacteriologists in India was held at Pusa from the 24th to 28th February 1919 under the chairmanship of Dr. W. H. Harrison, Imperial Agricultural Chemist. It was attended by the Agricultural Chemists of all provinces, and also by Mr. W. A. Davis, Indigo Research Chemist, Mr. C. M. Hutchinson, Imperial Agricultural Bacteriologist, and Mr. R. D. Anstead, Deputy Director for Planting Districts, Madras. The meeting was opened by Mr. J. MacKenna, C.I.E., I.C.S., Agricultural Adviser to the Government of India, who welcomed the delegates and emphasized the value of such meetings in relation to the future development of the investigation of Indian agricultural problems.

There were ten subjects down for discussion. These may be broadly stated as follows:—

- (1) References from the Government of India.
- (2) Consideration of facilities for the development of industrial problems arising out of the successful researches of Agricultural Chemists and the provision of specialised laboratories for the investigation of problems of general importance.
- (3) Questions regarding the Service of Agricultural Chemists, their duties, and the technique of their work.
- (4) Post graduate teaching in agricultural chemistry at Pusa.
- (5) Bacteriological subjects.

It will be remembered that the Board of Agriculture in India, at its meeting held at Poona in 1917, passed a resolution that in its opinion the time had arrived when some form of legislation was necessary to regulate the sale of fertilizers in India in order to protect both the planting industries and the Indian cultivator. The Government of India requested the meeting to frame a draft Fertilizer Act applicable to Indian conditions. This was accordingly done, the Fertilizer and Feeding Stuffs Act in force in the United Kingdom being taken as a model and suitable modifications made therein. The other reference from Government for detailed consideration was Resolution VIII of the same Board dealing with the question of reducing the present railway freight for the carriage of manures. To any one acquainted with conditions in this country, the importance of increasing the use of concentrated manures as a part of the general agricultural development of the country is obvious. Among the causes which operate against the extended use of the manures is the fact that manures have to be carried over long distances from the centres of supply to make them available to cultivators. Further, the demand of the individual cultivator is mainly for small consignments of manure, and, in view of the caste prejudices prevalent in the country, many fertilizers, such as bone-meal, dried blood, and poudrette, are classed by the railway companies as offensive goods. Again, there is no uniformity in the rates charged at present by the various railways for the carriage of manures. After a due consideration of the various difficulties it was resolved that the Railway Board be asked to arrange that the present minimum rate of 1-10th pie per maund per mile should be charged in all cases on minimum wagon loads of such concentrated manures, and that the Provincial Agricultural Departments should encourage the formation of local distribution centres so as to build up a regulated traffic which is capable of taking full advantage of the concession of the minimum rate.

It very often happens that the research work of an Agricultural Chemist or Bacteriologist leads up to a problem of industrial importance which he is obliged to give up because there is no suitable technological laboratory for carrying it to a successful commercial issue. The work done on malt extracts in the Coimbatore laboratory, and on saltpetre, indigo, etc., at Pusa, are instances in point. The creation of a technological laboratory as one of the special sections of the Imperial Agricultural Department under the Government of India where such subjects of industrial importance can be carried to a successful commercial issue was therefore recommended by the meeting.

There are again numerous problems which though not directly industrial are still of great importance in connection with agriculture. Among such problems requiring immediate consideration are, (1) animal nutrition, (2) soil physics, and (3) vegetable biological chemistry, but there are neither specialized laboratories nor suitable staff to undertake this work. The meeting recognised the need for the provision of such laboratories with separate staffs under the Government of India for the investigation of such problems of general application. It was felt that the location of these laboratories should be determined by the particular requirements, as regards, for instance the need for collaboration of their staffs with other departments, sections, climatic and other conditions, and they need not necessarily be at Pusa.

The proposal made in the report of the Indian Industrial Commission for the formation of a Chemists' Service was not accepted by the meeting mainly because intense local knowledge is required for effective work for agricultural improvement by chemical methods, and it is not desirable that the Chemists in the Agricultural Departments should be formed into a Service apart from the Indian Agricultural Service, in which the bond of union would be the Science rather than its application. On the other hand the meeting was definitely of the opinion that, in addition to the Agricultural Chemists attached to the Provincial Departments strong central body of chemists should be maintained by the Imperial Department of Agriculture from whom Provincial Departments can draw for the investigation of special problems.

With the rapid expansion of chemical investigations in the provinces it has become necessary to relieve the Agricultural Chemists of the teaching work so that they may be enabled to devote more of their time to research work. The meeting, therefore, recommended duplication of the chemical staff for the adequate pursuit of research and teaching. In the opinion of the meeting the duties of the Agricultural Chemist as opposed to the Professor of Chemistry should be primarily limited to the research and executive side only, giving such assistance in teaching as may arise out of his research and which fits in with the college course. The teaching officers should also be given opportunities to engage in research work.

The meeting next considered the question of soil surveys. It held that soil surveys throughout this country would be of undoubted value not only in cases where new lands are in question but also for general application as a means of obtaining information as to the relationships between climate, soil and crop. The necessity of standardization of methods not only in the case of such surveys but also in the analysis of soils and other materials was recognised and important recommendations were made.

The question of post-graduate teaching in agricultural chemistry at Pusa and the class of student to be admitted to this advanced course was then considered. It was resolved that the teaching should be strictly directed to instruction in the various specialized branches of agricultural chemistry and that the students to be admitted to this course should be either graduates of an Agricultural College, or Science graduates of an University who have attended a Provincial Agricultural College for at least a year and are recommended for further training in agricultural chemistry by the Agricultural Chemist.

A day was specially set apart for the consideration of bacteriological subjects. The necessity of providing for the proper study of soil bacteriology by the Agricultural Departments in India was recognised, a full discussion of provincial conditions having revealed an urgent demand for the investigation of bacteriological problems either connected with the soil or with agricultural industries. It was accordingly recommended that Local Governments should consider the desirability of adding an Agricultural Bacteriologist to their scientific staff.

The question of the standardization of methods of biological analysis of soils was also considered in detail.

Detailed proceedings of the meeting will be published in due course.

ANNEXURE 5.

Statement showing to what extent action is already being taken on the Commission's recommendations as summarised in Chapter XXIV of the Report.

Recommendation (numbers are those of Commission's summary).

(3) Stimulation of the production of leather and of lightly tanned hides and skins.

Action being taken.

Government of India have been considering question for some time past. A research factory has been working at Maihar on tan stuffs and tan extracts, with Government help; a leather trade school has been established at Madras; a leather research factory is being started by the Bengal Government at Calcutta; proposals are being worked out by the Munitions Board for central research factories; the Government of India are formulating fiscal proposals; and several large tanneries on modern lines are starting with Government advice and encouragement. Much has been done also during the war to help small Indian tanneries.

(5) Necessity for expert forest engineers.

Two officers have been already engaged by the Forest Department, and further and more extensive proposals have been submitted for the Secretary of State's sanction.

(6) Establishment of Government depôts for sale of timber.

An agency has been established in Calcutta for the sale of timber from the Andamans and of such other timber as Local Governments may consign to it for the purpose. A similar agency has been established in London for the sale, in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe, of all Indian timbers exported by Government. The development of this system of disposal now rests with the Local Governments, who have been informed of the action taken by the Government of India.

(7) Increase of staff and equipment at Dehra Dun.

An extensive scheme is under preparation by the Government of India.

(8) Creation of Fisheries Departments in Burma and Bombay and an increase in Madras.

It is understood that Bombay have the matter under consideration.

(17) Survey of the coal situation, with a view to effecting economy in mining and consumption.

An expert has been brought out from England and has returned to prepare his report after examining the situation in India.

(20) Survey of hydro-electric possibilities.

This started last cold weather.

(31) Improvement of system under which State technical scholarships are granted.

The rules have been recast and further amendments are under consideration.

(49 to 51) Revision of organisation for commercial intelligence and statistics.

Scheme is under preparation.

(54) Technical officers to assist Indian Trade Commissioner.

Proposals are being put forward for deputing Forest and Geological experts.

(55) Indian trade agents for Mesopotamia and East Africa.

Bombay Government have been consulted.

(57 to 64) Creation of an organisation for purchase and inspection of Government stores in India.

No action can be taken till Secretary of State's approval has been received to the principle; but proposals for appointment of committee are being worked out.

(65 to 68) Facilitation of acquisition of industrial sites.

Question of legislation is under consideration.

(75) Veto on use of power-driven machinery in jails.

Question has been referred to Jail Commission.

(80 & 81) Strengthening of Geological Survey and inspection of Government concessions.

Proposals will shortly be submitted for Secretary of State's sanction.

(82) Modification of mining lease forms and constitution of advisory boards of mine-fields.

Local Governments' opinion will shortly be invited on definite scheme.

(83) Preparation of mining manuals.

Local Governments are being addressed.

(90) Proposal to facilitate registration of partnerships.

Question of legislation is under consideration.

(97) Housing of industrial population in Bombay.

Bombay Government are being addressed.

(102) Reduction of maximum factory hours.

Opinions of Local Governments are being invited.

(105) Collection of occupational statistics.

Matter has been for some time under consideration, and will be taken up with Census Commissioner when appointed.

(126) Appointment of an expert committee to consider possibility of establishing industrial banks and affording other financial help to small industrialists.

No action can be taken till Secretary of State's views have been obtained regarding proposed provincial and central departments of industries; but proposals for committee are being worked out.

No. 6.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor-General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

I have considered in Council the letter of Your Excellency's Government No. 15 (Industries), of the 4th June 1919, on the subject of the Report of the Indian Industrial Commission. In this letter you do not attempt to deal with the numerous recommendations made by the Commission, but ask my approval to a few cardinal points of principle, and I assume that when these principles are settled you will examine the detailed recommendations contained in the report, referring in due course any proposals which require my sanction.

2. Before dealing with the specific points covered by your letters it seems necessary to clear the ground by a general declaration of policy. The restrictive policy laid down by Lord Morley in 1910, as modified by Lord Crewe in 1912, though temporarily in abeyance while this enquiry was being made, is still in force, and if the active participation by Government in industrial development is to be accepted as one of its legitimate functions a new policy is required.

With the quickening of political life that will follow the grant of constitutional reforms the demand for progress in administration and social reform may be expected to become insistent, and if progress is not to be hampered by want of funds the taxable capacity of the people will have to be increased. To this end the natural resources of India must be effectively utilised, as new opportunities for the investment of capital present themselves, in order that the standard of comfort of the people may be raised, and the economic strength of the country may increase. Further, as the experience of the past few years has shown that in time of war India cannot rely on outside sources for her needs, the matter is one in which political expediency, economic advantage and military security are coincident and accord with the interests of the Empire as a whole.

I accept the two fundamental principles underlying the recommendations of the Commission; first, that in future Government should play an active part in the industrial development of the country; secondly, that Government cannot undertake this work unless provided with adequate administrative equipment and forearmed with reliable scientific and technical advice. Following on the acceptance of these principles I agree that suitably equipped organisations should be set up in the Provincial Governments and in the Central Government.

3. In giving effect to this policy, State assistance will take various forms such as research, the survey of natural resources, technical and scientific advice, educational facilities, commercial and industrial intelligence, the establishment of pioneering and demonstration factories, financial help, the purchase of Government stores in India, whether in the usual way of business or under a guarantee of purchase over a fixed period, and probably also fiscal measures. The extent to which and the manner in which assistance under each of these heads can appropriately be given will doubtless be considered by Your Excellency's Government when the detailed recommendations of the Commission are examined, but it seems desirable that concurrently with the establishment of the new Department, the powers of the Government of India and of local Governments in regard to direct financial assistance, which are now exceedingly limited, should be precisely defined. I would be glad therefore, if, after considering chapters XIV and XX, of the Report, you would favour me with your views, first, on the main question of the forms which financial assistance may legitimately take, and secondly, on the subsidiary question of the limits within which and the conditions under which such assistance may be given by the Government of India and the local Governments.

It would be premature to discuss at this stage the fiscal issue, which was deliberately excluded from the scope of the Commission's enquiry, and I am not prepared to make any pronouncement on this aspect of the case until the representatives of the people have been given the opportunity to express their views. The question will have to be faced in the near future. I am confident that in the discussions that will take place in India the interest of the Empire as a whole will receive due consideration.

4. Connected with the fiscal question are other needs such as greater initiative and further incentives to production as well as increased efficiency of labour. You will doubtless consider how far these can be fostered, and I would here only remark in regard to labour that if the efficiency of labour be increased even to a moderate extent India could probably hold her own. If, therefore, development is to proceed on sound lines, and if enduring results are to be obtained labour must be made more efficient. In India, where the workers are unorganised, a special obligation lies upon Government to study their welfare and to secure for them better education, better housing, and a higher standard of living. By her adherence to the International Labour Convention India will now become subject in respect of labour conditions to international criticism. This need not be resented, as it is in the best interests of the country that present conditions should be improved, provided that it is recognised that Indian conditions are radically different from those of western countries and that western standards cannot at once be applied.

5. Turning now to the points referred to in your letter, I approve in principle the proposal that Provincial Departments of Industry should be set up on the general lines laid down by the Commission. I accept also the proposed definition of the functions of these Departments, except that relating to the control of industrial and technical education. I suggest that local Governments should be left free to revise the list of duties enumerated in paragraph 3 of your letter so that the new Departments may not at the outset be over weighted, and that, so far as is possible, the branches of work for which the Director is responsible may be in harmony with the classification of subjects under the scheme of constitutional reforms. Under any arrangement the Director's duties must apparently include both reserved and transferred subjects, but the less this is so the better. For these and other reasons I would prefer to reserve for further consideration the question of handing over the control of technical education to the new Departments.

6. Your Excellency's Government are not yet prepared to formulate proposals regarding the organisation of the Imperial Department of Industries, but propose to set up as an interim authority a Board of Industries and Munitions, which would close the war commitments of the Indian Munitions Board, take over from the Commerce and Industries Department certain items of work, undertake the initial work of organisation, and in particular frame detailed proposals for the new permanent Department.

I sanction this proposal and agree that the Board should retain the powers now possessed by the Munitions Board. Until a permanent Department has been created, the Board would not be attached to any Department of Your Excellency's Government, but would be under the direct charge of the Viceroy, the President of the Board taking part in Council meetings when industrial questions are discussed, but with no power of voting.

7. I am glad to observe that in defining the relations between the Imperial and Provincial Departments, you favour a large measure of Provincial independence, and that within their general financial and other powers, the local Governments would be given a free hand subject to the reasonable reservations detailed in paragraphs 18 and 19 of your letter. I have, however, little doubt that local Governments, limited as they will be in respect of resources and staff, will readily seek the advice and assistance of the Imperial Department. But for the most part reference should be voluntary, and the necessity of obtaining previous sanction should as far as possible be avoided.

8. When the permanent Imperial Department has been set up it should, when opportunity offers, be placed in charge of a Member of Council. The volume of work of the new department is necessarily uncertain, but it is not improbable that at the outset it will sufficiently occupy the whole time of a Member, and in that case I shall not object to a separate Membership for Industries when legislative authority has been obtained to increase the number of Members of Council. But as the work of all the civil Departments of Your Excellency's Government will be affected in various degrees when the scheme of constitutional reforms becomes operative, and as a readjustment of portfolios will then become necessary, the desirability of placing cognate subjects, such as Commerce, under the charge of the Member for Industries should be kept in view. The arguments advanced in your letter have not convinced me that it is desirable that these two branches of the administration should be placed permanently in charge of separate Members.

9. I approve the appointment of expert Committees to consider the recommendations of the Commission regarding the creation of all-India scientific services. Each Committee should be directed to frame detailed proposals for the organisation and terms of employment of the service, if it considers its creation advisable, and to formulate proposals for the location and equipment of research laboratories.

10. I accept the principle of an all-India industrial service, and agree that although a training in some form of mechanical engineering will in most cases be the best basis of recruitment, this qualification should not in all cases be required. I understand that it is your intention not to include in the service men of the foreman type or experts engaged for special purposes on short term agreements, but to reserve it as a rule for men of good education, with technical qualifications or business training. From this reservoir Provincial Directors and Deputy Directors of Industries, Factory Managers, and perhaps also Factory and Mines Inspectors might be drawn if suitable men are available.

11. I also accept the general principle of an agency for the purchase and inspection of stores in India, and approve the appointment of a Committee to work out the detailed organisation for an Indian Stores Department.

It has been suggested that with a view to keeping the India and Home Departments up to date and co-ordinating their methods, interchanges of personnel should take place. This suggestion will, no doubt, be considered by your Committee.

12. I desire to associate myself with your cordial appreciation of the work of the Commission. The comprehensive review of the problem and the practical proposals contained in their report have made it possible to lay down, with some assurance of success, the outlines of a new policy, and, if that policy bears fruit, the credit will largely be due to the labours of the Commission.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant,

EDWIN S. MONTAGU.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE PUBLIC SERVICES COMMISSION RELATING TO PENSIONS OF THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.

RESOLUTION.

(ESTABLISHMENTS.)

IN connection with the recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India relating to the Indian Civil Service contained in paragraphs 45 and 46 of annexure X to their Report, the Government of India, with the approval of the Secretary of State, are pleased to announce that it has been decided—

- (1) to retain the present uniform rate of £1,000 for annuities, but not to require the 4 per cent. contribution which the officers are at present compelled to make towards it and
- (2) to fund for the benefit of the officers concerned the 4 per cent. deduction now made, this being returned to them on retirement or to their legal representatives in case of death, with the same interest as is allowed on subscriptions to the General Provident Fund. This concession will take effect from the 1st April 1919.

2. The Commission in paragraph 48 of Annexure X to their Report expressed the opinion that the existing rates of invalid annuities laid down in article 564, Civil Service Regulations, are sufficiently liberal, but the attention of the Government of India has been drawn to the facts that, firstly, when questions of the retirement on grounds of health of members of the Indian Civil Service have been under consideration, difficulties have from time to time arisen owing to the disproportion between the rates of the invalid annuities and the amount of the annuity of £1,000 which an officer receives on retirement after a full term of service, secondly, that local Governments are naturally unwilling to penalise officers retiring through no fault of their own, and endeavour so far as possible to avoid the premature retirement of their officials on invalid pension, and, thirdly, that officers who ought in their own interests and in the interests of the service to be invalided are induced by pecuniary considerations to avoid appearance before Medical Boards and persist in their duties at serious risk to health and even life. The Government of India, with the approval of the Secretary of State, have therefore decided to improve the rates as follows, the exact amount being calculated on years of "active" instead of "total" service as theretofore —

For the first three years of active service—a gratuity of	500
" 4th year—an annuity of ..	150
" 5th " " ..	170
" 6th " " ..	200
" 7th " " ..	230
" 8th " " ..	260
" 9th " " ..	290
" 10th " " ..	320
" 11th " " ..	360
" 12th " " ..	400
" 13th " " ..	440
" 14th " " ..	480
" 15th " " ..	540
" 16th " " ..	600
" 17th " " ..	660
" 18th " " ..	720
" 19th " " ..	780
" 21st " " ..	900

This scale will apply to all officers invalided since 1st April 1919 and from date of invaliding. Any of these officers or any officers now in the service invalided hereafter will be allowed the benefit of the present rules in the rare cases where owing to special circumstances the present rules are more favourable to them.

ORDER—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations, the several Departments of the Government of India (including the Financial Adviser, Military Finance) and the offices subordinate to this Department for information and guidance.

Ordered also that it be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

This Council requests the Governor-General in Council—

- (a) to convey to the King Emperor the humble message of the people of India assuring him of their enthusiastic and loyal devotion and allegiance to His Majesty's person and throne, and tendering their warm congratulations on the conclusion of a victorious peace ;

(b) to convey to His Majesty's Naval, Military and Air forces, British and Indian, including the Royal Indian Marine, the grateful appreciation and heartfelt thanks of India's citizens for their pre-eminently valuable services and heroic deeds of daring, endurance, skill and cheerful sacrifice which have enabled the British Empire and its Allies to crush Prussian militarism and autocracy and inaugurate an era of orderly progressive self-government on a truly democratic basis under the guidance and protection of a League of Nations;

(c) to convey to His Majesty's civil services, especially to the officers and men employed in the Munitions, Railway and Post and Telegraph Departments, the sincere thanks of the country for their untiring energy and zeal and supreme devotion to duty during a prolonged and trying period of more than four years of active warfare.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT ON THE HOWRAH BRIDGE FOR THE YEAR 1918-19.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

MARINE DEPARTMENT.

CALCUTTA. THE 22ND NOVEMBER 1919

RESOLUTION—No. 3632 Marine

READ—

The Administration Report on the Howrah Bridge for the year 1918-19

THE year under review opened with a deficit balance of Rs. 4,02,944 on revenue account.

2 The income of the Bridge during the year amounted to Rs. 3,71,648 against Rs. 3,43,284 in the previous year. The total expenditure was Rs. 2,93,863, including Rs. 4,258 expended on renewals to the Bridge structure and repairs to the ferry landing stage at Howrah. In the preceding year the total expenditure was Rs. 4,27,195, which included an abnormal expenditure of Rs. 1,41,492 expended on renewals to the Bridge structure and repairs to the ferry landing stage at Howrah.

As in the previous year, the increase in the income was principally due to—

- (1) the receipts from the East Indian Railway traffic which amounted to Rs. 2,86,276 against their guaranteed minimum of Rs. 2,00,000;
- (2) the contribution of Rs. 26,000 made by the Bengal-Nagpur Railway in consideration of their passenger traffic over the Bridge; and
- (3) the increased earnings of the two ferry steamers.

3 The renewals to the Bridge structure and repairs to the ferry landing stage at Howrah were completed during the year, the total sums spent on these works up to 31st March 1919 being Rs. 3,59,305.

The working result of the year was a surplus of Rs. 80,785 as compared with a deficit of Rs. 83,911 in the previous year, so that the closing deficit on revenue account on the 31st March 1919 stood at Rs. 3,22,159. It is anticipated that the present large debit balance will be gradually extinguished from future surpluses.

4. The number of vessels that passed through the Bridge during the year and the preceding four years is given below :—

		1918-19	1917-18	1916-17	1915-16	1914-15
Sea-going vessels	...	21	60	61	80	75
Inland steamers and flats	...	2,590	2,345	2,806	2,704	2,422
Steam-tugs and steam-launches	...	914	773	886	897	805
Port Commissioners' vessels	...	59	39	27	39	71
Government steamers and flats	...	8	7	9	9	...
Total	...	3,592	3,224	3,780	3,729	3,372

5. The total number of accidents during the year was 35 against 39 in the previous year. As the result of these one life and four boats were lost.

6. The Bridge was opened during the year on 303 occasions, viz., 51 times during the day and 252 times at night.

7. The report of Mr. Basil Mott on the type of the proposed new bridge to which reference was made in the resolution on the report for 1917-18, has been received, but as yet no final decision has been made as this Government is consulting further expert opinion on the subject.

By order of the Governor in Council,

F. A. A. COWLEY,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

(vii) The promissory notes taken on the day of sale under the fifth condition, if remaining unredeemed at 3-30 P.M. of the fifth day following the day of sale, or 1-30 P.M. if the last day falls on a Saturday, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization in such manner as to him shall seem fit.

(viii) No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities on account of opium upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before the prescribed time in clause (v) on the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted; provided always that money so subsequently tendered may be taken in payment of the said promissory note, but such acceptance of money shall in no way entitle the payer thereof to any right to delivery of the lot or lots in respect whereof the said note was given, or to any of the rights of a purchaser thereof, or release the payer from liability for any unpaid balance of such notes or from the additional liability for the loss and expenses of such re-sale as provided for in clauses No. (v) and No. (vi).

(ix) The opium advertised for sale shall be paid for not later than 3-30 P.M. of the fifteenth day after the day of sale, provided it does not fall on a Saturday; if it falls on a Saturday, the opium must be paid for by 1-30 P.M.; and, in case any lots of such opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests, shall be forfeited, and the opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as Government shall think fit; and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good all expenses and any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale, and the liability for the loss or difference of price and expenses shall be in addition to, and wholly independent of, the amount of the deposit so forfeited.

(x) Purchasers taking out certificates or orders for the delivery of opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each certificate or order; and it is to be clearly understood that the certificates or orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other certificates or orders authorising the delivery of single lots or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less than the number of lots or chests ordinarily required to be included in each certificate or order.

(xi) No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present conditions will be received in this office except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale-book, or his authorized agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

(xii) The officer superintending the sale on the part of the Government is empowered to reject, at his discretion the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall on demand render at the time a deposit either in Government of India notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a promissory note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these conditions.

(xiii) With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price, diminishing the same gradually by Rs. 5 at a time until a bid is obtained; and the first bona fide bidder for a lot, after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described, shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of Rs. 4,500 specified in the second of these conditions.

(xiv) The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of opium not exceeding altogether ten lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the opium to complete the said ten.

(xv) In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the opium included in this notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

5. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal:—

No. 1.—Certificate of the opium advertised for sale.

No. 2.—Report of the examination of such opium.

6. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the opium manufactured at the Ghazipur Factory, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug, when packed at the Ghazipur Factory, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken, for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal.

7. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on personal application at the office of the Government of Bengal. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Government entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the opium for shipment.

The following questions which had been starred were put and answered.—

By the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur:—

(a) What is the name of the gentleman who was responsible for the weather reports which were issued on the 24th and 25th of September last in Calcutta from the Bengal Meteorological office? The cyclone in East Bengal.

(b) Is it a fact that on the 24th September, he published the following report.—

“ The depression which is in the north-west angle of the Bay this morning is only slight. It will likely move into South Bengal to-day. The sea is moderate at Saugor Island and Pamban and rough at Colombo ”

(c) Is it a fact that the following day, he published the following report.—

“ The storm which passed to the south-east of Calcutta yesterday was of very small extent and only affected places which were close to its centre

... The effect of the small storm has disappeared rapidly and the sea is smooth or slight at all stations except Colombo where it is rough ”

(d) Is it a fact that the Central Meteorological office at Simla record the following observation at 8 o'clock in the morning of the 24th of September upon the same materials which were available to the Bengal Meteorological office.—

“ The disturbance in the Bay has developed into a storm about 50 miles south of Saugor Island. It will probably enter Bengal to-day ”

(e) Since the last cyclone, i.e., of the 24th and 25th September, have the Government of Bengal made inquiries into the conduct of the Bengal Meteorological Reporter, and if they are satisfied with that gentleman's explanation will they be pleased to favour this Council with a brief statement of that explanation?

(f) Is the same gentleman still holding the Meteorological Reporter's office or has he been relieved of it?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

“ (a) The officer concerned is Mr D B Meek, Meteorologist Calcutta

(b) Yes

(c) Yes

Questions and Answers.

(d) Yes. None of these reports referred, however, to the cyclonic nature of the storm for the reason given in the communiqué published by Government on the 14th October, 1919, that it was of too small a diameter to influence meteorological conditions at the observatories between which it passed.

(e) No. The Meteorologist, Calcutta, is under the Government of India and not under the Government of Bengal. Moreover, the Government of Bengal have no reason to be dissatisfied with his work or to believe that his conduct can in any manner be associated with the havoc wrought by the cyclone.

(f) Mr. D. B. Meek continues to hold charge of the office of the Meteorologist, Calcutta."

The cyclone in East Bengal.

(a) In connection with the cyclone of the 24th September last will the Government be pleased to state whether danger signals were hoisted at the inland river stations of East Bengal, and, if so, at what hour and in what places?

(b) Have the Government ascertained whether communications could not have been made earlier, and danger signals hoisted earlier, than what was actually done?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a) Danger signals were hoisted at the following inland river stations of East Bengal on the 24th September at the times stated:—

Goalundo	...	...	...	...	19 hrs. 30 min.
Narayanganj	...	...	...	...	19 hrs. 51 min.
Chandpur	...	...	...	...	19 hrs. 20 min.
Barisal	...	...	...	...	20 hrs. 10 min.

(b) Government have ascertained that orders to hoist danger signals were communicated as soon as meteorological conditions indicated that such signals were necessary and justified."

Librarian of the Rajshahi College.

(a) Are the Government aware that the Librarian of the Rajshahi College, which is a large first grade College teaching up to the B.A. and B.Sc. Honours standard in English, Mathematics, Sanskrit, Philosophy, History, Physics and Chemistry, is an officer of the Lower Subordinate Educational Service on Rs. 20—25?

(b) Is it a fact that the Principal of the Rajshahi College made repeated applications for the appointment of a competent Librarian at a higher rate of pay?

(c) Is it a fact that these were rejected by the Director of Public Instruction on the ground that he considered that no good case had been made out by the Principal?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a comparative statement of the Library staff of the Presidency, Dacca and Rajshahi Colleges?

*Questions and Answers.Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Goode:—

“ (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) The Director of Public Instruction reports that in February, 1918, the Principal recommended the appointment of an additional librarian on Rs. 50, but the proposal could not be entertained mainly owing to financial stringency. The Principal re-opened the question in July last. Mr Dunn decided that the whole question of the pay of librarians in Government colleges should be reviewed. This has been done, and the Director of Public Instruction will shortly submit proposals to Government with regard to Rajshahi and certain other colleges, which also have only one librarian

(d) A statement is laid on the table ”

Statement referred to in the answer by the HON'BLE MR. GOODE to question No. III (starred) asked by the HON'BLE BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI at the Council meeting of the 19th November, 1919, showing the present staff of the Library of the Presidency, Dacca and Rajshahi Colleges.

(a) Are the Government aware that in all Government Colleges in Bengal, except the Rajshahi College, there is a gymnastic and games teacher? Want of a gymnastic and games teacher in the Rajshahi College

(b) Are the Government aware that the Principal applied for the creation of the post of a gymnastic and games master, but that the application was rejected by the Director of Public Instruction?

*Questions and Answers.Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Goode:—

(a) Yes at all except the Sanskrit College

(b) The Principal applied for the creation of a post in 1915, but the Director of Public Instruction could not entertain the proposal on account of financial stringency. Arrangements were, however, made by the Principal so that all the college students could take part in some form of physical exercise. The Principal reopened the question in August last, and the proposal is now under the consideration of Government.

Economics in the Rajshahi
College

(a) Are the Government aware of the fact that Economics has been taught in the Rajshahi College in the B A Pass Course for the last 7 or 8 years and that its teacher is a member of the Subordinate Educational Service?

(b) Is it a fact that since the beginning of the current session extension in affiliation in the Pass Economics has been granted to the Hooghly and Chittagong Colleges and that the teachers in this subject in the latter Colleges are members of the Provincial Educational Service?

(c) Is it a fact that the Principal of the Rajshahi College proposed to the Director of Public Instruction that the post of Teacher of Economics in the Rajshahi College might be filled by a member of the Provincial Educational Service as in the smaller Colleges at Hooghly and Krishnagar but that the Director of Public Instruction disapproved of the Principal's proposal?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state the reason for this differential treatment by the Director of Public Instruction, and whether there is any general principle by which he is guided in matters relating to the staff, equipment, contingent grant, etc., of Colleges?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Goode:—

"(a), (b) and (c) The reply is in the affirmative

(d) In the case of two of the other colleges referred to, it was considered necessary to obtain a professor, who could also lecture in history

In the case of Hooghly College, the University Inspectors insisted on a professor with high qualifications being appointed and an M A of the 1st class was only obtainable at Provincial Educational Service rates. The Director of Public Instruction cannot adhere to general principles in settling matters relating to the staff, equipment, contingent grant, etc., of Colleges. He must be guided by the special needs of each College and also by financial considerations."

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether timely warning of the advent of the cyclone was given to the people in the affected area?

(c) If not, what were the reasons of the failure to give such information and what action, if any, have the Government taken in the matter?

(d) Was there any difference in the information supplied by the Simla and Calcutta Meteorological Observatories?

(d) Are the Government aware of the opinion that has been expressed that the dullness of the market may be due to profiteering?

(e) What action, if any, are the Government taking to prevent profiteering?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a) Owing to the absence of foreign demand.

(b) Not so far as Government are aware

(c) The absence of foreign demand is understood to be due mainly to labour difficulties in England and America and in a minor degree to high freight and a high and fluctuating rate of exchange. The foreign market is the key to the situation.

(d) Government are not aware that the opinion has been expressed that the dullness of the market is due to profiteering. Moreover the facts and the eager competition amongst sellers to clear stocks indicate the reverse of profiteering.

Questions and Answers.

(c) Have the Government considered the desirability of arranging for the direct supply to each district of certain quantities of cloth for the benefit of the poorer classes of the people?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Payne:—

" (a) The price of cloth, though still high, has shown no very marked variation since the beginning of the current year

(b) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the press communiqué issued by the Government of India on the 28th October, 1919, a copy of which is laid on the table. The trend of prices is being carefully watched, but further action is not at present contemplated

(c) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to question No XIII (b) asked by him at the Council meeting of the 3rd September last. The cloth referred to in that answer was not needed for the purpose then contemplated, as there was no marked rise of price, and the greater part of it was used for the relief of those who suffered from the cyclone in Eastern Bengal. Arrangements have been made for the free distribution of a limited quantity of cloth to the poor in every district and also in Calcutta at the time of the Peace celebrations "

Press Communiqué referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR PAYNE in his reply to clause (b) of Question No. IX.

Since the provisions of the Cotton Cloth Act were formally put into operation in February last, there have been no violent fluctuations in the price of cloth, the trend of which over the whole period has been in a downward direction. During the last few weeks prices have risen in Bombay, mainly as a result of increased demand due to the favourable monsoon conditions, but indications point to an approach to a level which may be regarded as normal in post-war conditions. In these circumstances and in view of the fact that, as stated in a reply to a question asked by the Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi in the Imperial Legislative Council on September 25th, the Governments of the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa, in which the shortage of cloth was originally most acute, have still large stocks of standard cloth on hand and that arrangements have been made by the Controller of Cotton Cloth to ensure a supply of standard cloth to the Punjab and Assam where there is still a demand for it, the Government of India have decided that Cotton Cloth Control should be placed in abeyance for the present. The Cotton Cloth Act will, however, remain in force and its provisions will again be put into operation, should speculation in cloth or any other cause force prices up to such a point as to render this desirable. Mr. F. Noyce, I.C.S., Controller of Cotton Cloth, has joined the Indian Sugar Committee as Vice-President, but will remain in charge of the work connected with cloth control until it is finally wound up at the end of November. A full report on the operations will be published shortly.

(a) Are the Government considering the advisability of issuing orders directing the appointment of a Salaries Committee to examine generally the adequacy or otherwise of the rates of pay of Government subordinates and menial establishments in various departments, including village officers and others whose cases were not dealt with by the Royal Commission on Public Services in India? Rates of pay of Government subordinates, etc.

(b) Are the Government aware of the action adopted by the Madras Government in this connection?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Payne:—

Beyond this, no general inquiry is at present contemplated and in the existing abnormal economical conditions, and while uncertainty exists as to the future financial resources of the province, the time for such an inquiry is scarcely opportune.

Treatment of Bengal as a surplus Province

(a) With reference to the answer to my unstarred question No. 18(b) of the 12th August, 1919, stating that no definite date can be assigned to the decision of the Government of India to treat Bengal as a "surplus province," and also with reference to the reply to my unstarred question No. 29 (c) of the 3rd September, 1919, are the Government aware that in reply to a question put by the Hon'ble Maharaja of Kassimbazar on the 10th September, 1919, in the Indian Legislative Council, the Government of India stated that the said decision was arrived at "as a result of a conference held at Delhi in October, 1918, at which a representative of the Government of Bengal was present"?

(b) Will the Government also be pleased to refer to the reply given by them to my unstarred question No. 29 of the 3rd September, 1919, particularly the statement that "the Director of Civil Supplies, Bengal, attended (the conferences held at Nagpur and Delhi in August and October, 1918, respectively) with the permission of the Government of Bengal, but not as their representative," as also to the reply given by the Government of India to the said question of the Hon'ble Maharaja of Kassimbazar, particularly the statement that a representative of the Government of Bengal was present at the conference, and that the decision to treat Bengal as a "surplus province" was arrived at "as a result of the estimate of surplus stocks of rice available in Bengal which was supplied by the Bengal representative at the conference" held at Delhi?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the proceedings of the said conferences held at Nagpur and Delhi, which were laid on the table of the Indian Legislative Council in reply to another question by the Maharaja of Kassimbazar on the 10th September last, particularly the two opening addresses delivered by Sir Claude Hill who presided at these conferences, in which he described and treated the provincial members present as representatives of the different Provincial Governments?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to explain the apparent contradiction involved in the statements made by the Government of India and the Government of Bengal, respectively, in regard to the capacity in which the then Director of Civil Supplies (Mr. Beadel) attended the said conferences?

Questions and Answers.

(e) Is it not a fact that action was taken at the Delhi conference upon the statement made by Mr. Beadel, then Director of Civil Supplies, Bengal, that Bengal's exportable surplus, during the period November, 1918, to April, 1919, was 240,000 tons of rice?

(f) Is it not also a fact that at the Nagpur conference (which preceded the Delhi conference) Mr. Beadel stated "that in Bengal the prospects are fairly good and the total exportable surplus of Bengal rice may be estimated to be 300,000 tons, of which 60,000 were in Calcutta and the rest chiefly in Birbhum, Midnapore and Burdwan"?

(g) Will the Government be pleased to state whether these statements were made by Mr. Beadel on his personal responsibility?

(h) Will the Government be pleased to state on what data these calculations were based?

(i) When were these statements made by Mr. Beadel first brought to the notice of Government, and what steps have Government made since then to ascertain the correctness or otherwise of the same, and with what result?

(j) How far are these statements reliable in view of the elements of inaccuracy in agricultural statistics and incompleteness of certain trade returns, admitted by Government in reply to my unstarred question No. 26 of the 3rd September, 1919?

(k) Has the attention of Government been drawn to that part of the said proceedings of the conferences in which the standard of individual requirements in food-grains was fixed at one-fifth ton per head per year?

(l) Is it a fact that Mr. Beadel (Bengal) was a member of the sub-committee which was appointed to determine the said standard?

(m) With reference to the statement made by Government in reply to my unstarred question No. 17 of the 12th August, 1919, that "there is ground for believing that this (the standard of one-fifth ton per head per annum) is an overestimate," will the Government be pleased to indicate the considerations on which they differ from the said conferences in entertaining this belief?

(n) Is it a fact that while the Government of Bengal accept a lower standard for calculation, the other provinces that have been allowed to import rice from Bengal, under the system of control, have based the calculations of their requirements on the standard of one-fifth ton?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a). Yes; but the statement in the reply made on behalf of this Government was as follows:—

'The Government of Bengal are not in a position to answer the question on behalf of the Government of India or the Food-stuffs Commissioner, but they understand that no definite date can be assigned to such a decision.'

(b) Government have referred to the papers in question.

(c) The attention of Government has been drawn to the proceedings of the conferences and to the reply referred to.

Questions and Answers.

(d) Such words as 'representatives of the different Provincial Governments' can be used in different senses. They were used by the Government of Bengal in the sense that the Director of Civil Supplies was neither requested nor authorised to represent the views of this Government.

(e) The question is not clear. The proceedings do not appear to contain any reference to any action which can be definitely assigned to such a statement.

(f) Yes.

(g) Any statements made by Mr. Beadel were made on his personal responsibility.

(h) The estimate given at Nagpur was based on information from different Indian merchants; that given at Delhi was based on similar information, information supplied by District Officers and information gathered in the chief rice-producing centres of Bengal. The estimates were estimates of the amounts which at the time of their preparation the trade would be likely to export from Bengal.

(i) In October 1918. An inquiry was started as to the accuracy of these figures, but was dropped as unnecessary on receipt of orders to make detailed inquiries into the larger question of the amount of food-stocks in the Province. The orders arose out of the first resolution of the Delhi conference.

(j) The question does not seem to arise as these agricultural statistics or returns were not used in the compilation of the estimates.

(k), (l), (m) and (n) The attention of Government has been drawn to that part of the proceedings of the Delhi conference in which the standard of one-fifth ton per head per year was taken, not fixed, as a provisional basis. Mr. Beadel was a member of the sub-committee by which, inter alia, the said standard was adopted. Government have no official information on the subject, but so far as they are aware the standard provisionally adopted has been generally abandoned. In this connection the Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer to question No. 22 put by him in Council on the 3rd September, 1919."

(b) What arrangements are there in the different localities for the retail sale of controlled Burma rice, and for ensuring such sale strictly at controlled rates?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a) Two statements are laid on the table.

(b) A statement is laid on the table containing information called for up to the 27th September, 1919. Only persons or bodies of persons approved by the Collector who agreed to sell at controlled rates were allowed to import Burma rice. No other arrangements were in force generally."

(a) Is it a fact that about the first or second week of July last, a man was found inside the out-door ward of the Mayo Hospital, who desired admission to the hospital, and that the Doctor informed him that he could not be admitted as no bed was available?

Alleged dereliction of duty on the part of the Doctor in charge of the Mayo Hospital.

(b) Is it also a fact that though the man could not move and was lying on the floor, the Doctor in charge asked the man to go out of the hospital?

(c) Is it also a fact that he was then carried bodily and placed on the footpath in front of the Mayo Hospital?

Questions and Answers.

(d) Is it a fact that the deceased lay there till the next morning when a passer-by 'phoned for an ambulance and that he was removed to the Campbell Hospital, where he died?

(e) Whose duty was it to arrange for the removal of the deceased to the Campbell Hospital, or any other hospital, when it was found that there was no accommodation in the Mayo Hospital?

(f) Are the Government aware of the opinion that has been expressed that it was a dereliction of duty on the part of the Doctor in charge of the Mayo Hospital in having the deceased, who could not move and was lying on the floor, removed bodily to the footpath?

(g) Has the conduct of the Doctor the approval of Government? If not, what steps are the Government taking in the matter?

(h) Are the Government considering the desirability of issuing instructions to all Doctors in charge of hospitals, like that of the Mayo Hospital, that when there is no bed vacant in the hospital, proper steps be taken for sending such patients as are incapable of moving or are very unwell, to the Campbell Hospital or any other hospital?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Payne:—

"(a) On the night of the 25th June, 1919, a man applied for admission to the Mayo Hospital, and admission was refused by Dr. C. H. Banerjee, the House Surgeon on duty.

(b) There is no evidence to show that the man could not move. The House Surgeon states that he examined him and did not consider that he required medical treatment. The Surgeon General and the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, made a special inquiry into the matter and are of opinion that the House Surgeon should have admitted the man into the hospital.

(c) The man was helped out of the hospital by two ward coolies and placed on the footpath.

(d) The man lay on the footpath all night and was found in the morning with a wound on his forehead. He was then removed in an ambulance to the Campbell Hospital, where he died.

(e) The reason assigned by the House Surgeon for the non-admission of the deceased was not so much the want of accommodation as that he considered that the man did not require medical treatment. As already stated, the officers who conducted the inquiry do not agree with the conclusion of the House Surgeon in this respect.

(f) and (g) The Surgeon-General and the Commissioner of Police consider that the House Surgeon was guilty of dereliction of duty in not admitting the deceased to the hospital. The House Surgeon is not a Government servant, but Government have reported the matter to the Governors of the Mayo Hospital, under whom he is serving.

(h) The rules of the Mayo Hospital provide that all urgent and emergent cases (with the exception of certain specified infectious diseases) should be admitted. This is a general rule in all hospitals, but the Surgeon-General is issuing a circular drawing special attention to this rule and emphasising that such cases must be admitted and accommodated somehow, whether there is a vacant bed or not."

(a) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table the scheme which has been elaborated for establishing a Lower Primary School of an improved type in each Panchayati Union? Establishment of a Lower Primary School in each Panchayati Union.

a month as detailed in the margin, and of each girls' school Rs. 16 (which includes pay of maid-servants and contingencies). Government also bears a portion of the cost of repairs to the schools.

The funds required for both capital and recurring expenditure are placed by Government at the disposal of the District Boards and the schools are under the direct management of these Boards. The teachers of these schools are allowed to take the fee-receipts.

(b) Up to the present 2,712 Board lower primary schools for boys and girls have been opened in the various districts. A statement is laid upon the table showing the distribution of schools for boys and girls separately district by district.

(c) The Board lower primary schools are superior to ordinary primary schools, in that they are distributed on a definite geographical basis, and are not opened haphazard like privately managed schools. The Board schools are better housed, better equipped, and better staffed, the teachers being selected from Guru Training passed men. The quality of discipline and organisation which prevails in these schools is also superior.

Comilla.

(a) Are the Government aware that the hospital at Comilla is an ill-equipped institution and, in fact, one of the worst mufassal hospitals in the province?

(b) Are the Government aware that Comilla was formerly considered almost as a sanitarium, but that it no longer enjoys that reputation?

(c) Are the Government considering the advisability of improving the condition of the Comilla Hospital, and of making a suitable provision in next year's budget for the purpose?

*Questions and Answers.Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Payne:—

" (a) Government are aware that the Comilla hospital requires improvement.

(b) The mortality statistics do not bear out the suggestion that Comilla is becoming increasingly unhealthy.

(c) The hospital is the property of, and is managed by, the Comilla municipality who are said to be handicapped by want of funds. It primarily the duty of the Municipal Commissioners to move in the matter of effecting an improvement, though in similar cases elsewhere private generosity has not infrequently been forthcoming. If any well-devised scheme is submitted to Government, it will be duly considered."

(c) Is it a fact that—

(i) on the 29th August last, a rice boat was looted by about 20 or 25 men in the river Bichanda, near Jhalakati, in the district of Bakarganj;

(ii) some of the looters were arrested, and

(iii) they pleaded that they were driven to this crime by starvation?

(d) Has there been any trial of the people arrested? If so, with what result?

(f) Is it a fact that some people have been arrested by the police in connection with this occurrence?

(g) Have they been put on trial? If so, with what result?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

" (a) The facts of the case are as follows:—

The boy in question is a sickly child, aged about 3 years. His mother is a professional beggar, homeless and deaf, and her present husband is also a professional beggar. One Saiyid Ali of the village of Shunshi took a fancy to the boy and adopted him as his son with the consent of the father and mother. Saiyid Ali gave a new piece of cloth to the mother and Rs 3 to her husband; but they deny having sold the child last. Three persons were arrested immediately after the occurrence. Two of them made confessions before the Sadar Subdivisional Officer stating that they were driven to theft by hunger. A charge sheet was submitted by the police against 16 persons of whom 10 were tried and the rest absconded. Of the 10 accused who were tried, six pleaded guilty before the trying Magistrate, five of whom stated that they had committed the crime on account of hunger. Eight of the men were convicted under sections 143 and 380, Indian Penal Code, on the 16th October last. Seven of the accused were sentenced to two months' rigorous imprisonment and one to 14 days' rigorous imprisonment on each of the counts, the sentences being directed to run concurrently. Two of the accused were acquitted as the case against them was not proved.

(e) to (g) There is no police-station by the name of Dumjo in the district of Dacca, and no such case of looting was reported from any village called Begari or any other village in the district."

(b) Have those recommendations been given effect to?

(c) What action, if any, has since been taken by the Government in that behalf?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a) to (c) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply given to question No. VIII (starred) at the meeting of the Council held on the 3rd July, 1919. Copies of the press communiqué of the 28th October, 1918 and Mr. N. N. Pillai's report referred to therein have been supplied to the Hon'ble Member.

The views already held by Government that the conditions in Bengal are not generally favourable to any marked extension of cotton cultivation are confirmed by the opinion expressed in the report of the Indian Cotton Committee, 1919, namely, that exotic varieties of cotton are unsuited to the climatic and other conditions of the province, and that there seems no prospect of any appreciable extension of the area under the indigenous varieties. The recommendations of that Committee are now under examination."

(i) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to the starred question No. IX put by the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur at the Council meeting of the 3rd July, 1919.

(ii) In accordance with the recommendation of the Association, orders have been issued for the grant of loans under the Agriculturists' Loans Act for the purchase of seeds and improved agricultural implements; similar orders had previously issued regarding the purchase of manure. development of the country.

Will the Government be pleased to enumerate all the steps that have been actually taken in the matter of industrial development of the country since the publication of the report of the Industrial Commission?

*Questions and Answers.Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Payne:—

“ The question is very general in form, but presumably it has reference to the steps taken by the Government of Bengal and not to the various industrial developments due to private enterprise.

The report of the Indian Industrial Commission was received towards the end of 1918, but it necessarily took some time to consider the proposals, and it was not until September last that the sanction of the Secretary of State was received to the organisation of a Department of Industries, which will now be undertaken.

The main questions to which the activities of the Government of Bengal have been directed in the matter of the development of industries since the publication of the report are as follows:—

- (1) The continuation of the development of such industries as assisted in the supply of war materials.
- (2) The encouragement and improvement of hand-loom weaving, for which an officer was placed on special duty and in which considerable progress has been made.
- (3) The investigation of the possibilities of obtaining good tanning material from the Sunderban forests. This inquiry, which is being conducted by Mr. Pilgrim, the tannin expert, is now nearly completed and promises very satisfactory results.
- (4) Investigations made at the Calcutta research tannery, especially as regards—
  - (a) the improvement of local tan-stuffs, and
  - (b) the manufacture of sole leather from buffalo hides.
- (5) The leasing of forests for industrial purposes, such as the extraction of wood pulp, etc.
- (6) The reorganisation of the sericultural department with the object of improving the silk industry.
- (7) The development of co-operative societies with industrial objects.

In addition to the above, technical advice has been given to the promoters of industrial concerns, and in some cases facilities have been afforded under the Land Acquisition Act for the acquisition of land for industrial companies whose operations were of public utility.”

- (ii) What progress has it made?
- (iii) What is the amount of the money actually expended up to now upon the scheme?
- (iv) What tangible result has so far been achieved?

*Questions and Answers.Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Payne:—

"(i) and (ii) Land has been acquired and buildings consisting of (1) a laboratory for tanning chemical research, and (2) an experimental tannery for both large and small scale experiments, have been constructed. An Indian who has specialised in the study of tannins in England for several years has been appointed as research chemist. (b) Has any anti-malarial drainage project been completely carried out up to now?

(c) If so, in what district or districts and at what cost?

(d) What appreciable improvement have they effected in the sanitary condition of the localities concerned?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Goode:—

“(a) (i) The following anti-malarial schemes have been taken up for execution during the current year—

(1) Baraghachi.

(2) Manikhali.

(3) Jabuna.

(4) Arul Beel.

(5) Nawai-Sunthi.

(ii) Nos. (1), (2) and (5) relate to the 24-Parganas district and Nos. (3) and (4) to the Jessore district.

(iii) (a) Baraghachi.—This is a deep basin where rain water collects and where no cultivation is now possible. Here the water will be drained away and regulated according to the needs of the crop.

Questions and Answers.

(b) Manikkhali.—A new khal is to be constructed in place of the old khal. The idea is to bring a large area of land into cultivation and also to admit the silt-laden water of Hooghly into the khal and pass it through fields and low-lying ditches.

(c) Jabuna.—The idea is to resuscitate the dead river in certain portions. By tapping the water of certain beels, the beels will be brought under cultivation and the excess water will be drained away through the dead river. The river, which is at present the breeding place of millions of mosquitoes, will thus be improved and the number of mosquitoes diminished to a great extent.

(d) Arul Beel.—A large area of land will be brought under cultivation and the surplus water will be drained away via the Mukteswari and Harihar rivers. Here also the chief aim is regulation of water.

(e) Nawai-Sunthi.—With this scheme is combined the Burthi Beel project. The object is the same: the dying or dead rivers will be resuscitated and a large beel area will come under cultivation.

(iv) Construction works are being carried out for all the five schemes.

(b) and (c) Yes. Four anti-malarial flood flush schemes have so far been completely carried out, viz :—

(1) In the Meenglas tea estate in the district of Jalpaiguri, at a cost of Rs. 34,000.

(2) In the Singaran-Toposi collieries in the district of Burdwan, at a cost of Rs. 13,200.

(3) Within the Jangipur municipality in the district of Murshidabad, at a cost of Rs. 27,500.

(4) At Banka Valley in the district of Burdwan, at a cost of Rs. 73,217.

(d) There is definite evidence of the relative reduction of anopheles mosquitoes both at Meenglas and at Singaran. As regards morbidity and mortality the figures of last year have, however, been vitiated by unprecedented sickness due to influenza.

As regards the Banka Valley Scheme the evidence of the Superintending Engineer is that the scheme has resulted in the saving of crops which would otherwise have been lost: and the scheme from this point of view must have had a direct effect on the health of the population in the sphere of its operations.

The residents at Jangipur agree that an appreciable improvement has been effected in that portion of the town where the scheme is complete."

"(a) and (b) The organization called the Boy Scouts of Bengal is at present independent of the Baden Powell Association which is under a Provincial Commissioner with an Advisory Council, the whole Baden Powell Association in India being under a Chief Commissioner and Council. Larger provincial independence is desirable with the admission of the Boy Scouts of Bengal to the Baden Powell Association, and this is now under consideration. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state what rules authorize the Director of Public Instruction to create posts carrying different values from Rs. 50 to Rs. 250 outside the Subordinate Educational Service cadre sanctioned by the Secretary of State for India?

Officers of the Subordinate Educational Service grades and outside grades.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state from what funds the salary of the officers of the outside grade service are drawn?

(c) For what purposes was the outside grades list opened, and when?

(d) Is it a fact that a portion of the costs for maintaining the outside grade officers is met by the sum left undischarged due to the non-filling up of vacancies in the Subordinate Educational Service grades?

(e) Is it a fact that a considerable number of posts from Rs. 35 to Rs. 50 are being created every year against the vacancies in the higher grades of the Subordinate Educational Service?

(f) Are the Government aware that the officers in the outside grades list generally get higher initial pay than that received by equally qualified and equally placed officers in the Subordinate Educational Service grades? If so, what steps are being taken for safeguarding the interests and promotions of the latter?

(g) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it has been decided that the outside grade officers should come into the grades vacancies of the Subordinate Educational Service or in created posts? If so, what has been done to safeguard the interests of those already in the lowest grades and those who have been in service for a considerable number of years?

*Questions and Answers.Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Goode:—

(a) The Director of Public Instruction is not competent to create posts of this kind.

(b) From the Provincial Revenues.

(c) The list of officers outside the graded services was prepared to enable this office to deal with questions relating to these officers in a convenient manner. The list was first published in August, 1902.

(d) No

(e) No.

(f) The initial pay of an officer is regulated by his qualifications and no distinction is made between posts inside and outside the grades.

(g) In view of the reply to (f) it is perfectly just that officers appointed outside the grades should have the same prospects of promotion as those appointed inside the grades."

(a) Is it a fact that the Government have decided that the posts of head clerks of the larger offices shall not carry a salary of less than Rs. 100 per month? If so, will the Government be pleased to state why the head clerks of training colleges and of the Dacca Engineering School have not been included in the list of such posts?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state how many cases of special promotions have been sanctioned for officers in which there is actual teaching work involved and how many to the inspecting officers of the Subordinate Educational Service grades, in the last three years?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state whether there is any rule which fixes a time-limit for promotion of an officer from one grade to another in the Subordinate Educational Service?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state whether new posts have been sanctioned by the Government in the grades of the Subordinate Educational Service to provide for special promotions?

(e) Is it a fact that some of the grade vacancies are being absorbed by the recipients of special promotions?

(f) Is it a fact that a large number of vacancies in the Subordinate Educational Service grades, sanctioned by the Secretary of State, are being filled up with new postings, such as lecturers, demonstrators, and others?

(g) Is it a fact that a large number of vacancies in the grades of the Subordinate Educational Service, sanctioned by the Secretary of State, are being utilized by bringing in outside grade officers into the grades?

(h) Are the Government aware that a feeling of discontent and insecurity is prevalent amongst the officers of the Subordinate Educational Service due to the postings of outsiders and outside grade officers and to the scores of recipients of special promotions in the grade vacancies, thus blocking their future prospects and promotions?

Postings of outsiders and outside grade officers and special promotions
vacancies.

Questions and Answers.

(i) Will the Government be pleased to state under what rules the Director of Public Instruction can put in outsiders in the vacancies of the grades, thereby blocking the promotion of officers already in the grades?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Goode:—

"(a) The reply to the first part of the question is in the negative. The second part does not arise.

(b) There has been no case of special promotion to an inspecting officer in the Subordinate Educational Service during the last three years, as officers outside the grades are placed in grade vacancies carrying the same pay as their appointments outside the grade. There was one case of special promotion to a teacher of the Dow Hill School, who was promoted from class VI to class V as a result of an existing vacancy.

(c) The reply is in the negative

(d) The reply is in the negative.

(e) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply given to (b); that is the only case that has occurred.

(f) Lecturers and demonstrators are generally recruited initially on Rs 125 in class IV of the Subordinate Educational Service and foreman instructors in class II of the same service

(g) Latterly officers outside the grades with similar qualifications and responsibilities, who are generally on fixed pay, have been brought into the vacancies in the Subordinate Educational Service with a view to giving them chances of promotion.

(h) It is not true that there have been scores of recipients of special promotion in grade vacancies—last year the Director of Public Instruction decided to give equal chances of promotion to graded and ungraded officers, due consideration being given to qualifications and nature of work done. An officer on Rs. 50 outside the grades has thus been considered for promotion to a post of Rs. 60 inside the grades. Similarly a graded officer on Rs. 45 has been given a chance of promotion to the resulting vacancy on Rs. 50 outside the graded service. It was thought that the system adopted would not affect the prospects of promotion of graded officers seriously as the average pay of posts in the Subordinate Educational Service and Lower Subordinate Educational Service combined is Rs. 58.3 as against Rs. 43.7 of ungraded posts

(i) Under the powers delegated to the Director of Public Instruction, he is competent to appoint, transfer, etc., all officers in the Subordinate Educational Service and those outside the grades whose pay does not exceed Rs. 250 per month."

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the report of the Medical Service Committee appointed by the Government of India has now been considered by the Bengal Government and is ready to be made public?

Report of the

Questions and Answers.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the petitions of the Civil Assistant Surgeons submitted to the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General with the Government of Bengal have been considered by that authority and whether any recommendation or report made thereon has been submitted to Government?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state when the matter of these petitions is likely to be disposed of by this Government?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state the reason (if any) why the increment of the pay of the Civil Assistant Surgeons as recommended by the Public Service Commission has been held in abeyance up to date whilst the pay of the officers of the Indian Medical Service and also of the Military Assistant Surgeons and of the Sub-Assistant Surgeons has been increased?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Payne:—

"(a) The report of the Medical Services Committee has been considered by this Government, but the question of its publication rests with the Government of India, by whom the Committee was appointed.

(b) Petitions from Civil Assistant Surgeons in this Presidency asking for an improvement in their pay and prospects have been forwarded to Government by the Surgeon-General with his recommendations and are now under consideration.

(c) There is not likely to be much delay on the part of this Government in dealing with these petitions, but the questions involved are intimately connected with the proposals of the Medical Services Committee, which are now under the consideration of the Government of India, to whom the recommendations of this Government will have to be forwarded.

(d) The consideration of the pay and prospects of Civil Assistant Surgeons has been delayed on account of the recommendations of the Medical Services Committee. The pay of Civil Assistant Surgeons was increased in 1912, and a further increase of pay was given to civil assistant surgeons officiating as Civil Surgeons in 1915. To that extent the question of the further revision of the pay of this service was not as urgent as in some other instances to which priority may have been given."

(a) Have the Government made any inquiries into the prospects of the fish-curing industry and fish-oil and fish-guano-manufacture in Bengal? Prospects of the fish-curing industry, etc.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to make a statement showing the results of any such inquiries that have been made in recent years?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

“(a) and (b) Yes. The Hon'ble Member is referred to paragraphs 17 and 18 of the Annual Report of the Department of Fisheries, Bengal and Bihar and Orissa for the year 1918-19, a copy of which is placed on the library table.

Investigations regarding fish-oil and fish-guano manufacture were made as early as 1909-10 in connection with the trawling of the Bay of Bengal by the steam trawler Golden Crown. The investigations have shown that marine fish is rich in fish-oil and fish manure. The development of industries in such bye-products awaits the development of the marine fisheries by commercial agencies. The information required will be found in paragraphs 109-114 of report on the progress of enquiry into the fisheries of Bengal submitted by Mr. Ahmad in the year 1910. Copies of these paragraphs are laid on the library table.”

Will the Government be pleased to make a statement showing the achievements of the Department of Fisheries in respect of— Department Fisheries.

- (i) the organisation of trade in fish;
- (ii) the extension of financial facilities to fishermen;
- (iii) the opening out of existing fisheries; and
- (iv) the education and training of fishermen, since the department was removed from the Department of Agriculture and established as a separate body?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

“(i), (ii) and (iii) The Hon'ble Member is referred to paragraph 15 of the Annual Report of the Department of Fisheries for 1917, out of which his questions arise. He will find there that the organisation of trade in fish, the extension of financial facilities to fishermen, and the opening out of fisheries is not dependent on Government alone but on the willingness of the moneyed classes to promote the organisation, capital and the banking facilities necessary to develop the industry. He will also find that to enable the Department to deal adequately with such problems an increase in staff was necessary. Government have, therefore, appointed three District Fishery Officers as an experiment this year and it is proposed to augment the number next year; but it is necessary to proceed slowly and learn by experience. The Hon'ble Member is also referred to the answer to his question No. 39.

(iv) The matter is under consideration. Special facilities are being given at one primary school for the education of the children of fishermen in the district of Dacca and a special primary school has also been established for the same purpose.”

fish trade.

Is there any truth in the statement that the whole of the Calcutta fish trade is monopolised by three or four persons, and that the trade is so organised as to prevent the possibility of retail dealers gaining any success in the fish business in Calcutta?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"The trade in Calcutta is in the hands of a limited number of persons and an outsider finds it difficult to start a business successfully."

co-operative
fishermen.

(a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement showing the co-operative societies that have been formed up to date amongst the fishermen in the several districts of the Presidency?

(b) How have they succeeded in excluding the middlemen?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

(a) A statement is laid on the table.

(b) The societies enumerated above are practically credit societies. Attempts made to induce the members to combine to sell their fish have not been successful. Some of the societies, however, have now taken a lease of their fisheries direct and have to this extent excluded middlemen.

(b) If so, are the Government contemplating the formation of such societies in large numbers in other parts of the Presidency also?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Goode:—

“(a) The reply is in the affirmative. The Hon'ble Member is referred to paragraph 63 of the Report on Sanitation in Bengal for 1918.

(b) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply given to the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur's question No. 64 on the 3rd July, 1919. The formation of new co-operative societies of this kind must depend mainly on the initiative being taken by the villagers themselves.”

stores.

- (a) How many co-operative stores are there in the Presidency?
- (b) Is it a fact that the prevailing high prices have created a desire for such stores in several districts and subdivisional headquarters?
- (c) If so, what steps are the Government taking to develop co-operative distribution in this connection?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a) On the 8th November, 1919, there were 33 co-operative stores in the Presidency and 7 agricultural purchase and sale societies which also carry on the business of co-operative stores.

(b) It is a fact that a desire for such stores has grown up in several districts and subdivisional headquarters during the last 12 months. Presumably the prevailing high prices were the cause.

(c) The number of stores rose in the year ending 30th June, 1919, from 8 to 18. Since the 1st of July, 1919, the number has risen to the figures given in answer to the first part of the question. The increase is largely the result of propaganda by the officers of the Co-operative Department. The Registrar of Co-operative Societies and his officers have brought the advantages of co-operative distribution to the notice of the public in all parts of the Province. A bureau of information has been opened in the office of the Registrar of Co-operative Societies and twice a week bulletins are issued to societies giving the Calcutta rates for commodities which are likely to be required in the mufassal. Every facility is being given by the Co-operative Department for organization of co-operative stores in all parts of the Presidency; but at the same time applications are being strictly scrutinised with a view to reducing the possibility of failures."

(d) Was anybody punished for it?

(e) What was the manager's salary before the occurrence and what after it?

(f) When was his salary increased?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

(b) Rs. 2,177-13-6. The defalcation was brought to light during the latter part of 1915.

(c) The Estate pleader entrusted with the work of execution of decrees obtained by the estate allowed his muharrir to receive money from the judgment debtors. The muharrir instead of crediting the money realized misappropriated it. The Estate pleader, not the manager, was directly responsible.

(d) The law muharrir was criminally prosecuted and convicted.

(c) Did the Court of Wards sanction the costs of the defence, and what did they amount to?

(d) What disciplinary action, as referred to in the answer given to my unstarred question of 4th April, 1918, did the manager and Collector of the district take to control the employees of the said estate and to prevent their misconduct?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

" (a) Four criminal cases against seventeen peons of the estate were instituted in March and April 1918. No criminal charges have been brought since then.

(b) (i) Sections 147 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code—10 accused, ended in conviction.

(iii) Sections 447 and 426 of the Indian Penal Code—2 accused, ended in conviction.

(iv) Section 147 of the Indian Penal Code—2 accused convicted by Deputy Magistrate, acquitted by Sessions Judge.

(c) Is it a fact that the services rendered by this dispensary in fighting malaria were greatly appreciated by the authorities?

(d) When and at whose instance was the Mathurapur dispensary closed?

“(a) There was a charitable dispensary at Mathurapur in the district of Malda with a private medical practitioner, and not an assistant surgeon, in charge.

“(b) and (d) This dispensary was a private one established and supported by Mr. Hennessy, the proprietor of the Mathurapur estate. It also received a grant from the District Board. (c) How many applications have been received from the Indian and other communities respectively for building houses on the terms offered by Government?

(d) Are the Government aware of the opinion that has been expressed that the terms and conditions of lease are not generally considered to be fair?

(e) Are the Government considering the desirability of modifying the said terms and conditions?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

“(a) The resumption of 756 acres on the northern portion of the Rinkingpong ridge is practically complete and steps are being taken to resume 1,102 acres on the southern portion of the ridge.

The allocation of sites in the northern portion will be made shortly.

A detailed scheme of water-supply has been approved, and a sum of 2 lakhs has been provided for expenditure on this account during the present financial year.

Questions and Answers.

Arrangements are being made for the construction and improvement of roads, and for the preparation of a drainage scheme.

(b) On the northern portion of the ridge, 252 building sites are available. They will be leased for a term of 90 years, subject to certain broad conditions. The rates of premium will vary from Rs. 500 to Rs. 1,500 per acre, and the rates of ground rent from Rs. 50 to Rs. 100 per acre per annum according to the position and suitability of the site. The rates of ground rent are subject to revision after each period of 30 years.

A pamphlet embodying the main features of the scheme and the terms of the lease has been available to the public for several months and a copy of it is laid on the library table.

(c) Three hundred and twelve applications have been received up to date for building sites, of which 228 are from Indians and 84 from other communities.

(a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the grievances of the travelling public in regard to the Khulna-Bagerhat Railway, as published in the newspapers? The Khulna-Bagerhat Railway.

(b) Are the Government aware of the serious inconveniences suffered by the travelling public on the said railway, arising mainly from the following circumstances—

- (i) the lower class carriages are unprotected and unsafe;
- (ii) the roofs leak in the rains, and the canvas coverings are insufficient for protecting passengers from the heat and rain;
- (iii) there are no waiting-rooms for upper class passengers and for purdanashin ladies at several stations;
- (iv) there are no platforms;
- (v) the number of carriages for females of the 3rd class is insufficient, and there is no special accommodation for upper class female passengers;
- (vi) the charges for the ferry are too much, especially for the 3rd class; and
- (vii) no water-closets are provided for passengers at the stations, nor for male passengers in the 3rd class carriages?

(c) What action, if any, are the Government taking for the removal of these grievances?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Cowley:—

" (a) Yes.

(b) The replies are as follows :—

- (i) The type of carriage in use on the Khulna-Bagerhat Railway is similar to that adopted on several other light railways of narrow gauge, and experience has not shown that such carriages are insufficiently protected or unsafe.

Questions and Answers.

- (ii) Carriages designed for a light railway are necessarily of light construction and canvas coverings are generally considered sufficient. Some leakage may have occurred but the Railway authorities are giving this matter their attention.
- (iii) The Khulna-Bagerhat Railway is a small light railway of a total length of  $19\frac{1}{2}$  miles. The number of upper class passengers for six months amounted to 1,492 in all. In the opinion of the Railway Administration traffic of such proportions does not appear to justify the provision of waiting-rooms at present. There are waiting-halls at Rupsa East, Bahirdia, Telidanga, Jatrapur and Bagerhat.
- (iv) Platforms at rail level have been constructed at all stations. In view of the lowness of the carriages, the Railway Administration does not consider that raised platforms are necessary.
- (v) Reply is embodied in the reply to question (c).
- (vi) The charges for the ferry service are levied by the Steamer Companies and are not considered excessive. They are—

			Rs. A. P.
Passengers	...	...	...	0 2 6	each.
Luggage and Parcels	...	...	...	0 4 0	per maund.
Goods	...	...	...	0 0 8	per maund.

- (vii) A latrine has been provided at Rupsa East Station and another is being constructed at Bagerhat Station. Should traffic increases warrant, and funds permit, the Railway Administration is prepared to provide others.

(c) In view of the fact that the Khulna-Bagerhat Railway is a light railway of only  $19\frac{1}{2}$  miles in length and that the journey from Khulna to Bagerhat takes only 2 hours, and further that it is a new line recently opened, it does not appear to be quite reasonable to expect that facilities such as exist on large railways can be immediately provided. As the line becomes better established and revenue increases, the Railway authorities will doubtless gradually improve the present condition of the line."

LEGISLATIVE BUSINESS.*LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 3.*THE CALCUTTA CRUELTY TO ANIMALS BILL, 1919.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler moved that the Calcutta Cruelty to Animals Bill, 1919, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Stevenson-Moore, the Hon'ble Mr. G. N. Roy, the Hon'ble Mr. Payne, the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur, the Hon'ble Mr. Phelps, the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray and the mover, with instructions to submit their report in time for its presentation in Council at the meeting in December next.

He said :—

" My Lord, I had the honour to introduce this Bill at the meeting of the 12th August last, and I then explained the general nature of its provisions. Since then the Bill has been circulated for opinion, and a certain number of replies have been received which, I believe, are in the hands of Hon'ble Members. Two or three, I am told, are still outstanding. A perusal of the replies indicates, as may have been reasonably anticipated, that no exception is taken to the general principles and objects of the Bill. Comments are made on points of detail and suggestions are offered for improvement, but these are matters which can be gone into by the Select Committee, and as on the question of principle, which is at the moment our main concern there is general agreement, I do not propose to take up the time of the Council further by a discussion in detail of particular provisions of the Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

BILL, 1919.*LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 4:

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the law relating to the Regulation of the Eastern Frontier Rifles (Bengal Battalion).

He said :—

"My Lord, this Bill has reference to the force which is generally known as the Dacca military police. In addition to the ordinary civil police as found at thanas, and in addition to the armed branches of that civil police which are concentrated in small numbers at the headquarters of districts, experience of many years has shown the necessity in Bengal of keeping in readiness, for use in times of emergency, a small well disciplined mobilised force which can be subjected to a higher degree of discipline, and therefore attain a higher degree of efficiency, than the ordinary civil police. That force is known as the military police, and in nature it partakes more of a military than a civil character. In Bengal it has been in existence, in one form or another, for many years. To go no further back than the last redistribution of the province in 1912, it was then constituted on a basis of six companies. In 1918, owing to its being found that the strength was insufficient to meet the duties devolving upon it, a seventh Company was added, and the force now comprises about 750 officers and men. It is distributed thus : 5 companies at Dacca, one at Hooghly and one at Buxa ; and it is comprised of Gurkhas, who are in the minority, and of Jharuas.

As I have said, the employment of military police in Bengal and in the adjacent province of Assam is no new thing. It was formerly—i.e., before the days of the first partition—regulated by what was known as the Bengal Military Police Act (V of 1892) and the Assam Military Police Regulation of 1890. After the first partition and the creation of the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, the headquarters of what may be said to have represented the old Bengal force was placed at Dacca, with detachments at Barisal, Silchar and the Garo Hills. In addition there were other more distinctively Assamese battalions employed in the upper districts of Assam. We kept the residue of the companies, the most important being, I think, at Bhagalpur and Ranchi. It was not long before the Eastern Bengal and Assam Government felt the obvious inconvenience of having two bodies of military police within their boundaries governed by two different Acts, namely, the Assam police governed by the old regulation of 1890, and the new force at Dacca governed by the old Bengal Act of 1892. The men were liable to be employed together and also, I believe, were liable to be transferred from one battalion to another. In consequence of that fact the Eastern Bengal and Assam Government passed what was known as the Eastern Bengal and Assam Military Police Act of 1912, which was applicable to all the military police within their borders, thus restoring uniformity of treatment, and after the second partition that Act was brought into force in the present province of Bengal with effect from the 1st October, 1912, by notification under the Bengal, Bihar and Orissa and Assam Laws Act, 1912. So at the present moment we are governed in Bengal by the Eastern Bengal and Assam Military Police Act, as in the adjacent province, which is now Assam only. That is the existing position.

In 1917 the Assam Government moved the Government of India to be allowed to adopt a more distinctly military nomenclature in designating their force, which they wished to call the Assam Rifles. The reasons for that request were, briefly, that they wished to enhance the status of the force when it was on military duty. They had found that when these men were employed along with regular troops on the Frontier—and, incidentally, had done well and been commended by inspecting officers—there was a tendency on the part of regular soldiers to look down upon them as being merely policemen, and not pukka soldiers, and that reacted prejudicially on the force. By removing that defect, they thought also that it would be easier to get military officers to join the force, and it is on the presence of military officers that discipline very largely depends, while it was found that the feeling of all ranks was very keen that they should be regarded in the eyes of the public as what they were, i.e., more soldiers than civil police. The Government of India accepted the argument, but drew attention to the state of the law which would require amendment in order to enable a new name to be given to the force. They pointed out that if the local administration was going to amend the Act, it had better at the same time get rid of the anomaly by which the Assam force was governed by the same Act as the separate Bengal force, letting each province stand on its own and have the kind of Act best suited to it. They therefore referred the matter to us, and we made enquiries as to how matters stood here. We found that, just as in Assam, the officers and men in our force strongly resented being called 'police' when in many respects they were treated as soldiers, and especially they resented it if the status of the Assam force was going to be raised in this respect and they were going to be left as they were. We recruit from very much the same sources as at least some of the Assam battalions, and if we do not put our battalion on the level of Assam, we should obviously have difficulty in finding men, and should get the worst recruits. Therefore the same arguments were found to be valid in the case of Bengal, especially as our Dacca battalion had been employed on the Frontier both in the old days along with the Assam battalions, and in recent times in the Abor expedition of 1911-12 and in the Chinlong expedition of 1913. This same question of status was further emphasised by the experience of the recent great war, when one officer and 101 men went from our force to the Indian Expeditionary Force and did very well. One man got an Order of Merit, and a havildar was promoted to a subardarship, while seven men got promotion as non-commissioned officers and those who saw the men uniformly spoke well of them.

In view of these facts it seems to the Local Government to be reasonable that we should fall into line with the administration of Assam, and call our men by a more distinctly military name. We had some discussion as to what that name should be, and eventually, on the suggestion of the Government of India, we propose to adopt the terminology of the Eastern Frontier Rifles, Bengal Battalion. On the basis of that terminology the Act has been re-drafted, although there has been no practical change in substance. The amendments, which will be found underlined, are mainly verbal, largely concerned with the substitution of the word 'rifleman' for 'military police.' To all intents and purposes the Act is in substance what it was before; only amendments of a verbal character are proposed in order to give effect to the intention, which I have explained, of giving the battalion the more distinctly military status which it really enjoys. The Act itself, as will be seen from a brief glance at it, refers specifically to the discipline and maintenance of the force. There are special terms of enlistment, and men wishing to join come under a discipline which is more distinctly appropriate to soldiers. The Act therefore is one which little concerns the interests of the public; its amendment is designed to meet a need peculiar to the force as such."

The motion was put and agreed to.

*Resolutions.The President; Babu Surendra Nath Ray.RESOLUTIONS(under the rules for the discussion of matters of general public interest.)LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEMS Nos. 5, 6 and 7.*The President said :—

"I have agreed to the postponing to the next meeting of resolutions Nos. 5, 6 and 7 on the Agenda paper standing in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta on the ground that the Hon'ble Member is unable to be present to-day on account of illness."

The resolutions were as follows :—

5. The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that arrangements be made with a view to the payment of the monthly pensions of Government pensioners in the Presidency of Bengal by postal money-order, if they so desire, and that, if necessary, the sanction of the Government of India be obtained in that behalf.

6. Also to move the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to improve the pay and prospects of the Assistant Surgeons in the Presidency.

7. Also to move the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to improve the pay and prospects of the compounders attached to Government hospitals and dispensaries in the Presidency.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 8.

8. The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Government do approach the Government of India for a grant of rupees fifty lakhs or such sum as they may think necessary from the Imperial Government to alleviate the distress caused by the recent cyclone in Eastern Bengal.

He said :—

"My Lord, for two years the country had been put to great inconvenience and the people subjected to great hardship on account of the high price of cloth, for nearly a year the country had been almost on the verge of famine on account of the abnormally high price of rice and other food-stuffs and the people could with difficulty eke out an existence, when the terrific cyclone of the 24th September last swept over the province and laid desolate a number of adjacent districts of Eastern Bengal, including portions of Khulna and Jessore.

That your Excellency's Government have now been doing all that they possibly can to alleviate the sufferings of those who have suffered from the cyclone is well-known. There was no doubt some delay on the part of the Central Government to move in the matter and to take necessary steps, but the men on the spot, some of the District Magistrates, Sub-divisional Officers and some of the circle officers had already been to the places affected by the cyclone and were doing their level best with the limited means at their disposal in organising relief work. The non-official gentlemen who had gone to some of these places for rendering help saw that relief work had already been commenced by Government officers. But if your Lordship's Government have now been doing all that they possibly can to alleviate the sufferings of those who have suffered from the cyclone, the leaders of the people have also come forward in this great work. In fact they were the first in the field in organising regular relief measures in some of the more affected areas. The Bengal Relief Fund Committee, the Ram Krishna Mission, the Sadharan Brahma Samaj and the Seva Samiti people, and last but not least the Servants of India Society have been working hard and zealously to alleviate the sufferings of the people in distress by contributing money, food-stuffs and cloth. I need not impress on your Lordship's Government that the country and its people have been sadly injured by the recent visitation, and it will take some time before the devastated portion of the country can recover. I shall quote from a few extracts from some of the reports of gentlemen deputed by the Bengal Relief Fund Committee to organise relief work in the affected districts to show the nature of the distress and the relief required. I need hardly say that they are men of the highest character and their reports can be taken without any reservation.

This is what the Dacca Secretary of the Bengal Relief Fund Committee reports :—

"The most pressing need of the people at present is rice and cloth. I personally know instances when the people are taking food after two days. Many are half-fed. Only 10 per cent. of the people, mostly of the trading classes, are full-fed. Many people are half-fed and in rags. I personally know of many instances where women would not come out of their huts to receive relief for want of cloth. In short the problem of Eastern Bengal to-day is one of rice and cloth."

I quote from another report, that of Mr. H. D. Bose :—

"At Barisal, opposite the District Board Office, at about 8 o'clock in the morning, I found that there were nearly 500 to 700 people assembled to get their quota of rice; there was a general scramble, pushing and elbowing from all sides and directions, as if they were taking part in a Rugby football game, their clothes torn, bodies lacerated, and not a few knocked out of breath. Even after all this a host had to return unsatisfied and unattended as there was not sufficient quantity of rice in stock, and this in spite of the sympathy, generosity and humane efforts to supply their wants by men like the officiating District Magistrate and others".

I quote the following from another report, which relates to an earlier period of the relief operations :—

"There are about 325 unions in the Dacca district and each union consists of a number of villages, the members of which range from 8 or 10 to 30 or 40 in each union. Government have given Rs. 25,000 for distribution amongst the people residing in the various unions and thus the money obtained by each union would be about Rs. 70 or thereabouts on the average. We can safely assume that the average number of villages in each union would be about 25 or 30. It can be easily understood what would be the effect of distribution of Rs. 70 or thereabout in about 25 or 30 villages, and in places where the number of villages in a union is about 40, the allotment for each village would be a little less than Rs. 2".

Resolutions.Babu Surendra Nath Ray.

"Government help has been paid for proportionate distribution in all the different unions, but the sum mentioned is too inadequate, and it can very reasonably be said that this help of Rs. 25,000 has not improved the condition of the suffering people even a bit, while the help rendered by our public spirited men has confined itself to only a group of neighbouring villages. The poor middle class people will never go for a pittance of four annas or eight annas. The people most hardly hit are the poor middle class, whom agricultural loan would not help and also will not be in any way benefited by a gift of an insignificant sum".

I am informed the Government have since supplemented these contributions, but the funds at the disposal of the local officers are still much inadequate considering the extent of the distress.

The following is about Jessore :—

"Immediately after the cyclone the Subdivisional Officer of Narail left for the interior, visited all the places, formed committees, raised some money and made arrangements for its distribution and applied to Government for agricultural loans. But with all the good intentions he could make no headway as he was handicapped for funds. It was at this time that I reached Narail on the 23rd October and met him. He at once decided to come with us again to show us all that he knew, so that outside help might flow to alleviate distress".

It also appears that in some of the places in the Jessore district the paddy crop has suffered considerably. It is reported that not only 80 per cent. of the huts had fallen, but three-fourths of the crop had been destroyed.

This is what one gentleman wrote about one of the unions of Khulna only about a week ago :—

"There are ten villages under the union, and in all the villages famine conditions prevailed before advent of the devastating cyclone. The Khulna District Relief Fund sent Rs. 40 only to a branch relief committee formed and the three unions of Raghunathpur, Rungpur and Rudaghara. An officer of the Government came to inquire into the condition of the people with a view to open relief works. He promised speedy relief, but it is going to be more than two weeks since his visit, and as yet we have got no response. Two hundred and fifty families, consisting of nearly 800 persons, are having half meal or no meal daily."

The extracts to which I have drawn your Lordship's attention give only a faint idea of the real state of things. Those who had been to these places or have come from these places say that they cannot paint in their true colours the miseries of the people. There have not been any laches on the part of the Government officials to try to grapple the situation. The three Indian District Magistrates, those of Khulna, Faridpur and Bakarganj, did not blench from the helm when the wind blew highest. A gentleman from Dacca writes :—"The people of Dacca really owe a very deep debt of gratitude to their energetic and their sympathetic Magistrate to whom and to Mr. Hart the success of the relief work is to a great extent due." A friend who has recently returned from Manikganj speaks in the highest terms of the energetic efforts of the Subdivisional Officer there and of the circle officer at Baira. The Hon'ble Mr. Cumming has been to many of the affected parts and the representatives of the people have been up and doing in the great work. Your Lordship has placed a special officer, Mr. Hart, as head of the relief work. The officials and the representatives of the people have entered the field with whole-hearted zeal and are vying with one another in alleviating the distress of the people. There has been whole-hearted co-operation between the officials and the non-officials. If the people thought it their duty to lend their helping hand to their brethren in calamity, your Lordship's Government have also considered it their duty to assist those whom Providence has placed under their control. Proper sanitary measures to guard against the outbreak of cholera or other epidemic diseases or the breaking out of influenza should be taken at once. The water of the tanks and streams have become foul on account of the decomposition of plants and trees, even dead bodies of animals and men. A gentleman writing from Dacca only last week says :—

“For some days after the cyclone the sight of the corpses floating on the river Padma was simply thrilling. . . . . It is useless to multiply instances of such horrible sights we have commonly met with in course of our daily work. . . . East Bengal have seen cyclone, flood and famine and are awaiting fourth, not less distressful than these, namely, epidemic of diseases.”

Government have no doubt a programme of medical relief for the affected area, and their officers are doing spade work in certain centres. But the problem is a vast one, and must be grappled in right earnest.

Now let us see what is the amount which will be necessary to meet the present situation. It is no doubt very difficult, nay almost impossible, for a non-official who has no access to official papers except those which appear in the Government communiqués now and then to give an estimate even approaching to accuracy as regards the amount which will be required for the purpose of relieving distress. It appears however from the estimate of the Subdivisional Officer of Manikganj in the Dacca district that the damages caused by the cyclone in that subdivision alone would be about 25 lakhs of rupees. He does not state how much money will be required to feed the cyclone-stricken people for at least six weeks. It must be remembered that only three thana areas of this subdivision have fallen within the devastating ambit of the cyclone. He takes into account the number of cattle killed and wounded, number of huts blown down and damaged, valuable trees uprooted, the number of food-stuffs destroyed, including standing crops, as well as the number of boats sunk. I have tried to get similar figures with reference to other subdivisions, but I have not got them. Probably your Lordship's Government are in possession of them. But I think the subdivision of Munshiganj in the Dacca district where it is said there is not a single homestead which has not been affected, Kishoreganj in Mymensingh district and portion of Faridpur are more affected than the subdivision of Manikganj. If we take into account the damages sustained by the Bagerhat subdivision in the Khulna district and the Narail subdivision of the Jessore district, as well as some other subdivisions of Dacca, Bakarganj, Tippera and Mymensingh, we think the damages would come up to about 2 crores of rupees. I do not for a moment contend that Government are bound to restore these places and the men who have suffered to their original condition. I do not for a moment contend that Government should pay for the trees or for the boats sunk or the loss to the steamer companies, for they must have been all insured. But I think the suffering people, many of them in the lowest depths of poverty, can very well look up to Government, and does look up to Government, for their food and clothing for some time and for at least a portion of the cost of their huts. To add to the miseries of the people the price of jute which was Rs. 20 in August last is now Rs. 3 per maund. God knows the reason why? Government officers have no doubt been distributing cloth and rice in many of the affected parts and rabi crop seeds are being distributed through the Agricultural Department which is doing commendable work. But winter is approaching and unless these people get proper clothing or huts to live in, they will die by thousands. I think it is a fact well known to Government that agricultural loans, for which Rs. 21 lakhs have been granted, will not benefit the bhadralok classes or the lower landless classes either.

Resolutions.Babu Surendra Nath Ray.

We find from the Government communiqué published in the papers of the 8th November, after I had sent notice of my resolution, that your Lordship's Government have given or are going to give, in addition to the grant of 21 lakhs of rupees in the shape of agricultural loans, the following relief :—

1. One lakh pairs of cloth, some at concession rates and some as gratuitous relief. If we take the price of cloth at Rs. 4 per pair, and if we take that half the number of clothes will be given as gratuitous relief, that gives us 2 lakhs of rupees worth of cloth which will be given by Government as gratuitous relief.

2. Next as regards Burma rice. It appears that one lakh and seventeen thousand maunds of Burma rice, which must have cost at least Rs. 6 per maund, or rice worth about 7 lakhs of rupees have been purchased by Government and consigned to Dacca, Faridpur, Mymensingh and Khulna. If half of this rice has been or going to be distributed as gratuitous relief, we see that rice worth about 3½ lakhs of rupees will be given as gratuitous relief.

3. We next find that Rs. 60,000 have already been distributed as cash in the district of Dacca, whereas Rs. 45,000 have been sanctioned for the districts of Faridpur, Bakarganj, Jessore and Khulna, i.e., about one lakh and five thousand rupees have been spent or are going to be spent on this head.

We therefore find that Government have already spent or are going to spend almost immediately more than 6½ lakhs of rupees in gratuitous relief. We also find that it will require 3½ lakhs for reconstruction of Public Works Department buildings, whereas those under the Police Department will require 4½ lakhs for reconstruction or repairs, i.e., more than 8 lakhs of rupees will be necessary to reconstruct the Government buildings. Then there is one more serious damage which demands our urgent attention. It is well-known that most of the schools of various grades in the affected area used to be housed in kutchas or tin roofed bungalows and these have not been able to withstand the fury of the cyclone, with the result that most of these educational institutions are seriously handicapped for want of suitable habitation and some of them may even have to close. Unless Government step forward and give substantial aid to these institutions, educational progress in Eastern Bengal may be set back for some time.

Of the 6½ lakhs of rupees for gratuitous relief, we think about 3 lakhs of rupees have been raised by private subscription, leaving 3½ lakhs to be defrayed from the budget estimates of the year. This is only expenditure so far incurred. It appears from the report of the Bengal Relief Fund Committee, published in the Amrita Bazar Patrika and the Bengalee, that about Rs. 1,45,000 have been spent by them in gratuitous relief in the shape of cash, Burma rice and cloth. We find that cash, rice and cloth worth Rs. 35,000 have been given to Dacca, Rs. 44,000 to Mymensingh, Rs. 14,000 to Faridpur, Rs. 7,000 to Barisal, Rs. 2,000 to Comilla, Rs. 3,000 to Chandpur, Rs. 8,500 to Jessore and Rs. 6,500 to Khulna; Rs. 6,500 to the Ramkrishna Mission Relief Committee, Rs. 5,000 to the Social Service League Relief Fund, Rs. 5,000 to the Brahmo Samaj Relief Committee and Rs. 5,000 to the Medical Relief Committee. It also appears that a sum of Rs. 3,210 have been subscribed to the fund organized by the Servants of India Society for the relief of distress in Eastern Bengal.

I take it that the amount which is being spent or will be spent for the relief of the cyclone-stricken people will no doubt be spent from the budget estimates of this year by postponing what the Government consider to be necessary items of expenditure. Your Lordship must have observed the fight that goes on year after year between the non-official members of this Council and the official members during the budget time if the non-official members want to divert any money from the budget allotment to any item of expenditure which they consider would go to support a popular measure. I attribute this attitude on the part of Government to the fact that Government are not very flush of money. For four years Government had to postpone spending of money on many useful projects. If the necessary items of expenditure be not spent this year on the several heads for which they are allotted but are spent in the cyclone relief work, the works will have to be undertaken next year from the next year's budget. But if the money which will be necessary for cyclone relief be not entirely borne by your Lordship's Government, but if a portion of it at least be borne by the Supreme Government, the necessary provincial works may go on, whereas the relief work will not suffer. Appeals have gone forth on behalf of the famished people of this country to England and even in the continent of Europe, and those appeals were always responded to. There have been ere this meetings in the Mansion House under the presidency of the Lord Mayor to relieve the distressed people of this country and moneys have been collected and sent to this country. I see no reason why your Lordship's Government should not approach the Government of India for some money to aid the afflicted. There may not be any constitutional or statutory obligation in such matters on the part of the Government of India to give financial aid, as in the case of famine. But I venture to submit that the Supreme Government has a sacred duty to step after such visitations of nature, and place substantial funds at the disposal of the provincial authorities to enable them to meet a situation so tragic and so unprecedented.

Your Lordship was pleased to issue an appeal on the 3rd October on behalf of the sufferers from the cyclone in East Bengal. Your Lordship was pleased to state that though some time must lapse before it is possible to form a complete estimate of the damage done, it is clear from the reports which have already reached the Government that distress of a serious nature prevails in the affected areas. The Government are doing what is possible in the way of granting relief, but when the Government have done all that is possible with the resources at their disposal there will be still immense scope for charitable assistance. Under these circumstances, I have no hesitation in appealing to all who are in a position to do so to assist their less fortunate fellowmen, who, at a time of abnormal economic strain, have had their lot rendered still more difficult by this calamitous visitation of nature. Your Lordship's appeal has had the desired effect. The public have come forward, the mercantile community—both European and Indian—have come forward to relieve the people in distress. Why should not the Government of India stretch out their helping hand in this critical time. If there was a time when help was necessary it is this.

One word more and I have done. If your Lordship's Government as a government do not think it proper to approach the Government of India for help, let the appeal go forth in the name of the non-official members of this Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. Cumming said :—

"My Lord, it would possibly conduce to the despatch of business in this Council if I were to announce at this stage that Government are prepared to accept this resolution as it is worded; in view of the fact, as I shall explain later, that Government have already taken action on the lines suggested. The Hon'ble Member's resolution, as it appears on the agenda, might bear one of two interpretations. One might be that in view of the amount which the Bengal Government are spending in connection with cyclone relief, which was an unexpected drain on the finances of the province in a year of stress, the Government of India might be asked to recoup the Local Government to some extent for this unforeseen expenditure. Another interpretation might be that in view of the extent of the damage done and the suffering caused, the Bengal Government's contributions were not sufficient and that an appeal should be made to the Government of India to supplement the expenditure of the Bengal Government. As far as I have followed the Hon'ble Member's speech,—and I may say that at the beginning of this sitting, he did me the courtesy of handing to me an advance copy of his speech,—it would appear that he desired to support both of those suggestions. Before, however, dealing with what might be termed the broad financial aspect of the resolution, I should like to deal in detail with a few of the allegations of fact which the Hon'ble Member has made and with some of his statements. Government desire to acknowledge the appreciative reference which has been made by him to the work of the officers of Government in connection with the relief that has been instituted.

As regards the communication of information at the very beginning to the headquarters of Government, the Hon'ble Member has perhaps overlooked the fact of the breakdown in communications. At one time the Commissioner of Dacca could only communicate with the headquarters of Government through Rangoon. The Hon'ble Member does not seem to be aware of, or has overlooked, the fact that from the very moment that information came in sufficient quantity and of sufficient importance to the headquarters of Government, an extremely unusual order was given to every District Officer concerned to spend as much as he thought fit in anticipation of any sanction. The Hon'ble Member has also referred to certain reports which have been communicated to him or to the press. In this connection I should like to say that if any member of the public in his experience finds that there are defects which might be remedied, both Mr. Hart and myself would welcome any information; such information should be communicated direct to Mr. Hart who is in administrative control of these operations.

Another small point to which the Hon'ble Member has referred is his inability to understand why the price of jute has lately fallen, which, he states, adds another factor to the difficulty of the situation. On that point there was an answer to question No. VIII given this morning, the essence of which is that it is due to causes entirely outside of, and beyond the control of, not only the Bengal Government but Bengal.

As regards the subject of medical relief, I can say that in the area where it was most required it was given promptly; and that arrangements are now in hand, and have been in hand, for extending such relief where it is required. I have of course no wish—far from it—to minimise the extent of the damage that has been done. But here again I think the Hon'ble Member has overlooked certain points which, if he were a resident in one of the eastern districts, he would have noticed. In the first place, particularly in Mymensingh, the raiyats themselves have rebuilt their houses very promptly either by their own labour or by helping one another. In the second place, all over these districts the larger buildings which belonged to people of capital are being rebuilt, and have been rebuilt, with surprising rapidity, from which the labouring population have received a great deal of advantage. As we know, in famine times the difficulty is to create work in return for help. But in this case work was universally open.

The Hon'ble Member does not ask that all damages should be made good. He says, however, that the suffering poor—if I quote him correctly—can look up to Government for food and clothing. I may say at once that that is exactly what the officers of Government are endeavouring to provide by themselves or in co-operation with non-official agencies. Throughout the Hon'ble Member's speech I have not heard any reference to any principle which governs the grant of relief on an occasion of this nature. The only approach which I can find to such an enunciation of principle is the statement that the Government of India—the supreme Government—have a sacred duty to perform by stepping in after such a visitation of nature and by placing substantial funds at the disposal of the Local Government. These, my Lord, are a few comments on certain statements of the Hon'ble Member. I said, however, that I should like to deal with the broader aspect of the question; and this is exactly the aspect on which the Hon'ble Member has not favoured the Council with any remarks.

It is first of all necessary to understand what the facts are regarding the financial expenditure; and, secondly, to realise what are the limitations on expenditure by the State from funds contributed by the general taxpayer on the relief of distress, whether caused by famine, earthquake, cyclone, storm-wave or any other visitation of nature.

Now let me state very shortly what are the financial facts. Government have allotted certain sums which have been announced in the communiqués published. These sums are paid from the Provincial finances. At the same time a large sum has been obtained from the Government of India for the purpose of loans; for it should be understood that, according to present financial arrangements, the Local Government borrows from the Government of India all monies that it gives out in loans, whether to local bodies or private individuals. The Government of India have further been requested that the expenditure incurred by the Government of Bengal should be treated in the same way as expenditure incurred in the relief of famine, namely, that three-fourths of it should be redeemed by the Imperial Government and one-fourth left to the debit of the Local Government.

Then as regards charitable funds, a considerable sum has been locally subscribed in all the districts which has been locally expended, practically on pure charity. A non-official Relief Fund known as the Bengal Relief Fund has been constituted. In addition, the Cyclone Central Relief Fund was inaugurated under His Excellency's auspices, while there are other private charitable organizations which have given their funds and their agents for its distribution. The Government of Bengal have also allotted certain sums from the income of charitable endowments, of which the Local Government is the trustee; and Government have also asked for a grant from the Indian Peoples Famine Trust. Finally, the public have been informed that the distribution of all the non-official charitable funds has been so worked out as to prevent, as far as possible, mutual overlapping or overlapping with the money spent by Government on charitable relief. These, my Lord, are shortly the facts regarding the financial aspect of the question.

The second point is very important, namely, the necessity for an appreciation of the limitations on the expenditure by Government of money belonging to the State; and here we must have recourse to principles. Let us in the first place examine whether the relief of distress occasioned by a natural calamity is covered by any of the objects for which civilised states are maintained. We have the authority of John Stuart Mill that Government may take upon itself anything really important to the general interest; and we have a long range of authorities from Hobbs and Bentham down to President Wilson of the present day for the proposition that one of the ministrant duties of the State is the care of the destitute. If these propositions be accepted, it has, in the second place, to be considered what limitations there are on such expenditure, namely, on the expenditure of State funds for the relief of distress. Here we are dealing with the position in India. Fortunately, the whole question of the delimitation of expenditure on the relief of distress between State funds and private funds has been more clearly enunciated in India than in any western country. For an examination of that principle we need not go further back than 1878, when in the correspondence between the Government of Lord Lytton and the Secretary of State, who was then Lord Cranbrook, it was stated that Government is responsible, as far as may be practicable, for the saving of life by all available means in its power. The same principle had been enunciated previously in Great Britain in the terms that every civilised society finds it necessary to provide that no person shall perish for want of the bare necessities of existence. At the same time, English authorities laid down a clear distinction between State relief and private charity. This principle was re-stated at the time of the great 1896-97 famine by the Government of India in the following words :—

"As we have said, we accept as our own the responsibility for saving life. But life once secured, our responsibility to the afflicted ceases and our responsibility to the tax-paying public begins."

The Government of India in 1896 prepared a statement of the objects, to which private funds, as distinguished from State funds, might be applied. It was declared that there was ample scope for the exercise of private charity in supplementing the operations of Government in mitigating suffering and in relieving distress which fell short of absolute destitution. Four main objects were enunciated on which private contributions might usefully be expended ; first, in supplementing the subsistence ration provided by public funds ; secondly, in provision for the maintenance of orphans ; thirdly, for the relief of the middle class poor ; and fourthly, for giving a fresh start to those who have lost their all. When the Indian Famine Charitable Relief Fund was constituted on three occasions within recent times after the 1896 famine, after the 1899 famine, and after the 1909 famine, a statement of these objects, on which private contribution might legitimately be expended, was accepted by those who were responsible on each occasion for this relief fund. In more recent times, on the occasion of the floods in the Burdwan Division in 1913, this delimitation of the spheres of public and private relief was recapitulated. In connection with the opening of the relief fund which was then constituted, Lord Carmichael said that it was the duty of Government to preserve life by giving a maintenance to the destitute ; but that Government had a duty to those whose money it spends ; and that Government would not undertake to replace actual losses. The Hon'ble Mr. Lyon on the same occasion said that Government as guardian of the public purse was subject to rules which prevented it from yielding to charitable impulses when dealing with the money of the taxpayer.

In a further subsequent communication to the Committee of the Fund the Bengal Government of that day made a declaration of principle in the following terms : that gratuitous relief was for the relief of immediate personal distress due to want of food, temporary shelter and medical help ; but that Government could not undertake to restore houses, or supply seed or cattle gratuitously, though assistance might be given in these respects by means of agricultural loans. And, finally, in making the appeal to private benevolence in connection with the recent cyclone, on the 3rd October last, His Excellency declared that when Government had done all that was possible with the resources at their disposal there would still be immense scope for charitable assistance.

The Hon'ble Mover has given to the Council his estimate of the total loss to property caused by the cyclone. I should like to say at once that such estimates were placed in my hands very early in the course of the relief operations. They had been prepared very hastily on imperfect information by sub-inspectors of police-stations ; and I discarded them as utterly unreliable. At the same time, if, by any hypothesis, these estimates might be considered as accurate, Government in its capacity as custodian of the public purse, has never undertaken and cannot undertake responsibility to replace actual losses or to meet the cost of repairs of all damages. It is true that the Hon'ble Member did state that he did not ask for so much ; but nevertheless the whole purport of his arguments was that a great deal more should be done towards the replacing of losses. It is, my Lord, not only a question of the liability of the State, but a question of the pauperization of the people. Indeed, the Hon'ble Member seems to be labouring under the misapprehension that State relief is charity. This is a fallacy; State relief within its proper sphere is not charity, it is an obligation on the State. Indeed as regards the relief of distress in India on the occasion of a famine there is one thing that can be said, and one eminent authority has said it,—namely, that the State relief of distress in India, if properly organized, does not demoralize the people. It is therefore clear that there has been a definite principle and a consistent application of that principle in the policy adopted by the Government of India and by Local Governments in dealing with the relief of distress after a natural calamity. It is true that such a principle was first enunciated in connection with distress due to famine; and that the circumstances of distress due to a cyclone or a similar calamity are somewhat different. Granted: it is of course the fact that at one and the same time practically the whole population in the area affected by storm is afflicted; and this justifies a liberal interpretation of the principle of saving life. Government and its officers have on this occasion interpreted that principle in a liberal way. The methods ordinarily adopted in the case of famine for giving relief in return of work of some kind are not specially applicable to the present position; for this reason on the present occasion, apart from purely charitable relief for the helpless, a great portion of the Government relief has been in the form of the sale of cloth or of rice at cheap rates in areas where cloths were wanting or where the rice-supplies have been damaged or destroyed. Where the assistance is given in the form of gratuitous relief to those who are not absolutely helpless, then the relief trenches on the jurisdiction of that which is debitable to private benevolence. After a reasonable lapse of time, when immediate and almost universal distress has been temporarily relieved, it is right that the standard principle should obtain; and that the obligation of Government should then be limited to the grant of gratuitous relief in the shape of money or cloth, or grain to widows, orphans and people without resources or to people incapable of doing any work either through age or infirmity, and to the grant of loans to those who have resources. The subscriptions which have been contributed by the various relief funds are being utilized either to supplement what is given by Government or as grants to those persons who do not come within the strict category of those who according to this long-standing policy are the suitable recipients of relief from the State. I may state here that the principles which I have now enunciated were placed by me before the Executive Committee of the Central Cyclone Relief Fund, on which there are representatives of four of the non-official organizations; that these principles were accepted by that Committee; and that a Memorandum which I had prepared on the subject has been widely circulated amongst those interested.

I have explained at some length, my Lord, the matter of the jurisdiction of State relief, as it is clear that there is some misapprehension on the subject. Before I conclude, may I summarize very shortly what Government have done compatibly with these principles which have been enunciated? I maintain that subject to these principles Government have a clear conscience that they have done what is right both towards the afflicted and towards the tax-payer. First of all, 1,50,000 maunds are under purchase by Government at a cost of 9 lakhs of rupees. The prime object of this was to supply a cheap rice for sale and not to dispense charity; but of this not an insignificant portion has been given away as gratuitous relief to suitable recipients. Secondly, 500 bales of cloth, valued at 4 lakhs of rupees, have been purchased by Government. Of this portion has been distributed gratuitously, and the balance is being sold. Thirdly, 21 lakhs of rupees have been obtained for agricultural loans to cover the requirements of seed, cattle and rehousing in the case of agriculturists; and, fourthly, more than one lakh of rupees has been given in cash for direct gratuitous relief from Government. This is a short statement of the financial position at the present moment.

The Hon'ble Member while mentioning the specific sum of 50 lakhs has also suggested in his resolution an indefinite alternative,—namely, whatever sum may be thought necessary. I stated at the beginning of my remarks that Government would be able to accept the resolution as it is worded, because Government have already taken action on the same lines; and I now repeat that, on the understanding that the actual amount is at the discretion of the Bengal Government, and also in view of the fact that the Bengal Government have already taken action by obtaining loans from the Government of India, and by asking the Government of India to recoup the Bengal Government a considerable portion of the expenditure incurred and that they have therefore already carried out the literal terms of the resolution, Government are prepared to accept it. But I must emphasise that this acceptance is contingent on the understanding to which I have referred. Government cannot relinquish the principle and the policy which I have endeavoured to explain to the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. Meares said :—

"My Lord, I do not think the Hon'ble Mover can be fully aware of the conditions as they now are in the affected areas. As is nearly always the case in distress of this description it is immediate relief that is most needed. Prolonged relief for several weeks or months should only be necessary in the more acute cases, and such cases can only bear a very small proportion to the whole. The immediate extreme distress following on the cyclone was removed by the very prompt action taken by the Government in distributing the necessities of life, and these steps have undoubtedly played by far the most important part of any relief work that has been done. I was at Narayanganj at the time of the cyclone and have been there ever since, so have had every opportunity of studying conditions at first hand. The standing crops suffered comparatively little; in fact the rice crops have benefited by the heavy rain; houses have been reconstructed and work generally is now going on normally. I am not saying that there are no cases requiring further relief. There are the widows and orphans of those who were drowned during the cyclone who will require help for some time, and these are the more acute cases I have mentioned. The work of general relief, however, which has now been going on for some time should now be sufficient to meet the case of the majority, and large additional funds can hardly be necessary. Besides the help rendered by Government, large subscriptions have been collected, and the position now is such that part of these subscriptions might very well be reserved to meet the more urgent and prolonged cases where it is necessary."

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray said :—

"My Lord, I am very much obliged to Your Excellency's Government for having accepted the resolution. That is all I have got to say."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 9.

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq being absent, the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved the following resolution on his behalf :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the typists attached to the offices of the Director of Public Instruction and the Inspector-General of Police be placed on the same footing regarding pay and prospects as the typists in the Bengal Secretariat.

Resolutions.Maulvi Abul Kasem.

He said :—

My Lord, after having considered a question of such great importance as the relief of distress caused by the recent cyclone in Eastern Bengal, I feel a little diffidence in taking up such a trivial matter as the pay of a few typists in Government offices. But the absence of my Hon'ble friend, Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, has thrown this responsibility on me, and I think that though the resolution be unimportant and the number of people affected by it small the question is certainly deserving of consideration. In March 1918, my Hon'ble friend, Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur, moved a resolution in this Council that the pay of the typists in the Bengal Secretariat should be raised to a uniform grade of Rs. 40 to Rs. 100 by annual increments of Rs. 5. This resolution was accepted on behalf of the Government by the Hon'ble Mr. Donald with certain modifications. We are glad to find that effect has been given to that so far as the typists in the Secretariat are concerned. But, as the resolution itself says, this was not done at least in the offices of the Director of Public Instruction and the Inspector-General of Police, where the typists used to enjoy the same pay and had the same prospects as typists in the Secretariat. Their case was not considered and in reply to a question put by my friend, the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, he was told by the Hon'ble Mr. Payne that Government were not considering the proposal of raising the pay of the typists in the heads of departments to a uniform grade with those of the Secretariat, and it was added that there was always a difference in pay between the clerks serving in the Secretariat and those serving under heads of departments. It may be that the clerks in the Secretariat are differently treated from the clerks in the office of the heads of departments—as a matter of fact, in mufassal offices they are treated much worse—but the case of the typists is quite different. They were on the same pay as the Secretariat typists and so they have a very just grievance in this matter. Till 1906 I am told the typists were in the general cadre of clerks in the office of the Director of Public Instruction; it was then under the Hon'ble Sir Archdale Earle. He suggested that there should be a separate cadre for typists in his office and that was accepted by Government. On the recommendation of Mr. Kuehler the pay of the typists in the office of the Director of Public Instruction was fixed on the same basis as that of the typists of the Bengal Secretariat, viz., Rs. 30—50 in one grade, and Rs. 50 to Rs. 70 in another. There the matter rested and there was no change in their position. The typists of the Bengal Secretariat brought their position to the notice of Your Excellency's Government through the Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur, and their prospects were improved, but the typists in the office of the Director of Public Instruction remained in the same position in which they were, even in these days of high prices when they find it difficult to make both ends meet. This class of typist does not belong to the general office cadre, and they do not enjoy the chances of promotion which are open to other clerks; they form a cadre by themselves, therefore their position deserves consideration. The Hon'ble Mr. Donald, while speaking on the resolution of the Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur, said that no difference should be made between typists; they do the same class of work, the work of copyists, and as soon as they show a sufficient amount of efficiency, they should all be treated in the same manner. I think that dictum applies equally to the typists serving in the Secretariat, as well as under the Heads of Departments. In this case I think I have official support. Mr. Wordsworth, the Director of Public Instruction, moved in the matter and recommended that the typists in his office—there are six or seven typists altogether—should be placed in the same cadre as the typists in the Secretariat, and I think Your Excellency's Government will consider it worth while to give them the relief which they deserve."

*Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler; Maulvi Abul Kasem.The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, the Hon'ble Member has himself admitted that this is a trivial and unimportant resolution; and personally, I venture to think it a pity that our clerks, when they wish to secure an enhancement of a few rupees, should get into the habit, instead of going to the departmental heads who know what the facts are, of running to members of the Legislative Council and enlisting their support for the public ventilation of these matters in an august body like Your Excellency's Council. This august body is not in such a good position as the Secretariat to say whether a clerk's salary should be one or two rupees higher than it is. Another incidental difficulty in which Hon'ble Members involve themselves by letting their kindlier feelings perhaps run away with them, is that they are not acquainted with the real facts, and they do not put their resolutions in a complete form. If the object of this resolution is to place all the headquarters offices in Calcutta in which a special grade of typists is employed on the same footing as the Secretariat in the matter of their pay, then the resolution is not complete in merely mentioning the offices of the Director of Public Instruction and the Inspector-General of Police, because it should also include the offices of the Board of Revenue and the Collector of Customs. I merely mention this in illustration of the difficulties which I apprehend are characteristic of this type of resolution. The actual point is, whether in place of two grades of Rs. 30 to Rs. 50 and Rs. 50 to Rs. 70 for typists specially employed as such, we should give a pay of Rs. 40 rising by annual increments to Rs. 80. It is a trifling matter of a few rupees, and the Hon'ble Member apparently thinks that, because it is small, we should agree to it. But we do attach importance to the principle, which is not only characteristic of typists but of other grades, that in the Secretariat we pay slightly higher than in the offices of heads of departments. It is a principle of long standing and it works in the sense that we do get men on the scale of pay offered who can be entrusted to do their work efficiently. Although it is merely a matter of a few rupees, it is relevant that on the pay we offer we can get men, and we are not offering them a pay below the market rate. It is obviously easy to say that because a man is doing the same sort of work on this side of the street, he should be paid the same as a man doing similar work on the other side of the street. But it is the case that the work of the Secretariat is more responsible, more open to public criticism and attracts more public attention; therefore we give a trifle more so as to try to get the cream of the market; whether we succeed or not, is another matter. Candidates being forthcoming under these conditions, we do not propose to accept this resolution. I have several times mentioned in this Council, and I will mention it again to-day, that our financial position is anything but satisfactory, and that fact will be brought forcibly to the attention of Hon'ble Members, if, as proposed very shortly, we have the Financial Relations Committee sitting to decide the future relationship between the provinces and the Government of India. It will then be brought home to Hon'ble Members that the financial position of the Government of Bengal is by no means what we would like to see it in view of the many urgent calls upon us, and therefore, in so far as this is not an urgent call, I do not think we should accept it."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I got this resolution as a legacy from my Hon'ble friend, and I am not prepared to press it after what has fallen from Sir Henry Wheeler. Before I withdraw it, however, I would like to submit in reference to what Sir Henry Wheeler has been pleased to observe that there has been a difference in the pay of the Secretariat clerk and the clerk in the offices of the Heads of Departments. But so far as the typists are concerned, since 1906 they have been drawing the same pay as the typists in the Bengal Secretariat, and if there has been a rise in the pay of the Secretariat typist, I think the typists serving in these two departments can naturally expect that their pay should be raised, and that there was sufficient justification for making this demand. However, as circumstances are, I beg leave to withdraw the resolution."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 10.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken without delay for the improvement, re-excavation, renewal or reconstruction of irrigation tanks in Bengal, and that necessary legislation in this connection be taken up as early as may be practicable.

He said :—

"This is a resolution which, in my humble opinion is, I think, of no less importance than that which we discussed a little earlier. The question of irrigation tanks greatly affects agricultural conditions in this country, and as agriculture is the mainstay of the people of this country, I think its importance cannot be under-estimated. As regards the question of re-excavation of irrigation tanks, so far as I am concerned, I may say the initiative in this matter was not taken by me. Your Excellency is aware that the initiative was taken by Mr. Birley, the Collector of Burdwan, whose services we have lost—which I regret very much—as he has gone on leave. He did much good and solid work for the agricultural classes and his interest in their welfare prompted him to write a letter on the subject of irrigation tanks to the Government, asking that Government should take steps in this matter; he did me the favour of sending me a copy of that letter, and I accordingly felt it my duty to send notice of a resolution on this point in order to draw the special attention of Your Excellency's Government to this question. The resolution is so worded as to affect the whole of Bengal, but I will only speak with reference to the district from which I come in Burdwan and the neighbouring districts of Birbhum, Bankura and a portion of Hooghly-Chinsurah where we have an enormous number of irrigation tanks, the majority of which have silted up or are being silted up. The question is, can we re-excavate them? Now certainly the owners have no interest in them, neither have the zamindars nor tenure-holders or the raiyats on fixed rent. They are not interested in the irrigation of the land lying on the borders of those irrigation tanks for they may either cultivate it themselves or let it out for cultivation as paddy land to other raiyats, and naturally as they have no interest in re-excavating or improving these tanks and no pecuniary interest in the matter, they will not move in the matter. The result is that these irrigation tanks are in a deplorable condition and agriculture suffers to a very large extent. Last year, my Lord, we expected a bumper crop of rice; we had very good rains in the earlier rainy season in July and August and crops were ready for ripening; then there was a failure of rain in October with the result that nearly half, if not more, of the crops were lost. This year, my Lord, there was shortage in the earlier part of the season, but all the same we managed to get land cultivated and the crops were growing satisfactorily, but there was again a failure of rain in October with the result that much of the crop was damaged, and we had a much smaller crop than we otherwise expected. But if these irrigation tanks were serviceable, we could have arranged to irrigate this land and keep them in order and therefore save this crop from dying out. As the details of the question have been given in Mr. Birley's letter to Your Excellency's Government, I think it will not serve any good to recapitulate them. I appeal to Your Excellency's Government to take steps in the matter so that agriculture in my part of the Province may flourish and improve as it ought to, so that we may not entirely depend on nature for our agriculture. Of course when there is a complete failure of rain, there will be no crops and famine—that we understand—but for the simple failure of one rainy season if the crops die out, this is a matter of regret and misfortune, and steps should be taken to avoid it. My Lord, various suggestions have been made that under the Village Self-Government Act the village boards are given authority to take loans for re-excavating these tanks and recoup the same by taxing the people whose lands will be irrigated by these tanks, and I think the raiyats, as far as I have been able to ascertain, and so far as the officials are concerned, they will also agree in the matter. They will gladly pay up to make up the interest and sinking fund on the loans that may be necessary. They will gladly do it, if it can be done in two or three years, and they are only too anxious that it should be done. If they have not moved in the matter, it is because they could not, and it remains to the credit of Mr. Birley, and I hope that his efforts in this measure will meet with success."

Resolutions.Mr. Cumming.

"My Lord, in this case also Government are prepared to accept the resolution on the ground that action has already been taken on the lines proposed by the Hon'ble Member. Government have indeed taken action in two ways. Government have taken action in the first place in different departments without the aid of legislation; and in the second place Government have initiated legislation for this very object, namely, the improvement or re-excavation of irrigation tanks in Bengal. I shall take up the question of legislation first. In March of this year the Government of Bengal appointed a Committee to consider the whole question of legislation for sanitary and agricultural improvements, for the reason that the existing acts were unsuitable. The application of the Embankment Act was too limited; the procedure of the Drainage Act was too cumbrous; and the Sanitary Drainage Act was not applicable to purely agricultural projects. This Committee was well constituted: it had representatives of four district boards who were interested in the matter under discussion. The Committee duly submitted their report and a draft Bill was prepared, the intention of which was to consolidate the existing legislation and to correct the lack of elasticity which was the main fault of the present law. This Bill is designed to cover both large and small schemes. Amongst the latter will be those to which the Hon'ble Member has drawn attention. It has already been submitted to the Government of India; and it will, I trust, if enacted, achieve the object which the Hon'ble Member has in view. In the next place, Government have already taken action without the aid of legislation. This action has been confined, as is natural, to the Burdwan Division, the interests of which the Hon'ble Member represents in this Council. I shall take in turn the case of three districts.

In the case of the Birbhum district, I have ascertained from the Collector, Mr. G. S. Dutt, that the District Agricultural Association and various branch associations, which now number no fewer than 80 in his district, have taken up the question of the re-excavation of irrigation tanks. So far 21 such tanks have been re-excavated, resulting in an increase of 1,600 bighas of irrigated area;—and the re-excavation of 132 more such irrigation tanks is under consideration by these branch agricultural associations. Then, as regards the district of Bankura, the construction of tanks has been a feature of famine relief works during the last two famines. In the relief of the 1915 distress,

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

62 reservoirs were re-excavated ; and during the present distress, 25 more such irrigation tanks have been similarly treated. Both the Commissioner of Burdwan and myself can bear testimony to the incalculable benefit which the raiyats have derived from this work which has been accomplished through famine labour. Apart from that, the Director of Agriculture is giving his attention to the promotion of irrigation in this district ; and the Co-operative Department is endeavouring to solve the water-supply problem by the formation of co-operative societies. The Hon'ble Member has also mentioned certain proposals submitted by Mr. Birley, the District Officer of Burdwan. These proposals have been received by Government and have been considered. One of his suggestions is the same as that mentioned in the case of Bankura, namely, the constitution of co-operative irrigation societies. The other points mentioned by him are of a somewhat technical nature ; but they have been and will be further considered.

I should like to point out to the Hon'ble Member in this connection that while the Agricultural Department, the Co-operative Department and the Public Works Department can give advice and counsel, and while it is hoped that this new legislation, if it materializes, may correct many of the existing defects of procedure, yet work of this description, namely, minor irrigation, is emphatically within the domain of private effort. Government therefore consider that the most practical line of advance for the object which the Hon'ble Member has in view, is through branch agricultural associations and through co-operative societies which may take up individual schemes. I repeat that Government accept the resolution ; but would emphasise the proposition that if any genuine instances of self-help in the construction of irrigation reservoirs come to the notice of Government, such genuine instances of self-help are most likely to receive the assistance of Government."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I have come to the Council to support this resolution of my learned friend, but I see that the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming has accepted the resolution. Allow me, therefore, my Lord, to say that the raiyats of the Burdwan Division are very grateful to your Excellency's Government for steps having already been taken in the direction which the resolution emphasises. My Lord, when the Bengal Village Self-Government Act was passed we thought of this matter, and we thought at that time that the provisions of section 30 of the Act would meet the point which has been raised by my learned friend. But I find to my disappointment that although a district is now a net work of unions, they are unable to take up the irrigation work which is the subject matter of consideration by Your Excellency's Government to-day. Under the provisions of section 30 of the Act, Union Committees have authority to excavate, re excavate or repair tanks, and under the provisions of section 45 of that Act grants-in-aid are given to Union Boards by District Boards, but the money of the district board cannot be spared largely in this direction. Supposing in a district there are 140 unions, what amount of money can be allotted to the union boards, if a difficulty arises as to how to meet the irrigation tanks.

I am very glad to hear to-day that legislation on the subject of improving irrigation tanks is going to materialise and for this I beg to express my grateful feelings to the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming and to Your Excellency's Government. No subject is more important than the improvement of irrigation tanks. If these tanks are improved and repaired, I am sure that there will be less scarcity than what we are now going to face. It is necessary that private zamindars should come forward and co-operate with Government, but the difficulty is that these zamindars are mostly absentee landlords and consequently the improvement of irrigation is neglected. Your Lordship may perhaps be aware that in many parts of the districts of Burdwan and Hooghly the irrigation tanks have silted up. We find that Civil Courts are flooded with law suits as to the right of prescription in making use of the water of the tanks. The result is that the tanks are not improved and they are allowed to run into a very bad condition and consequently water cannot be available from these tanks. Therefore, it is a pleasure to us to-day to hear that legislation is going to materialise on this subject. If this is done earlier, so much the better for us, especially for the agriculturists.

With these few observations, I support the resolution."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I am very grateful to Your's Excellency's Government and to the Hon'ble Member in charge for the very sympathetic reply he has given and for having accepted the resolution. I quite agree with him that in the matter of minor irrigation the principle of self-help should exist and that we ought to work it out ourselves.

Reference has been made to the network of organization in the district of Birbhum for agricultural improvements ; and I, my Lord, here gratefully acknowledge the good services rendered by Mr. Dutt, the Collector of the District, for the improvement of agriculture, and for his activities in many other directions. He has done many things there, and if these agricultural tanks have been re-excavated it is to a very large extent due to the energy and devotion to duty exhibited by Mr. Dutt himself. I am sure that if Mr. Birley had been in Burdwan for some time longer, we would have all our complaints removed. But that is not to be so. In this case, my Lord, as I began by saying that the interest of the owners of tanks lies in the fact that if these tanks are allowed to silt up they can be let out for cultivation, and we have to take note of that. In the matter of irrigation tanks, as in all other matters, we must take note of human nature as it is. Nobody is going to spend money or allow anything to be done which interferes with his own personal and pecuniary interests. So we want legislation so that irrigation tanks may be re-excavated, although the owner may not like it or may object to it. However, as Government have already taken action in the matter, I can only say that we are deeply grateful to Government ; and in this matter we can safely congratulate ourselves that the usual delay, which takes place in Government offices in taking action on suggestions made, has not taken place, and the matter has been expedited as much as possible."

The motion was put and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 11.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the name of the Burdwan Municipality be removed from the First Schedule to the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, at an early date.

He said :—

"My Lord, it is almost to a day this year that I had the honour—and I might say almost the misfortune—to move in this Council a resolution that the order of supersession passed on the Burdwan Municipality be withdrawn. I was then unsuccessful and my wishes did not meet with the approval of Government. I hope to have better luck on the present occasion. The Burdwan Municipality was superseded in October 1918, and under the orders of supersession it was restored to a body of Municipal Commissioners in October 1919. But in the meantime Government were pleased to put the name of the Burdwan Municipality in the First Schedule by which the rate-payers and the citizens of Burdwan lost the right of electing their own representatives on the Municipal Board, and I submit, my Lord, that there was no justification for depriving them of their rights. True it is that fault was found with the body of Municipal Commissioners who had the charge of the municipality in 1918 and that they had not worked satisfactorily. That is a question on which it will serve no useful purpose to dilate now. But neither in the Government resolution superseding the municipality nor from any other facts has it been proved that the rate-payers of Burdwan have failed to discharge their duty for which they ought to be disenfranchised. The Burdwan Municipality has been in existence for a very long time, and I remember, my Lord, that only very recently it was recognised as one of the best managed municipalities in the province. When the Government of Bengal thought it fit to give some little freedom to some of the selected municipalities in the matter of the preparation of their budget, Burdwan was one of the three municipalities in Bengal chosen to exercise that power and that liberty.

Now, that freedom has been granted to almost all the municipalities, and whenever there was an occasion to give a place of honour or of some advantage to any of the municipalities, Burdwan was at least one of those selected for the purpose. I might mention that during the Coronation of His late Majesty King Edward VII, of all the mufassal municipalities only two in Bengal, viz., Cossipore-Chitpur and Burdwan, were allowed the privilege of sending an address to the Government of India, and we had in the Government resolutions good words said about us. All of a sudden, Sir, because a particular body of Municipal Commissioners failed in their duty, are we the citizens of Burdwan to suffer for that? There has been no case made out to show that the rate-payers ever deliberately elected bad men or they could not exercise their franchise or they did it wrongly. It is a fact that the previous generation exercised the franchise with credit to themselves and with advantage. Simply because once a particular ward or two or some voters here and there acted unwisely and by fluke one or two men or say a majority of them got in who ought not to have been there, that is no reason to disenfranchise the whole body of citizens. Government choose their officers very carefully, but it has been found that many Government officials holding positions of responsibility and trust have been found guilty and they have been dismissed from the service and committees have sat over them. But for that reason has it ever been suggested that the authority which employed them was to blame? It was only an error of judgment or a mistake which they could not anticipate or foresee. The same is the case with the people of Burdwan. Even if they chose representatives who were not deserving of their trust, they ought to have been given an opportunity to show whether they could reform.

As on the last occasion, so on the present, I beg to say that it was the neglect of duty, if not the misconduct, of the Municipal Commissioners which induced the citizens of Burdwan to form and establish a Rate-payers' Association in the town, and it was started only on the eve of the supersession. They started that organization to watch over the conduct of the Municipal Commissioners and to guard the future elections which were then coming on. But the Rate-payers' Association or the authorities of that association were not given an opportunity to show their work or to exercise their influence over the voters and rate-payers of Burdwan. The result is that we have now got a body of Municipal Commissioners entirely appointed by Government. It may be said that on consideration of the report of the gentlemen who sat as Commissioners to inquire into the affairs of the Burdwan Municipality it has been thought desirable to put it in the schedule, but what can those Commissioners say? They can only say that some of the Commissioners were guilty of gross misconduct. That may be so, but that does not show that the rate-payers or voters of Burdwan are not fit to exercise their franchise. By examining the records of the Municipal office it cannot possibly be said that the rate-payers are unfit. Besides that, though I think the rate-payers may have been a little neglectful in the past they are more active in the present day, and they ought to be given the right of choosing their own representatives. One of the reasons at least which was given to us by Mr. Birley, the Collector, was that they could not allow us to exercise the franchise because no list of voters was ready on the day on which it was to be handed over to the Commissioner. Of course, that was not the only reason, but that was one of the reasons. If the voters' list was not ready, was it the fault of the rate-payers or was it the fault of the Officer-in-charge of the Municipal office? It was ready in the case of the Hooghly-Chinsura Municipality. Why was it not ready for the Municipality of Burdwan? Even if the Government decided to put the Municipality in the First Schedule as they have done, at least the officers in charge of the Burdwan Municipality could not anticipate Government orders and they ought to have got the voters' list ready before the Government orders were passed putting the Burdwan Municipality in the First Schedule, but that was not done. Besides that, my Lord, there are Mr. Birley's recommendations about nomination which were made after consulting all available agencies in Burdwan. I gratefully acknowledge that so far as the Muhammadans of my town are concerned, we are in the best possible position to-day than we can ever be under the system of election. But at the same time, in spite of the fact that we are enjoying a very good position to-day and we have some of our best men on the Municipal Board, we feel the indignity suffered by my fellow-citizens and we resent the humiliation before other municipal towns of this Presidency which we suffer for no fault of ours. It is true that Mr. Birley consulted the Rate-payers' Association, the Peoples' Association and the Bar Association, and it was on the recommendation of these associations and public bodies that the present board has been formed. Naturally, if the rate-payers were given a chance of election it is 10 to 1 that a very large majority of these very men would be elected. Therefore, so far as the personnel is concerned there is very little difference between the elected and the nominated Board, so far as Mr. Birley's nominations go. But unless the name of the Burdwan Municipality is removed from the First Schedule, we anticipate that Mr. Birley will no longer be the Collector of Burdwan and the next Collector may have different ideas about nominations and may choose a lot of Municipal Commissioners who may not enjoy the confidence of the people. So far, therefore, as this particular Board is concerned, I have nothing to say about it. But I think it is due to the rate-payers of Burdwan that they should have the right of choosing their Municipal Commissioners and whether these very men are returned or not, the rate-payers ought to know that the Municipal Commissioners look upon them as their masters and task-masters and not that they should depend on the District Magistrate for their appointment or seat on the Municipal Board.

My Lord, a good deal has been said about the Burdwan Municipality and I know its faults and defects more than anybody else. But at the same time I submit that the charges brought against that municipality that the roads were bad, drains were flushed, filtered water was wasted with impunity; but may I ask whether during the year in which the Government have been in charge, has there been any appreciable improvements in any of these things? The roads, I beg to submit my Lord—and I challenge contradiction—are worse than they were in the hands of the old Municipal Commissioners, and if in the days of the old Municipal Commissioners there were no arrangements for flushing the drains they were at least cleansed once a week, but during the period it was in charge of this new body it was never cleansed once in 12 months. Water used to be wasted with impunity indeed, but has there been any prevention beyond the fact that a heavy loan has been contracted with the object of putting up meters and to have a fresh engine for improving the water-supply, but this could be done by any public body—it neither requires wisdom nor much energy. In regard to the waste of water in public taps. The only measure that I noticed was taken by the officer in charge of the Municipality was that whenever a silly woman was found keeping the tap open the tap was removed altogether and the supply was stopped. This matter was brought to the notice of the Commissioner and under his orders that tap was replaced after three months. This happened at a place which was largely inhabited by bustee people. Therefore, I say that there has been absolutely no improvement at all.

As regards finances, my Lord, the accounts have been kept very efficiently so far as the papers go. But the first examination of the account books has compelled the Chairman of the new Municipality to write to the Examiner of Local Accounts to send a special auditor to go through and examine the papers and as the result of the first examination we find that there has been a misappropriation and defalcation, and we are going to consider the whole question again. So, my Lord, after all, the old Municipal Commissioners were bad enough but they were not much worse than those who have been put in charge of the Municipality by the Government. ✓

Before I sit down, I beg to submit one special grievance of the citizens of Burdwan regarding assessment. On the last occasion in this Council it was stated that the assessment made by the Municipal Commissioners of Burdwan was not fair and equitable, that they taxed the poorer people more and let the rich off easily because the latter were men of influence who could influence the appeal benches and the assessing authorities. But to my horror I find that this inequality and inequity of assessment has found greater expression during the time of the new assessment by the Government officials when the poorer people have been taxed much more and the richer people have been under-assessed. I brought to the notice of the Government official in charge several instances and he said that under the law he had no power to remedy them. I have been connected with Burdwan for some years and I have found in my experience that there has been an increase of Rs. 12,000 or Rs. 15,000 in the general assessment, but by the assessment made by Government officials we find that there has been an increase of Rs. 20,000; that is not much in a municipality whose income was previously Rs. 1,34,000. Mr. Birley know perfectly well that there was a general complaint all over the town regarding these assessments, and it is quite evident that under the new régime of the Municipal Commissioners the poorer people have been very much over-assessed than on previous occasions, and a smaller number of people have been under-assessed with the result that the municipal income has not materially improved. The question involved is not the good work of the municipality—I think that the present Municipal Board with its energetic Chairman who devotes his whole time to the municipal work and can afford to do so will do very good work—but the question is about the dignity and prestige and the power to be exercised by the rate-payers.

We feel ourselves humiliated before other municipalities and we protest against that humiliation. We want that the Municipal Commissioners should know that every tax-payer is their master and that they are responsible to every tax-payer for their conduct. They should not sit on the Board with the idea that their nomination and appointment as Municipal Commissioners depend on the good will of the Government officials, at whose hands rests the appointment of Municipal Commissioners.

Above all, my Lord, it will not always be the good fortune of the citizens of Burdwan to have a sympathetic and liberal-minded Collector as Mr. Birley and the Hon'ble Member-in-charge who has got a special interest and a special advantage of knowing Burdwan and its people well.

With these observations, I commend this resolution for the acceptance of this Council."

[The Council was then adjourned for lunch.

The Council reassembled after lunch.]

The Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan said :—

"My Lord, like Mr. Dick and King Charles' head the Maulvi Sahib and the Burdwan Municipality have put in an appearance in the Council Chamber again to-day. Just about a year ago on the 26th of November last, the Hon'ble Mover of the present resolution recommended to the Governor in Council that the orders of supersession of the municipalities of Burdwan and Hooghly-Chinsura be reconsidered and withdrawn. Unfortunately, owing to illness, I was unable to be present on the occasion and for that reason the brunt of giving the reply and defending the Government's action had to be borne by Your Excellency. I find, however, from the proceedings that while the case of the Hooghly-Chinsura Municipality roused some considerable sympathy from the non-official members of this Council, the case of the Burdwan Municipality was espoused in a distinctly non-committal and half-hearted manner not only by those Hon'ble Members who supported the resolution, but by the Hon'ble Mover himself. In fact, to use Your Excellency's own words, the Maulvi Sahib in his speech on that occasion 'damned the municipality and the erring Commissioners with faint praise'. It is true that he urged extenuating circumstances and while admitting certain faults pleaded that the extreme measure of supersession was not called for. It was mainly, however, for the rate-payers—regarding whom he has spoken with some fervour again to-day—that he took up the cudgels stating that the new Ratepayers' Association had been formed to fight against the apathy and neglect of Municipal Commissioners and to better the administration of the municipality. He contended then, and he has contended to-day, that even if the Municipal Commissioners had been guilty of gross neglect and misconduct there was no justification for disenfranchising a whole body of rate-payers because of the folly or stupidity in electing these men. My Lord, to-day the Maulvi Sahib has really brought out nothing new to support the view which he expressed when he moved his resolution about a year ago, although, of course, he has complimented Mr. Birley, the late District Magistrate and Collector, on the selection made by him, but has tried his best to lay it thick on the Government as to the inability on their part to put things straight during the year that the Burdwan Municipality was under Government management, forgetting that when the Government took over the management it found it in perfect chaos, and that it was not possible for them to straighten out things during the short period that it was under Government administration."

I find from the proceedings that the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazlul Haq, who in supporting the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem last year, supported it mainly on the ground that the decision arrived at, if pursued to its logical length, meant the deathblow of the progress of self-government and development of self-governing institutions in general. The Maulvi Sahib moved his resolution and his main argument was the humiliation of the rate-payers and the taking away of the privilege which the townsmen of Burdwan have long enjoyed. Your Excellency speaking on the resolution made the following remarks :—

“Far from regarding our action as likely to discredit the capacity of the people for managing their own affairs, it seems to us that when we did find obvious and glaring cases of maladministration covering a long period of time, it would be to the advantage of the cause of self-government if we showed that we should not overlook matters of this kind.”

Your Excellency also remarked in reference to certain statements made by the Hon'ble Mover of that resolution that you had never regarded Government's action as a punishment but rather as a service rendered by Government to the public. Now, my Lord, it is easy for the Hon'ble Mover of the present resolution to ask this Government to let bygones be bygones in view of the fact that the municipality has for over a year been administered by an official agency, and more particularly in view of the fact that the old regime or rather the small ring of self-seeking men who have made the administration of this town a scandal, have since, by the action of Government not only been relegated to private life, but also, I venture to think, in the opinion of all right-thinking men have been discredited by the facts which I shall presently disclose—I repeat that in view of these circumstances, it is easy for the Hon'ble Mover to urge Government to give the municipality a new trial and to show its faith in local self-government by trusting the electors of Burdwan once more. In reply to the earlier resolution, Mr. O'Malley had urged that there was no guarantee of a straight election being obtained while the influences which were corrupting the municipal administration remained unimpaired. At the same time Mr. O'Malley pointed out that the official agency which was then directing the affairs of the municipality could not reasonably be expected to clean up the Ægean stable within the short space of time which they had up till then enjoyed and it is certainly borne out by the fact that from the report from which I shall give extracts, it has not been possible for the Government to straighten out things in the way that it might have been possible had the municipality been in Government administration for a longer period. It is easy to suggest that if Government claim that the official administration of the past year has been efficient as indeed I shall in the course of my speech assert in spite of the statement made by the Hon'ble Member, there should now be no objection to restoring to this unfortunate municipality its old constitutional privileges. My Lord, I propose to deal with these general considerations at a later stage in my speech. At the present moment I desire to take this opportunity of justifying Government's action in October 1918 by submitting for the information of this Council the deplorable facts which our later enquiry have brought to light. I am reluctant to rake up these memories, but I feel constrained to do so. Government, indeed, felt that having for many years past, and particularly since 1918, been compelled so frequently to condemn the maladministration of this municipality, we should have been glad to have allowed the whole matter to sink into oblivion, but the Hon'ble Member's resolution, although it does not expressly question Government's decision for superseding this municipality, has, from the remarks which have been made, clearly implies that Government shows a want of discretion and a lack of sympathy with the cause of local self-government by continuing to withhold from Burdwan the full enjoyment of its ancient privileges. Now, it seems to me that it is very essential that we should set ourselves right in this matter in the eyes of the impartial critics, and after a careful deliberation I have come to the opinion that I shall be doing a public service in setting out some of the facts upon which our present course of action is based, thereby, I hope convincing this Council that Government would be acting unwisely at the present time in accepting the Hon'ble Member's resolution.

I shall begin, my Lord, by some brief quotations from Government resolutions reviewing the municipal administration in Bengal. It is not correct for the Maulvi Sahib to say that up to about a year ago the Burdwan Municipality was patted on the back for its good administration. The resolutions of 1901-02 stated that collections in Burdwan were unsatisfactory. In 1902-03 the Lieutenant-Governor stated that practically all the municipalities in the division showed improved results except that of Burdwan. Again in 1909-10, after referring to the state of the collections in this municipality, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council went on to remark that he trusted that no time would be lost in remedying this discreditable state of affairs which was marked upon in the resolution for 1908-09 also. In 1910-11 after referring again to the discreditable collections, the resolution made the following remarks :—' Reviewing the municipal administration of the year as a whole, it appears that in the Burdwan Division the two worst managed towns are Burdwan and Midnapore.' In 1911-12, it was stated that 'Burdwan and Midnapore are again unfavourably mentioned by the Divisional Commissioner as the worst administered towns in the division.' In 1913-14 the resolution stated that the Burdwan Municipality, which, however, had passed through a period of serious strain owing to the Damodar floods, was the subject of unfavourable comment. The audit of its accounts has revealed a most unsatisfactory state of affairs. In 1914-15 it had an abnormal outstanding balance of Rs. 35,000 and again in 1915-16 we were told that 'of Burdwan it is reported, very little good can be said.' In 1916-17 the resolution states that the 'municipality is criticised by want of control over the municipal staff, inefficiency and waste of public money.' In 1917-18 affairs came to such a pass that the District Magistrate deputed a Deputy Magistrate to enquire into the affairs of this municipality. The enquiry was obstructed by the municipal executive. Papers were suppressed and the municipal engineer who made certain statements to the District Magistrate was dismissed at a subsequent meeting of the Commissioners on the ground that the municipality could not afford so expensive an officer, although the same question had been considered and decided in an opposite way within six months previously. The Deputy Magistrate's enquiry was necessarily incomplete, but the information disclosed such a shocking state of affairs that Government decided to supersede the Commissioners and to order a fresh and more formal investigation. It was considered that the enquiry required a knowledge of accounts and a capacity to weigh evidence, and that it should be conducted by a special committee consisting of an accounts officer deputed by the Accountant-General, Bengal, and an experienced Deputy Magistrate. Babu Hem Kumar, Malik, Deputy Magistrate and Babu Bhupendra Nath Chaudhuri, local auditor, were accordingly selected to hold the enquiry. They were instructed to investigate the various irregularities and malpractices that had occurred and so far as possible to ascertain who were responsible for them, and to advise whether any action should be taken against them. Their particular attention was directed towards the reduction and valuations, the remission of taxes, arrears of collection, municipal contracts for miscellaneous articles and especially the issue of licenses and non-disposal of petitions. The report of this Committee was received by the local Government in May last, and I think it advisable, especially when the Maulvi Sahib has asserted as he has done to-day that the Government had no justification for the steps they have taken, to refer briefly to certain abuses which it disclosed. The last election of this municipality took place in 1915-16 and the previous election in 1912-13. All the Commissioners excepting 5 out of 22 were re-elected.

Resolutions.Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan.

The former Chairman and Vice-Chairman were also re-elected. The report states that a clique was formed of certain of the Commissioners which succeeded in shaping the policy of the Board. Some of them, we are told, took undue advantage of their position in the matter of assessments, house connections, licenses, etc., and otherwise crippled the resources of the municipality. It is said that they generally conducted the affairs of the municipality by mutually helping each other, and as the Maulvi Sahib is perfectly aware, as he comes like myself from Burdwan, that in the end the municipality became a sort of Mutual Admiration Society. The Committee had reason to believe that doubtful and unworthy means had been employed in securing votes. A rising pleader of Burdwan stated that when he sought for election he was asked by certain voters to present them with a harmonium for their theatrical party and to spend a considerable sum in improving a religious building. He refused to comply with those requests and retired from the election. It is stated that some of the Commissioners obtained privileges for themselves and favours for their friends. I need not mention their names because the Hon'ble Maulvi Sahib as well as myself know their names. The committee quote an instance of an unimportant lane in which a Commissioner lived being first converted into a jhama road and subsequently macadamised. Three shop-keepers were prosecuted for selling bad ghee. All three samples were declared by the Sanitary Officer to be adulterated, but the case against one of them who was the son of a Municipal Commissioner was dropped and the cases against two others were pressed. One Commissioner recommended that several of his relatives, who were in good circumstances, should be given reduction of their assessments. This application, however, was not disposed of before the supersession of the municipality. The assessment was revised and a quarterly increase of nearly Rs. 8,000 was obtained. Of this amount Rs. 6,500 was given up and in the opinion of the committee wrongly given up by the executive committee. Some of the Commissioners obtained reductions on the assessments of their own properties. These cases have been carefully examined by the committee who in almost all the cases held that the revised valuations were fair and that no reductions should have been made. It might be said that that was one of the reasons why Government took action, but I must mention on the other hand that assessment for every Government building was allowed to go up. As regards private houses, in some cases remissions were granted, although the holdings never fell vacant, and in others there was no proper system for obtaining information when vacancy ceased. The outstanding arrears on the 31st October 1917 were nearly Rs. 65,000, and most of this sum was arrears of long standing. The collecting sarkars are said to have been very apathetic and there was laxity of supervision. Warrants were not issued and if issued were allowed to accumulate and remain unexecuted and in numerous instances there was not good reason for the heavy arrears as shown by the fact that the current taxes in many of these cases were collected. The committee makes the inference—I cannot say of course whether it is justified or not—that the realization of old arrears was not pressed as it might have alienated votes. Perhaps the Maulvi Sahib may know better than the committee. All roads were in bad repairs and there seems to have been little supervision over the conservancy staff. The Maulvi Sahib says that the drains have not been flushed for the last 12 months, a fact entirely erroneous, though I may also remind him that Government occupation of the municipality was not for fully 12 months. Out of 3,025 feet sewers, 1,300 feet was at the time of the supersession unworkable owing to portions of sewers being broken and so blocked up. Conservancy carts were in a most unserviceable condition and the trenching ground, as the Hon'ble Member knows, was a perfect nuisance. The Committee found no proper method of checking expenditure on road repairs. The water-supply suffered from the indiscriminate granting of new private connections against the advice of the Sanitary Engineer. The office registers were sadly neglected and petitions of complaint appear to have been thrown aside and disregarded. I think the Maulvi Sahib once came and told me himself that this was the case. The record-keepers' papers lay in a disorderly heap. Valuable stores were left in charge of a man on Rs. 11 a month who knew no English and could hardly write legible Bengali. His stores account was apparently never checked. The contract system for the supply of miscellaneous articles is said to have been a 'huge scandal' and the committee, while unable to state how much the municipality had been cheated of, are satisfied that fraud had been practised on an enormous scale. The system which the Chairman introduced was to allow the contractors 5 per cent. advance on the rates supported by the Calcutta firms. Bills were supposed to be substantiated by sub-vouchers showing the price at which the contractors had purchased from the Calcutta firms. It appears, however, that the office merely checked the advance of 5 per cent. and made little attempt to check the sub-vouchers. The contractors had in some cases got blank forms of Calcutta tradesmen and, after filling them up and signing the name of the firm, supported their bills by these spurious sub-vouchers, while in other cases they altered the figures in genuine invoices submitted by Calcutta firms. The accountant and the two contractors have recently been prosecuted—the former was convicted but acquitted on appeal, the two latter have pleaded guilty and have been convicted. In one case a purchase was made from a Calcutta firm for Rs. 25 but the invoice, purporting to have been issued by this firm but repudiated by them in Court although actually written on one of their forms, showed that the purchase was made for Rs. 60. In another case the same thing was done in which the municipality was charged Rs. 699 odd, i.e., 5 per cent. advanced on the alleged invoice price of Rs. 666-8, although the Calcutta firm had actually been paid only Rs. 432. Another printed sub-voucher in which the form was genuine but the entry fictitious was produced to support a claim of Rs. 373, although the articles had actually cost the contractor Rs. 184. I could cite many other instances of gross frauds. I suggest that the fact that such crude devices should have been successful argues either complicity or gross negligence on the part of the municipal executive and staff. It may be argued that an Honorary Vice-Chairman could urge extenuating circumstances if he failed to check the detailed accounts of his office. I do not admit that argument since it must be held that any persons accepting the privileges of a public office must consent also to shoulder its responsibilities. Moreover, it is to be remembered that in the present case the irregularities had frequently been brought to the notice of the municipal executive. There was no excuse for the undue advantages which some of the Commissioners were allowed to take of their position. One Commissioner obtained a house-connection in 1915 without the payment of the usual fee of Rs. 125. The money was paid on the 2nd October 1918—the date of supersession. The Vice-Chairman obtained a house-connection for which he paid the fee on the same day, i.e., the 2nd October, the date of supersession. In both those cases the ferrules were larger than the house-connection rules allowed. Another Commissioner had not paid the fee till May last for a connection obtained in 1914.

My Lord, I have gone into these unedifying details at perhaps some unnecessary length, but I feel that it is my duty to convince this Council that the maladministration of this unfortunate municipality had attained to such scandalous heights that very drastic action was essential.)

I have recently seen the Administration Report on the working of the Burdwan Municipality during the year 1918, which includes the period of six months during which the municipality remained under supersession. I find that the total receipts for the year exceeded those of the previous years by Rs. 5,595 while the general revision of assessment carried out by an outside assessor has given an annual increase of Rs. 27,181 which is, however, liable to reduction on appeal. The financial position of the municipality has, therefore, improved and the District Magistrate thinks that its routine administration is better. It cannot, however, be expected that the huge arrears which have accumulated can be immediately realized or that the neglect of years can be remedied in a few months.

I should now, my Lord, like to deal with certain general considerations which the Hon'ble Member in moving his resolution has submitted to this Council. In the first place I would submit that it was impossible for Government, in view of the grave malpractices by which the municipality's administration has been characterised, to run the risk of having any of those particular Commissioners, who have been pilloried in the report which I have quoted, as Commissioners of the new Board. Under the law, moreover, it would have been necessary to hold elections prior to the supersession of the municipality, so that the new Board of elected Commissioners might be ready to take office as soon as the period of supersession ceased. But there was no time, as it happened, to prepare the preliminaries for an election when Government considered the arrangements to be made after the 2nd October 1919, while the Act does not permit the period fixed under section 65 to be extended. Government, therefore, decided that the municipality should be placed in Schedule I and the new body of Commissioners therefore nominated.

It might be suggested that as the interval, subsequent to the period of supersession, has now been tided over, it will be possible for Government to have preparations made for an election. The present Board of Commissioners could carry on while the preliminaries are being duly carried out. I submit, however, that it is impossible for Government to suggest to the gentlemen who have shown sufficient public spirit to take on, at the request of Government, the thankless task of putting this municipality straight, that they should within a few months of their appointment be dismissed with thanks in order to make room for an elective body. I am not sure that the Hon'ble Mover of this resolution has realized the invidious position in which he wishes to place Government.

We are grateful to those gentlemen, among whom the Hon'ble Maulvi Sahib is one, for having accepted what I have termed a somewhat thankless task and it would, therefore, to my mind be an ungracious act indeed on our part to give them an unceremonious congé when we did not see—at least some do not—any further use for them. Moreover, whilst being a townsman of Burdwan myself, I do not in any way wish to run down the intelligence, of the electors there; yet in view of what did happen and may easily happen again, knowing as I do Burdwan, I doubt if the public can altogether rely on these electors to select the best representatives. The past history of the municipality certainly does not tend to give us confidence in this behalf. The Hon'ble Mover is probably aware, as he himself has said it, that Mr. Birley took the utmost pains to consult public opinion in sending up his nominations. He consulted the leading associations and received a deputation representing the trade interests of the town. His nominees in practically all the cases are included in the lists of suitable persons which were handed in by the bodies concerned. Of course, I recognise that a nominated Board, however well selected and however representative it may be, is still not the same thing as an elected Board to a town which has so long enjoyed the privilege of election. I also recognise that by placing this municipality under Schedule I, Government are compelled to cast, so to speak, a slur and an indignity upon the citizens of Burdwan which many of them will naturally resent. But, nevertheless, in view of the facts which I think it is my duty to lay before the Council, although it is not the intention of Government to keep this municipality indefinitely in Schedule-I, on which head the Hon'ble Maulvi Sahib seems to have some apprehension, I think that Government must refuse to bind themselves by any promise to restore it at a given date. I can only say that Government will anxiously watch its progress under the new régime, and will, at the earliest practical moment, only readily restore to the rate-payers their old privilege. I also think that the public should have an opportunity of judging as to whether in making selections to the present Board, Government have really not done them a good turn; for we have included in the new Board not only some of the best men available but mainly or largely persons recommended by the different public bodies in Burdwan who were consulted by the District Magistrate, and who, I have every reason to believe, as the Hon'ble Maulvi Sahib himself knows, are satisfied with the selections made.

For these reasons, my Lord, I recommend to this Council that the resolution be thrown out."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, with reference to this resolution, I occupy a very unfortunate position. When I moved this resolution I said that I felt that it was an indignity and an undeserved indignity thrown on the people of Burdwan; but the question of the honour, the dignity and the interests of the citizens of Burdwan is of great concern also to the Hon'ble Member in charge—and in fact of far greater concern to him than to an individual like myself—and if I am in a rather unfortunate position of moving this resolution it is simply because the Hon'ble Member-in-charge is now a Member of the Government and does not sit on the non-official side.

My Lord, I did not enter into the details regarding the order of supersession, nor did I at all mean to question the justice or the reasons for that order which is now an old story. But the Hon'ble Member-in-charge has taken the trouble to read some extracts from the report of the Commission that sat. I admit, and admit fully, that all these instances which he has read out are no doubt deplorable instances, and that it is a disgrace to my fellow-citizens and fellow-countrymen in Burdwan. But, at the same time, I submit my Lord, that the report is still incomplete and many other instances have been left out. I know of many other instances, and I offered myself to Babu Hem Kumar Mallik to give my evidence, but I was told that I would be called later on and the inquiry was finished without taking my evidence. I know also that this was the case with several other gentlemen whose evidence was not taken.

My Lord, the Hon'ble Member-in-charge has referred to some leagues or cliques that were formed to put a particular body in power. So far as the last executive of the municipality were concerned, the question how they were elected is known to the Hon'ble Member-in-charge as well as to myself. But so far as the Chairman and Vice-Chairman were concerned, they were elected not through any cliques but through untoward circumstances.

Instances have been given that house-connections have been surreptitiously taken. But I can remind the Hon'ble Member that there are instances in which separate connections have been taken in entire violation of rules. I know of instances in which a gentleman, who exercised his influence as a Municipal Commissioner, has got his holdings—not one or two, but several—miserably under-assessed, and under the fresh assessments, they have been again under-assessed. These holdings are inhabited by public officials who pay a known rent and in spite of this fact, they have been miserably under-assessed. Still these gentlemen have been appointed Commissioners by Your Excellency's Government. This thing has happened always and I do not grudge it, because Mr. Birley in making his recommendations consulted various public bodies and associations and accepted their recommendations. So I do not grudge their being on the Municipal Board; and I admit that these mistakes occur, whether the Municipal Commissioners are elected by the rate-payers or are appointed by the Government.

As I began by saying that, speaking as a Mussalman, which community I represent in this Council, and I repeat what I said before, we are deeply grateful to Mr. Birley and to the Hon'ble Member-in-charge as we have been placed in a very fortunate and favourable position on the new Board. But what I say is, I said it before and I say it again, that it is the question of the disenfranchisement of the whole town without justification that we do not like and we ask that the slur should not be allowed to continue any longer. If the name of Burdwan is not removed from the First Schedule now, I do not know whether we shall occupy the same position on the next occasion when the opportunity arises. The Hon'ble Member says that we should give the new Board a trial and watch its progress. I naturally expect, my Lord, that after a year or two when the report will be favourable, as this Board has fortunately got a very energetic youngman as its Chairman who can devote, and can well afford to devote, his whole time to the work of the municipality and who does the work of the municipality with a devotion worthy of the dignity of a town like Burdwan, it will turn out very good work; that fact will be a justification for Government allowing the name of the Burdwan Municipality to stand in the First Schedule. The Government will naturally say—'Here is a Board appointed by Government and it is working very well. It should, therefore, be allowed to work on.' That is my apprehension, my Lord. The Hon'ble Member has said that we have got a Board which is working very satisfactorily; but I can tell him that he does not live in Burdwan and does not know that we had to meet with great difficulties and had to get up conspiracies in getting this very gentleman elected as the Chairman of the Municipal Board, outside the Municipal office in the open camping ground, and that it was after a good deal of struggle that we managed to get him elected as Chairman. Otherwise, the nominee of the gentlemen who are responsible for our late misfortune and disgrace would have managed to get himself elected as Chairman. It was on account—and I claim some credit for it—of the bold stand made by the Muhammadan Commissioners that we managed to get this energetic youngman elected as Chairman.

The Hon'ble Member had said that corruptions were attempted at the general election of the rate-payers. I know, my Lord, that this gentleman has done us a favour by accepting the Chairmanship of the Board and that attempts were made to corrupt the Municipal Commissioners to vote for a particular gentleman as Chairman. Of course, that attempt was frustrated.

The Hon'ble Member has referred to the fact that a certain theatrical party asked for a harmonium. I know of the instance and I was present at the time when the request was made. But it is well known that such things happen, and on the particular occasion the candidate, whose cause I was espousing, sternly refused to come to terms with these people. In all countries where elections are held bioscope-shows and grants in aid to charitable objects are given, as these go to help towards the election. These things are not peculiar to Burdwan itself. But I claim it to the credit of the citizens that the candidate sternly refused to comply with the request that was made. We must, however, take into consideration by whom the request was made; it was made by a band of vagabond youngmen who employ most of their time in theatrical music and do no work.

Resolutions.Maulvi Abul Kasem.

I might cite another instance in which a religious shrine was offered to be rebuilt by a candidate for municipal election; he offered to rebuild a Muhammadan shrine or tombstone and to surround it by a wall and to pay for it; but it must be said to the credit of the rate-payers of that particular ward that they refused the offer, although as a matter of fact they were raising subscriptions for the object. Of course, I know of another instance in which corruption was employed and some people were bribed to vote. I confess that such things did happen and do happen even now, and it was for the prevention of these corrupt practices that we started the Ratepayers' Association. Admitting that we did commit a mistake and that we have been guilty of corruption, it is the duty of the parental Government to educate the people to exercise their rights and not to disenfranchise them as was done on the last occasion. At the time of the last election, as the Hon'ble Member has stated, in 1916, we brought to the notice of Mr. Marr, who was then the Collector of Burdwan, a specific instance of bribery, and the result was that Mr. Marr wrote in so many words that under the Bengal Municipal Act corruption was no offence, that it did not invalidate an election, and that he could not therefore interfere. I took the written statement of Mr. Marr to Mr. K. C. De, who was then Secretary to the Municipal Department and it was then placed before the Hon'ble Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul Huda, who promised to take up the matter at the time of the next amendment of the Bengal Municipal Act. I beg to ask the Hon'ble Member whether these people, who were guilty of attempting to corrupt and were guilty of corruption, have all been eliminated from the present Board. He has referred to my personal knowledge and I respectfully take his word. He knows as well as I do that the present Board has not been cleared of these people, and I therefore claim that no Board can be perfect. I submit that this Board is quite as good or as bad as the previous one, with the exception of Muhammadans who are in the best position. What we feel, my Lord, is that the stigma and slur cast on the people of Burdwan should not continue.

The Hon'ble Member has referred to the cliques and combinations which were made to put somebody on the Board and to have a sort of Mutual Admiration Society. I would like to know from the Hon'ble Member whether the elected members only of the last Board which was superseded were a party to these cliques and combinations, and whether the present nominated members were not as good a party as the elected members themselves. In fact, one of these parties or cliques is now represented by a member who was nominated by the Government. It was in the Raj Palace itself that the whole exposure took place in the presence of the Hon'ble Member himself. There is another point with reference to these gentlemen that we cannot afford to do without them; they are men of influence and unfortunately they exercise their influence in their own interests and in those of their relatives, and although I move for the withdrawal of the order of supersession, I submitted then and I repeat it now that they did exercise their influence then and do exercise it even now, whether outsiders are appointed as assessors or whether they are appointed by the municipality.

It has been remarked that the Municipal Engineer was dismissed because he complained to the District Magistrate. I submit that although I have not been a Municipal Commissioner for about 6 or 7 years prior to the supersession, I have taken some interest in municipal affairs—I did find that the Municipal Commissioners were not going straight. I in consultation with some of my friends started the Rate-payers' Association. I may submit also that for some time past the question of the staff maintained by the municipality has been engaging our attention. We have found that the staff employed are somewhat expensive and the question was whether so many men should be employed by the Municipal Board.

Resolutions.Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.

The fact is that the old Municipal Board appointed many men whom they liked and it was due to the Mutual Admiration Society, because the Municipal Commissioners always wanted their protégés to be appointed. Therefore, we wanted to sit on judgment on them, and the Municipal Engineer was one of the officers whose services at least, I still maintain, the municipality does not require. Burdwan is not a town like Calcutta or Dacca or Howrah that it requires a skilled engineer : an ordinary Upper Subordinate Class man, who can put the roads in order, can manage its work. Whenever there is a big scheme, e.g., of an overhead water tank, the municipality generally indents for a man from the Sanitary Engineer and it has to pay for him. What is the good, therefore, of keeping a highly-paid engineer. I may submit, that the engineer did make some statement to Mr. Birley ; but the engineer was himself a member of the party at that time. I admit, my Lord, that, at the present moment, we, the Mussalmans of Burdwan, find ourselves in an absolute majority on the Municipal Board and are therefore in a very good position to-day.

With these observations, and after what has fallen from the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur, I do not think that it will serve any useful purpose, in a house like this, to press this Resolution ; and I therefore beg leave to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 12.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council—

- (a) that immediate steps be taken to improve the professorial staff of the Rajshahi College, specially in English, Philosophy and Physics, and that the College be affiliated in the Economics Honour Course and the Botany Pass Course ; and
- (b) that early arrangements be made for providing gradually post-graduate studies in Chemistry, Physics, English, Mathematics, Philosophy, History, Sanskrit and Persian and for reopening the B. L. Classes in the said College.

He said :—

" My Lord, I do not think that I need detain the Hon'ble Members for long on account of this resolution because for some time past I have been dealing in this Council with the Rajshahi College, and I hope I have thereby and by my last Budget speech specially already made it sufficiently clear that the Rajshahi College, though it does not suffer in any way in comparison with the Dacca College in so far as the number of students, percentage of success, etc., are concerned, yet it suffers very much in comparison with the Dacca College in point of professorial staff and other educational facilities, and, for the matter of that, in point of Government expenditure per head of student. The fee rate of the Rajshahi College was Rs. 4 some time ago and it was raised to Rs. 6, and the reason then given by the Government was that it was done with a view to uniformity. But, my Lord, it is certainly a matter of great regret that the uniformity was sought for only with regard to the tuition fee, and, not to speak of any corresponding uniformity in the matter of educational facilities and other advantages, the little that was good in the Rajshahi College is being gradually taken away. I have been complaining of this for long ; but, my Lord, I must say that I have been unheeded. The Rajshahi

Resolutions.Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.

College had for its Professors in English, Philosophy, Physics and Sanskrit some of the best men in the University, and now for some time past in all these subjects the professorial staff is far beneath that standard which even prevailed there only a few years ago. I also tried in my capacity as Secretary to the Rajshahi Association to impress upon the departmental authorities, but all my efforts could not be of any real use. And therefore as a last resort I have brought this matter by way of appeal to the Hon'ble Members and to Your Excellency specially. Your Excellency is going to visit Rajshahi very soon. Your Excellency will, I hope and trust, be able to see personally the present condition of the Rajshahi College and its special requirements in the light of the few facts I have already placed and am now placing for Your Excellency's consideration. Of course, the Rajshahi College has grown to its present status under absolutely Indian management, and it is very creditable to those very able officers who have helped in its development. I say this as I do not wish to be misunderstood. What I complain of at the present moment is not so much against those gentlemen who are now engaged in teaching in the Rajshahi College as against the policy of engaging Subordinate Educational Service men on tuition work in the college classes especially in the B.A. classes. What I want for the Rajshahi College is that the tuition work should be entirely managed with Provincial Educational Service men under the guidance of an experienced professor of proved ability on higher pay for each subject, and the Principal and at least one senior professor should be persons promoted to the Indian Educational Service which will be an incentive to meritorious work among the professors. I beg humbly to suggest further in this connection that whenever there is to be a transfer or vacancy caused by retirement or any other event, the vacancy should be filled up by an equally efficient man, and to my mind, in case of transfer of an efficient professor, the problem of an equally efficient successor should be first considered, and until one is available the transfer ought not to take place. I may cite here the case of the transfer from the Rajshahi College of Babu Hem Chandra De, Senior Professor of Philosophy. He was transferred, so far as we can judge, without any arrangement being previously made for an equally efficient man to go in his place. The result was that the Philosophy class suffered much. Without any reflections upon anybody, I may safely submit that the arrangement now made is very unsatisfactory. Out of the three Professors for Philosophy and Logic two are Subordinate Educational Service men and the third has just been promoted to the Provincial from the Subordinate Educational Service. Before this, Babus Hem Chandra De, Krishna Chandra Bhattacharyya and Ambika Charan Mitra were in the post of the senior professor of Philosophy—they are, without doubt, distinguished professors of ability of a very high order. So far as English is concerned, I need only say that the result in that subject in recent University examinations has been extremely unsatisfactory. In my support I cannot do better than to quote from the report about the Rajshahi College by the Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari and Mr. Juan Chandra Ghosh, dated the 22nd January 1919, and from that by Mr. J. N. Das Gupta and Mr. Juan Chandra Ghosh, dated the 17th September 1917. In recommending an additional teacher for English Sir Deba Prasad and Mr. Ghosh say that 'in making the appointment care should be taken to strengthen the quality of the staff,' and Messrs. Das Gupta and Ghosh in their report of 1917 remarked that 'the failure in English in 1917 has been very heavy. Out of 171 students sent for the I. A. Examination 101 failed in English, 50 failing in this subject only. Out of 127 students sent up for the B. A. Examination 64 failed in English, 27 failing in this subject only.' I may add that though the teaching of English is admittedly defective in the Rajshahi College still the present tutorial staff for English consists of three officers of the Subordinate Educational Service and two only of the Provincial Educational Service. Then, as regards mathematics, when Babu Rajmohan Sen retired the Rajshahi Association approached the Government and got an assurance that 'an endeavour will be made to send a fairly senior professor in his place.' But at last one had to be promoted to the Provincial Educational Service, so far as I remember, for being sent to the Rajshahi College. I must, however, make it clear that I am not making any reflection upon the ability of the new gentleman. I am informed that he is an able man and I am glad that he has been promoted to the Provincial Educational Service. But what we wanted was that a senior professor should have been either appointed or transferred to be at the head of the tutorial staff in Mathematics. Another complaint is that no research scholarship is provided for in the Rajshahi College. Dr. Noogi, the officiating Principal, is himself a man of great reputation in the field of chemical researches, but he has got no assistant to help him in that work. To sum up this part of my address—what I submit is that now that the Dacca College is being converted into a University, the Rajshahi College is undoubtedly taking the first place among the mufassal colleges and in that view it is but fair that it should be maintained in that high level of efficiency which is consistent with the position it already occupies. I must frankly confess that of late there has been a serious apprehension in the minds of the Rajshahi public that if the present state of things in the Rajshahi College continues, it will in no time lose much of the development it has made during the last twenty years. We do not see any reason why the interests of the Rajshahi College should be sacrificed or overlooked in the interests of any other institution. Only three or four years back the Rajshahi College was cheap for the students and its professorial staff was of a superior order, but now that the tuition fee has been increased by 50 per cent. the tutorial staff has been materially brought down, and the only result of the increment of the tuition fee is, I am sorry to say, that the Government grant has been diminished by nearly twenty thousand rupees.

It will not be quite out of place, if in this connection I draw the attention of the authorities to the very sympathetic suggestions of the Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad and Mr. Ghosh in their report about the Rajshahi College referred to above. I might be permitted to quote a few lines: 'To speak of only a few of the many present needs. The Principal and the Professors have no quarters, the hostels are defective and inadequate, the Chemistry laboratory is not up-to-date, the class rooms are insufficient and there is no library worth the name, nor a much-needed covered gymnasium. The students during their intervals have to rest under the trees, healthy and pleasant when the weather is favourable, but absolutely the reverse in other circumstances.'

On a previous occasion I referred to the desirability of the Professor of Economics of the Rajshahi College to be in the Provincial Educational Service. The College has been affiliated in Economics for the last seven or eight years, and it is high time that a further development should be made by also providing for the study of that subject in the Honours course.

In my resolution I have asked for the affiliation of the College in the Botany pass course. At present there is no arrangement for study in that branch in the Rajshahi College, though there was such an arrangement some years back under the old regulations North Bengal is pre-eminently an agricultural tract, and in order that the study of scientific agriculture, which is so much needed in that part of the country, especially for the benefit of the Muhammadans who form the majority in the division, may develop, the affiliation of the College in Botany is urgently necessary.

Then, my Lord, as regards the second part of my resolution, I may be permitted to inform Your Excellency and the Hon'ble Members that the question was raised a long time ago and there was much correspondence and discussion about the proposal between the Rajshahi Association, the Governing Body of the College and the Director of Public Instruction. The Director referred the matter to the Governing Body of the College with certain proposals by his letter No. T-437, dated the 28th October, 1916, and the matter was considered by the Governing Body, who approved of the proposal of opening of M.A. and B.L. classes in their meeting held on the 24th December, 1916, and reported to that effect to the Director of Public Instruction in their letter No. 1014—32, dated the 25th January, 1917. At the time the only difficulty that was felt was the question of funds for the recurring expenditure. But there was an offer of Rs. 50,000 from Rani Hemanta Kumari Debi of Puthia and another offer by the Raja Bahadur of Dighpatia and his brother Kumar Basanta Kumar Ray through the Rajshahi Association, for the construction of a building estimated at about Rs. 50,000. The Rajshahi Association also undertook to provide additional buildings for the purpose and the question of funds for the recurring expenditure has also now been solved by the raising of the College fees from Rs. 4 to Rs. 6 a month which has given an increment of nearly Rs. 16,000. Now there are arrangements for M.A. and B.L. classes in the mufassal in the Dacca College which is going to be converted into a University. So the necessity for providing for such study in the mufassal will soon arise. At Rajshahi there were M.A. and B.L. classes before; the new arrangement under the University Commission report is likely to take time. In the meantime I hope the Rajshahi College will be granted the boon for which the public is so eager and ready to contribute materially. Government, I think, will not have to spend much on this score. A big hostel for the accommodation of students is going to be built, I understand, next year, at a cost of nearly three lakhs including the grant of Rs. 50,000 provided in this year's budget. Hired houses now occupied by the students may, if necessary, be utilised for any additional accommodation necessary for the M.A. and B.L. students. The University Commission also suggests that the Rajshahi College is a fit one to be maintained as a University College to be developed hereafter into a University. In that view also my proposal can be safely given effect to. I appeal to Your Excellency to take the matter into your serious consideration and make the Rajshahi College a self-contained one, and I hope that the Government will accept my proposal.

In this connection I beg to quote from a letter of the Director of Public Instruction to the Governing Body of the Rajshahi College, dated the 28th October, 1916. The letter says :—

My personal view with reference to the development of the Rajshahi College is that at the present moment instead of embarking on any new schemes the College should concentrate its attention wholly on the improvement of the work which it is already attempting. The existing accommodation for the students is very defective; and I should have thought that any money which the Rajshahi Association or any other body or persons may be willing to contribute could with greater advantage have been devoted to the removal of this defect.

At the same time I appreciate the anxiety of the people of Rajshahi to create additional educational facilities at the Rajshahi College, and I am prepared to consider favourably any scheme for the opening of M. A. and B. L. classes at the Rajshahi College provided—

- (i) that arrangements both as regards accommodation and instruction of the classes can be made to the satisfaction of the University of Calcutta and the Government of India with whom the final decision as regards the affiliation of the College up to the M. A. and B. L. standards will rest;

Resolutions.Mr. Hornell.

- (ii) that no additional cost is imposed on Government as a result of the opening of the classes and of their maintenance for a period of five years from the date of opening; and
- (iii) that adequate guarantee will be furnished that the funds which it will be necessary for the opening and maintenance of the classes for five years will be forthcoming.

I have to explain that any extension of the affiliation of the Rajshahi College for which the Department of Education may be willing to approach the Calcutta University cannot take effect before the beginning of the session 1918-19.

That was in 1916. And although the Rajshahi Association undertook to provide for the accommodation of the building nothing could be done in view of the expected report of the Universities Commission, although the Director of Public Instruction in his letter, dated the 29th March, 1917, addressed to the Governing Body of the Rajshahi College appreciated the public spirit of the Rajshahi people. The letter says:—'I appreciate very greatly the generous contributions with which the public of Rajshahi have come forward, and I fully sympathise with their anxiety to create further facilities for higher education in Rajshahi.' The report is out now, but I believe some time will elapse before effect can be given to it. Meantime I think it is time that something should be done towards opening the B. L. classes in Rajshahi."

The Hon'ble Mr. Hornell said :—

"My Lord, the burden of the Hon'ble Member's song seems to be that Government are grossly neglecting the interests of the Rajshahi College and that he has been repeatedly urging the Educational Department to do something; over this he has taken about half an hour of the Council's time. All I can say is that since I returned to this province in September last, I have had the pleasure of meeting the Hon'ble Member, but he never mentioned all these grievances to me. I venture to suggest that if he had done so and discussed the matter with me I could have spared the Council a good deal of my reply.

The first part of the Resolution suggests that immediate steps should be taken to improve the professorial staff of the College, especially in English, Philosophy and Physics, and then proceeds to suggest that the affiliation which the College now enjoys should be extended so as to include the Economics Honours course and the Botany Pass course. As regards the existing staff, there are two professors of English and three lecturers. The senior professor is a 1st class M.A. who in his day stood second in the University. His pay at present is Rs. 400 a month in class IV of the Provincial Educational Service. The second professor is a 2nd class M. A. in English whose present pay is Rs. 200 a month in class VIII of the Provincial Educational Service. The three lecturers are all 2nd class M. A.'s in English and the pay of each is at present Rs. 125 in class IV of the Subordinate Educational Service. Government has recently agreed to increase the staff by the addition of a professorship in the Provincial Educational Service. The staff in Philosophy consists of a professor in class VIII of the Provincial Educational Service and two lecturers, one in class I of the Subordinate Educational Service and the other in class IV of the Subordinate Educational Service. The professor is a senior officer of considerable experience who has recently been promoted from a lecturership in the Dacca College. The senior lecturer who is a senior officer in class I of the Subordinate Educational Service is now on leave and is studying in England. A Muhammadan gentleman was appointed to act in his place, but he has recently been transferred to a permanent post at Dacca. It has not yet been possible to fill up the temporary vacancy. The second lecturer is an officer in class IV of the Subordinate Educational Service. The Senior Professor of Physics was, until recently, Rai Kumudini Kanta Banarji Bahadur who combined this work and the work of Principal. The Rai Bahadur is now on deputation with the Calcutta University as an Inspector of Colleges. In his place an experienced officer from the Sibpur College has been appointed to act. There are two Professors of Physics and the holder of the second professorship is a 1st class M. A. who stood first in this University. Thus, before the Rai Bahadur left, the two professors of Physics in the College were the top men of their respective years. There are two Demonstrators in Physics, one in class III and the other in class IV of the Subordinate Educational Service.

Turning to other departments of the staff, which the resolution does not mention, we have asked Government for a temporary additional lecturer in Arabic and Persian and an additional Demonstrator in Chemistry. The Governing Body of the College have not submitted any formal proposals regarding the affiliation of the College either in Economics Honours or in Botany. Certain representations have been received from the Secretary of the Rajshahi Association and these have been sent to the Principal of the College for consideration.

As regards the second part of the Resolution, I am not quite sure what the Hon'ble Member means by making early arrangements for providing gradually post-graduate studies in certain subjects. The proposal for starting post-graduate classes as also B. L. classes was carefully considered by Government in 1917, and it was then decided that no steps could be taken until the recommendations of the University Commission had been considered. The report of the Commission is now before the public and this Government are still awaiting the orders thereon from the Government of India. The Commission have advised a complete reorganisation of University education throughout the Presidency, and until a decision has been arrived at with reference to their recommendations, it is impossible for the local Government to commit themselves to any undertakings with regard to the future of the College."

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said:—

"My Lord, I have a very little to say as regards the first part of my hon'ble friend's resolution, nor have I much to say as regards the second part in which he asks for facilities for post-graduate studies in Chemistry, Physics etc. I will only speak on that part of the resolution in which he says that early arrangements should be made for re-opening the B. L. classes in the Rajshahi College. No reason has been given why, with the present plethora of law graduates in the country, there should be an additional machinery for manufacturing such graduates in Northern Bengal. I believe that there are at present 10,000 law graduates practising in the different Courts in Bengal, and in one subdivision of Rajshahi I believe there are about 130 practising B. L. pleaders. And I think in the town of Rampur Boalia there is not one hundred but several hundred law graduates practising as pleaders."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said:—

"No, in Rampur Boalia the number is 70 only.

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said:—

"I accept my hon'ble friend's statement. But I suppose that no one has complained about the paucity of the number of pleaders there. I believe the law graduates themselves realize now that life, after getting the law • degree, is rather dreary, and to multiply the number of lawyers in this country is not a thing which is desirable. There is the University Law College and if the authorities abolish all the law colleges and classes in the country, the country would not be the worse for it. Mr. Hornell has not naturally looked into this side of the question, and the Government letter which has been quoted does not refer to that view of the question. But, my Lord, if you are able during your time to get all the law colleges and classes abolished in Bengal it would be a great thing. If there are no law graduates within the next ten years the country would be better for it. I think that after six years in college a man has to serve his apprenticeship with a pleader, which takes about two years more, and then unless he is very industrious and exceptionally intelligent, he earns hardly any money but gains more wisdom. They take to questionable ways, and I think that if their number is increased and there is more competition, it would not improve the conduct which is required of every member of the bar. I am sorry to have to make this observation as I myself had the honour of belonging to the Bar. Instead of increasing the number of lawyers it is my firm conviction that the law classes should be abolished. There are about 3,000 students studying law at present and over and above this we do not want another class to be opened in Rajshahi for these law students. Therefore I am not in favour of opening the B. L. classes at Rajshahi."

Resolutions.Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry that I am accused by my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Hornell of wasting half an hour's time of this Council by moving this resolution. Of course, I am glad that he has come back to take charge of his department after his labours in the University Commission, and I am also glad to learn that he is quite willing to discuss the matter with me and that if anything can be done it will be done.

As I have said at the outset, it is not for a vote in this Council that I have brought forward this resolution, but simply to bring to the notice of the educational authorities the defects not only pointed out by me but also by the Hon'ble Sir Deva Prasad Sarbadhikari in his inspection note in January last. I still maintain that the arrangement for the teaching of Philosophy is very defective, about which nothing has been said, and that unless some arrangements are made for its improvement, I do not know what will be the fate of those reading that subject at Rajshahi. I do not say that Government are not sympathetic and that they are neglecting their duty, but what I beg to submit is that it sometimes happens that proper notice is not taken, though, I think, it is for the purpose of finding out these defects in Government, colleges that Inspectors have been appointed and inspection is made by the educational authorities. I pointed out these defects and tried for their improvement on several occasions, but to no effect, and so, my Lord, I have at last thought it advisable to bring forward this resolution at a time when after a few days Your Excellency will be visiting there and will be able to obtain first-hand information from the local authorities.

I need only say a few words about the B. L. class for which I have been mercilessly attacked by my Hon'ble friend, Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur. I do not know why it should be compulsory that all persons from the mufassal should come to Calcutta or go to Dacca for the study of law. Dacca is going to be a separate University and what will be the arrangements there we do not know. I am informed that there are 3,000 pupils in the University and in the Ripon Law Colleges. If in Calcutta it is necessary that law study should be made and any number should be taught, I do not see why it should be discouraged in the mufassal. My Hon'ble friend, who was a distinguished member of this profession, has now retired after his long and prolific practice : his son has now got a Judgeship in the Calcutta High Court. Of course he can now discourage the law study. but the country at large cannot do so. What will the rising generation do? Of late, we have been trying to make other avenues of life open to the rising generation, but we are not in sight of any other at present. Even the arrangement for the study of Medicine is very limited. My Hon'ble friend forgets that the pleaders' classes are going to be abolished and that consequently B. L.s are to practise in the Munsifs' courts, and in fact many B. L.s nowadays practise in the Munsifs' as well as in the criminal courts. I think he has been misinformed that at Rajshahi there are over 200 pleaders. As a matter of fact, there are not more than 70. I do not know from where he got his information. My idea is that if the B. L.s can be encouraged to practise in the Criminal Courts the atmosphere in these Courts may be improved to a certain extent. My friend thinks that the law study should be abolished altogether. I do not know why, and even if that be so, the University are the proper authorities which should be moved to that effect. Even in the University Commission's Report it is not suggested anywhere that the law study should altogether be discontinued or discouraged in this country. It seems to me that the legal profession is still now at least one in which the rising generation can make out a living. If one can honestly work in the criminal or in the Munsif's Court he can earn Rs. 100 a month, whereas if one gets an appointment in the Education Department one will not be given more than Rs. 35 a month. Whatever that may be, this is not the proper place for discussing whether law study should be abolished altogether or discouraged. What I beg to submit is that if the Dacca College is raised to the standard of a University, the Rajshahi College will be the only college which will be second to the Presidency College and that is one of the reasons why it should be maintained on the same lines as Dacca. I may inform my Hon'ble friend that law study is also necessary for the success of the M.A. class. At Rajshahi, whatever my friend may think, the Governing Body is presided over by the District Magistrate who is a European gentleman, and recently an M.A. of Great Britain also thought it necessary and recommended that M.A. and B.L. classes should be opened there; but at that time, pending the consideration of the University Commission's Report, and for want of funds, nothing was done. Now that the report is out, I trust that the proposal whether further facilities should be given to Rajshahi will receive the serious consideration of Your Excellency's Government as well as the educational authorities. Whatever my Hon'ble friend, Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur may think, the people of Rajshahi are so very keen on the subject that they are willing to contribute so large a sum as Rs. 1½ lakhs towards the development of M.A. and B.L. study. The subject of improving the status of the Rajshahi College and that of improving the arrangements for the study of the several subjects now taught are urgent affairs and require early consideration. I think no time should be lost in considering the proposal for opening M.A. and B.L. classes because hereafter we may lose the benefit of so large an offer as Rs. 1½ lakhs.

It is needless to consider now whether the college should be established at Rajshahi or Rangpur. The Rajshahi College was raised to the status of B.A. classes in the year 1878, and it has grown to be an institution second in importance to the Presidency College and equal in importance to the Dacca College with about 800 students, 400 in the B.A. and 400 in the I.A. classes and therefore I submit that instead of checkmating it it ought to be further developed.

I may be permitted to withdraw the resolution in the hope that the matter will engage Your Excellency's consideration when Your Excellency will shortly visit the place."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 13.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a conference of the Principals of all colleges in Bengal, Government as well as private, be invited to meet under the presidency of the Hon'ble the Member in charge of Education, to consider the recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission and to submit their report to Government.

He said :—

“ My Lord it will, I hope, not be necessary for me to inflict any long speech in order to impress upon Hon'ble Members the necessity of the proposal embodied in my resolution. Hon'ble Members are all aware of the many diverse and far-reaching recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission which are no doubt calculated to serve the best interests of the country in the matter of educational development in all its branches. Before the report of that august body is considered by the Government of India and action taken by them, I think the Government of Bengal will submit a report upon the recommendations of the Commission. My humble suggestion is that before the Government of Bengal consider the recommendations and submit their report thereupon there should be a conference of the experienced educationists who are in charge of the existing educational institutions and who are principally and immediately concerned with these recommendations. Individually they will be able to submit their views no doubt, but there is a special advantage—which I don't think I need point out—of discussing the questions involved in a conference where by mutual exchange of views and open discussions a unanimity of views upon the recommendations of those vitally interested in the same may be secured. The real difficulty to my mind will be how to give effect to the weighty recommendations of the Commission which will practically revolutionise the whole educational system involving very heavy expenditure, both capital and recurring. If the system proposed by the Commission and decided upon by the Government is to be given effect to by degrees, then the question how to do it can best be solved by those experienced educationists who are now conducting the existing system. I might add that the excuse of my bringing forward this resolution is that I not only consider it desirable but to my mind such a conference is absolutely indispensable.

With these few words I commend this resolution to the acceptance of the Government and the Council.”

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

“ My Lord, it is very difficult to follow the reasons of the hon'ble gentleman who moved the resolution. He suggests that a conference of the Principals of all the colleges in Bengal under the presidency of the Hon'ble Member in charge be formed. Now, my Lord, what is the object of the conference? Is it to sit in judgment over the recommendations of the University Commission, or is the object to carry out the recommendations of the Commission? All these recommendations are now before the Government of India. These recommendations are to be formulated into several sections and the Act will be passed. If a report be submitted by all the Principals of colleges under the presidency of the Hon'ble Member in charge, that report will be of no avail. The whole question of the recommendations of the Commission will be discussed at a proper place, at a proper time, and before the proper authorities. I find that the Rajshahi College has been mentioned as the best college and that there is considerable intellectual activity in that quarter. The Commission says that so far as the Krishnagar and the Hooghly colleges are concerned, they are of an inferior kind, and I gather inferentially that the B.A. standard in these colleges may not be recommended. These are matters, Sir, which are agitating the minds of the people. The recommendations of the Commission are the subject-matter of consideration by the people throughout Bengal, and criticisms are offered on the recommendations of the Commission, because the public think that they have a right to do that. Surely, before the recommendations come into force, the opinion of the public will be considered. If the proposed conference of Principals of all colleges is held and the public are not associated at the conference, what will be the result? I therefore think that this resolution which has been moved by my learned friend is out of place. If he considers that the conference will do some good, I have not the least objection. But all the recommendations of the Commission are now before the Government of India and the whole subject will be discussed in the Imperial Council and non-official views will be taken into consideration by the Government of India. My Hon'ble friend suggests that no non-official element is to be taken in the conference ; and I am really surprised to hear that : but if anybody is to object to the recommendations of the Commission it is the non-official people, and I do not think they should be excluded.

My Lord, without wasting further Your Excellency's time, I beg to oppose this resolution".

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I will say only a few words. I do not quite see the necessity of the proposed conference. I imagine that all the Principals of the colleges were examined by the Members of the University Commission, and I understand that most of the Principals of colleges, whether in Calcutta or in the mufassal, are Members of the Calcutta University Senate. I think, Dr. P. Neogi, the present officiating Principal of the Rajshahi College, is not a Fellow of the University Senate. The permanent Principal is always made a Fellow, but the officiating man has to wait probably till he becomes permanent. His predecessor in office, Rai Kamudini Kanta Banarji Bahadur, was or is still a Member of the Senate. The Senate will meet and discuss the recommendations of the University Commission. There the Principals of almost all the colleges, whether in Calcutta or outside Calcutta, will have the opportunity of saying their say and of criticising the proposals of the Members of the University Commission. That being so, I do not see why there should be a separate conference ; and I oppose this resolution."

The Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan said :—

"My Lord, I do not think I need take up the time of the Council at any length. The Hon'ble Mover of this resolution has already had the views of two of his non-official colleagues who have opposed the resolution, and I think on good grounds. Although on behalf of Government I am unable to accept the resolution, I may say that I am in entire sympathy with the Hon'ble Mover in so far as he desires that at some stage or other there should be a frank exchange of views between Government and the leading educationists in Bengal regarding the recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission. To some extent, therefore, I am in agreement with the Hon'ble Mover, but I would now go on to say why I cannot accept the resolution. In the first place, the Report of the Calcutta University Commission, except that portion of it which deals with the Dacca University, is still under consideration by the Government of India. The issues relating, for example, to the reconstruction of the Calcutta University are numerous and intricate ; and it is very necessary and proper that the Local Government should have the opportunity of the fullest exchange of views with the Government of India before the Local Government indicate their views on certain definite and vital issues to the public. In the second place, I cannot conceive that a round-table conference on the report generally can lead to much practical result. The subject is too vast, its extent too wide, the essential issues are too numerous; and we do not want another Commission. But the Hon'ble Mover's conference which is intended, I presume, to sit from day to day will be perilously like another commission. Again I think that the Hon'ble Mover has failed to realise the far-reaching consequences which the Commission's proposals involve in suggesting that his conference should consist merely of a few professional educationists. If there is to be a conference and obviously we have got to consult public men before long representing other interests also, in fact all those who are concerned in the reorganization of education will have to be consulted. The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur has mentioned the Calcutta University. Surely, the Calcutta University has a right to be heard, if Government decide that the main issues of the problem should be discussed at a conference convened by Government. My Lord, I am unable to speak with any more definiteness without obtaining the views of the Government of India on this point, but I may state that we fully recognise that if the recommendations of the Commission are to be substantially accepted and translated into action, we must have on our side the willing co-operation of all those who have considered the educational problems of Bengal, and we believe that some kind of conference at a later stage might be held but more catholic in the sections of opinion which would represent will help Government and at the same time satisfy the public that these important questions will not be decided hurriedly or without the most careful consideration. For these reasons I cannot accept the resolution nor can I at present agree to bind Government to convene any such conference as the Hon'ble Mover suggests. But I may say that we may reasonably expect that at a later stage we shall have a conference for the discussion of certain vital issues by persons interested therein, quite apart from the debate that is likely to take place in the Imperial Council on the Dacca University Bill or the Calcutta University Bill. Such a conference might be helpful, but at the present moment I am not prepared on behalf of Government to accept the proposal of the Hon'ble Mover."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, I was labouring under a misapprehension. My idea was that before the matter is taken up by the Government of India the opinions of the Calcutta University and the Bengal Government would be taken, but as I now see that the matter will be first considered by the Government of India and then we shall have to hold some sort of a conference. As the Senate was asked separately to report, I thought that we should have a conference here just now. I am satisfied to hear that some sort of conference will be held at a later stage and therefore I wish to withdraw the resolution."

The motion was, then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Council was then adjourned to the 18th December 1919 at 11 A.M. at Government House, Calcutta.

RESOLUTION

PROPOSAL FOR THE CREATION OF ALL-INDIA SCIENTIFIC SERVICES

CHEMICALS AND MINERALS

1. THE Indian Industrial Commission in paragraphs 116-118 of their Report have pointed out that the present arrangements for the recruiting, employment and grouping of scientific officers for the purpose of carrying out research work are unsatisfactory. There have not been wanting, it is true, individual officers who have done valuable work in their own special lines. But some of those who have achieved the greatest degree of success are also most insistent in their cry for co-ordination and for the help of other scientists in dealing with the complicated problems that demand solution. The Industrial Commission draw attention not only to the absence of an effective means for meeting this demand, but also to the entire absence of a scientific atmosphere except in a few isolated centres. The lack of scientific intercourse and of prospects of mutual advancement tends to deprive workers of any incentive to research.

2. Unsatisfactory as the existing position is from the point of view of the employed, it is even less satisfactory from that of the employer. The inability of local Governments to judge of the work of the isolated scientific officers whom they employ or to replace them when they leave or fall ill has been fully emphasised by the Industrial Commission. The small but not unimportant results achieved with the help of the Indian Munitions Board as an agency for marshalling the scientific forces of the country to attack a few problems of considerable local importance under war conditions throw into strong contrast the vast field of possibilities from which a consistent policy pursued before the war might have developed valuable economic assets in peace time and powerful safeguards of established industries in time of war. There have, however, not been wanting examples of attempts, more or less successful to build up organisations of officers for scientific work, instances such as the Geological Survey of India and the Indian Agricultural Service, prove by their success, even on their present limited scale, the advantages of system, even though that system differs radically in the case of these two departments. The importance of organising scientific workers, not only in the interests of the workers themselves, but of the work which they perform and of the public in whose interest they perform it, is now widely recognised; and the question for consideration appears to the Government of India to be the form of organisation best suited for Indian conditions, political, economic and geographical. A scheme for all-India services as a basis of scientific organisation has been put forward by the Indian Industrial Commission in paragraphs 120-126 of their Report, and supported by the Government of India, subject to certain criticisms of detail, in their despatch No. 15 (Industries), dated the 4th June 1919, of which paragraphs 22 to 30 are annexed to this resolution.

3. The Government of India have decided to deal, in the first place, with the case of officers employed under Government as chemists; and have, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State, appointed a Committee, with the following terms of reference:—

- (1) To consider whether an all-India Chemical Service is the best and most suitable method of overcoming the difficulties and deficiencies pointed out by the Indian Industrial Commission.
- (2) In the event of the Committee approving the principle of an all India Service, to devise terms of recruitment, employment and organisation; to indicate the extent to which chemists already in Government employ should be included in that service; and to suggest what should be the relations of the proposed organisation with the public and with departments of the Government of India and of local Governments.
- (3) In particular, to frame proposals for the location, scope and organisation of institutions for chemical research.

4. Professor J. F. Thorpe, C.B.E., D. Sc., Ph.D., F.I.C., F.R.S., Professor of Organic Chemistry in the Imperial College of Science and Technology, London, has been appointed President, and Dr. J. L. Simonsen, F.I.C., F.A.S.B., Forest Chemist, Dehra Dun, has been appointed Member and Secretary. The constitution of the Committee will be announced shortly.

ORDERED that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations, with the request that the Committee may be given any assistance which they may require and that any applications for information which may be made by the Committee may be complied with.

ORDERED also that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to all Departments of the Government of India, to the Director-General of Commercial Intelligence, to the President and Members of the Committee, and that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

F. R. R. RUDMAN.

Secretary, Indian Munitions Board.

Extract (paragraphs 22—30) from despatch No. 15 (Industries), dated the 4th June 1919, from the Government of India to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, London.

THE SCIENTIFIC SERVICES.

22. The third of the main proposals refers to the constitution of scientific services and of an industrial service. The Commission draw attention to the extreme importance of research under modern industrial conditions and to the especial needs of India, in view of her vast unexploited resources in raw material and of the paucity of her scientific workers. They criticise the complete lack of organisation among scientists employed by Government and describe the difficulties, both administrative and technical, to which this gives rise. The Commission recommend as a remedy the creation of a similar mechanism to that through which the Central and Local Governments have hitherto carried out almost all their most important activities, especially those requiring technical knowledge, viz., all-India services; and they discuss the basis on which these services should be constituted. The Commission propose the creation, not of scientific departments, but of scientific services, an essential distinction which has been clearly brought out in the replies of Local Governments, though it has not been so clearly apprehended by critics of the proposal. The Commission contemplate the recruitment of officers into separate scientific services, such as a chemical, botanical or zoological service, for employment under imperial and provincial departments, such as Forest and Agriculture, which deal with the application of a number of separate sciences. They propose that scientific officers in the employ of Government, instead of being recruited in small numbers or single units into the different services which happen to require them, should be recruited as experts in their several sciences, into scientific services, each with its appropriate conditions of qualification, pay, pension and promotion. Although the services will be distinct entities for the above purposes, yet the only members of those services that will not be actually employed under the various departments that require their services, will consist of a central staff, engaged under such officers, for instance, as Deputy Chief Chemists, at research centres, in scientific work. This central agency will also serve as a reservoir to meet the demands that may be put forward by other departments or by Local Governments for men to undertake temporary special investigations, to fill new posts or leave vacancies, or for the replacement of existing officers.

The head of each scientific service would thus exercise an influence over the members of his service in matters scientific by the check of scientific results and by the provision of advice and criticism on scientific work, whether for Local Governments or for research workers. It is not, we understand, proposed by the Commission, nor do we ourselves contemplate, that he should actually control research work in the sense of ordering definite problems to be taken up by officers serving under Local Governments or should turn his department into a gang of hack researchers. We rely on constant correspondence between scientific officers of the same caste and periodical conferences as sufficient to correlate research programmes.

23. With the Commission's view of the very unsatisfactory nature of the present position as set forth in paragraphs 116 and 117 of their Report we are in complete accord.

Local Governments and heads of departments find the greatest difficulty in forming an opinion of the work done by scientists employed under them; or of the probable value of lines of research proposed by their officers. Should the administrative authority consider the results obtained by a scientist unsatisfactory, it is almost impossible to obtain an authoritative opinion on his work and qualifications; or to say whether he might not do better in another post; or to find such a post for him. The difficulties arising from the existence of isolated specialists in a department are in fact notorious. Local Governments constantly find themselves saddled with unsatisfactory men for long periods. The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, for instance, specifically alludes to his own experience of those difficulties.

The impossibility of applying any common measure in determining the respective claims to promotion of a botanist, a chemist, an engineer and a political economist have been recognised in the existing services by the creation of separate posts on a time-scale. But this does not get over the difficulties already indicated, nor supply the proper incentive to the research worker, nor afford scope or prospects for men of more than average ability. The absence of such prospects is bound to militate against our chances of obtaining good recruits, to render our staff discontented, and to prevent our securing the best work from the best men.

Moreover, so long as students of a particular science are recruited sporadically on behalf of different departments as vacancies occur, Government will have to accept the men that happen to be left over, whatever their qualifications, after other and more regular demands have been supplied. The prospect of regular annual recruitment will enable the Government of India to fill its future demands for scientists, as it has hitherto done for engineers, forest officers and medical men.

24. The present system, under which the only chemists employed by the State are scattered through numerous departments without any organisation that can marshal the chemical forces of the country to attack problems of national importance, can give no help towards an active industrial policy.

We might quote as illustrating the inspiring value of a central co-ordinating authority, the work undertaken by the Munitions Board, through its chemical adviser. The report of the Conference of Chemists at Lahore, which we append* to this despatch, shows that even our isolated and scattered chemists can be moulded into one team for the purpose of suggesting new lines of research, and means for turning the results to practical account, without over-lapping and consequent waste of effort.

This experience, in the light of the magnificent results obtained in England by the Research Committee of the Privy Council, shows clearly how much may be expected from a system which provides a permanent organic connection between all chemists in Government employ.

25. The importance of a common system of recruitment and of a common service has recently been recognised by the Council of the Institute of Chemistry in the United Kingdom (vide proceedings of the Institute of Chemistry, 1918, part IV, page 14), in a representation submitted by them to all Government Departments in which chemists are employed; they state their opinion that "the time is opportune for taking steps to secure for the provision of chemistry a position corresponding to that occupied by the learned professions and they feel that much would be accomplished towards the attainment of that end if, in the first place, adequate and uniform conditions of appointment were accorded to chemists directly engaged in the service of the State. The necessity for a definitely organised chemical service (both in peace and war) for all purposes of the State on which the science of chemistry has a bearing, has long been recognised in the chemical profession."

Conditions in India render the services of chemists employed under Government of even greater relative importance than in England. India is far more deficient than England in the knowledge of its raw materials and of the appropriate industrial processes; consulting chemists and chemists in private employ are almost entirely absent here, and this deficiency is not likely soon to be remedied. Research institutes with special reference to a particular industry in England, it would seem, will usually be financed and controlled by the industry itself, with a Government grant-in-aid, whereas in India the position will be precisely the opposite, and the industry will rely primarily on State chemists. We therefore agree with the Commission that the advancement of industries in India must depend for scientific assistance almost entirely on State-employed men, and these men will be far more concerned with the initiation of important new lines of development and research and far less with merely routine work than is the case in England. The need of organisation is the greater, in that the functions of Indian State chemists are more important to the country; while their greater isolation and the consequent absence of a scientific atmosphere furnish an additional argument. The case for a State Chemical Service is thus even stronger in India than in England.

26. We are much influenced by the prospects which the proposed system affords of increasing the number of Indians in the scientific services. An Indian appointed to an isolated post, or as an assistant to an isolated professor in a country where the scientific atmosphere is non-existent, or at the best, exceedingly attenuated, lacks guidance and the stimulus of his fellows in the pursuit of scientific knowledge. His ambitions tend to become limited to the improvement of his pay and prospects rather than of his professional attainments. His membership of an all-India service, based on the pursuit of a common science, will increase the prestige of that science in his eyes and in those of the Indian public; the existence of the proposed imperial nucleus of scientists under a distinguished chief will provide him with an incitement to excel, with assistance in his studies and with opportunity for training if he desires it.

27. The Commission propose that, if the principle of scientific services is approved, committees should be appointed to formulate proposals for the permanent organisation and the terms of employment of each such service, and for the location and equipment of research laboratories. We support this recommendation, subject to the condition that the terms of reference to each committee should include a direction to report as to the advisability of constituting all-India services for each well-defined science.

28. Without anticipating the conclusions of the proposed committee, we think it desirable, in view of criticisms which have been expressed in some of the annexures to this despatch, to indicate certain principles in the general administration of these services, which should govern the relations between the members of the scientific services and the heads of departments and Provincial Governments, under whom many of them will be employed.

We do not think that members of scientific services should be seconded by the method which the Commission propose, viz., by deputation for periods of 5 years at a time; but we consider that, as in the case of other services, an officer when once placed permanently under the orders of a Local Government, should remain with that Government for the rest of his service, unless the Government under which he is serving itself desires his transfer; or unless his services are required in higher post or in a post requiring special qualifications outside the province, in which case the Local Government will recognise that the Imperial Government have a claim on them. This is the system which exists at present in respect of all similar services.

Local Governments would have complete liberty to appoint, after consulting the head of the service, to any post in their industrial or scientific cadre, any available member of the respective services; they would also be at liberty, in the special circumstances arising during the initial stages, to appoint to such posts men outside the service; but the subsequent admission to the all-India service of men so appointed would be entirely controlled by the Secretary of State. The Local Governments universally support the proposed scheme of scientific services, and though the Governments of the Punjab, the United Provinces and Bombay and the officers and public bodies consulted by them put forward certain criticisms of the scheme, especially with reference to the position of scientists in the Education Department, these criticisms are, we think, fully met by the foregoing explanation of the lines on which we think the proposed services should be administered.

29. We desire, however, to add a few remarks with special reference to the case of science teachers. We fully recognise that much is required of a scientific professor in a college, outside his scientific work. He must look on himself as a member of the body responsible for the tone of the college and for its general success. It will, therefore, we agree, be most undesirable that such a man should continuously have in mind the possibility of promotion outside his own department. We think, however, that this difficulty will be obviated by the general principle laid down by us above, viz., that members of scientific services serving under the Department of Education should not be removed from that department, unless at the request of the educational authorities, or for posts requiring high administrative capacity, or special scientific qualification.

The advantage to the Education Department of a system of scientific services will still be very considerable. In the first place, we consider that, though University and college science workers should be by no means entirely divorced from technical research, their main sphere of activity should lie among problems of pure science. The proposed central scientific organisation should afford a means whereby such problems arising in the course of technical research can be referred to university and college laboratories.

Such co-ordination, both in respect of pure science problems and technical problems, can be most readily effected in cases where the educational researchers are themselves members of a scientific service. This policy will doubtless stimulate the interest in research work taken by students and professors. Officers who have entered the educational service as teachers may be in some cases expected to develop as research workers. The existence of all-India scientific services will afford a ready means for accommodating men whose aims in life have thus been diverted from one form of work to another. In the next place, the present system of recruitment of scientists into the Educational Service is capable of improvement, and far better results could be obtained with the aid and advice of watchful central agencies in India. The absence of a scientific atmosphere again has been particularly injurious to scientific officers in the Educational Service and has led to great stagnation in respect of research work. This atmosphere will in future reach individual officers by the numerous channels of communication which will be created between them and the central agency on technical subjects, whether by way of correspondence, conferences and scientific publications, by the central staff's tours of inspection, or by officers spending some portion of their vacations at research institutes. The case of scientists at present employed under the Department of Education will obviously require careful treatment; such men should not be allowed to join the scientific services as a matter of course, but each case will have to be considered on its merits and there may still be classes of appointments for which men will have to be recruited independently. Further, the whole question, so far as it affects the employment of officers with scientific qualifications in colleges and universities, will have to be reviewed in connection with the proposals of the Calcutta University Commission regarding recruitment.

30. In addition to the opinions expressed in the letters received from Local Governments, two important conferences of chemists have recently put forward their views on the Commission's proposals. A record of their discussion is appended.* A full meeting of the sectional conference of agricultural chemists at

* Not reprinted

Pusa in February passed the following resolution:—

"That this Conference considers that, in view of the intense local knowledge required for effective work for agricultural improvement by chemical methods, it is not desirable that the chemists in the Agricultural Departments should be formed into a service apart from the ordinary agricultural service in which the bond of union would be the science rather than its application. On the other hand, in addition to agricultural chemists attached to the Provincial Departments, this Conference is definitely of opinion that a strong central body of chemists should be maintained by the Imperial Department of Agriculture from whom Provincial Departments could draw for the investigation of special problems".

The main objection taken was, it will be observed, based on the idea that men would usually be transferred after 5 years periods. We have explained already that such an idea forms no part of the system which we contemplate. It is also significant that the same resolution declared the necessity of a strong central body of chemists for the department of agriculture; and it may be added, the same meeting pointed out the desirability of equipping the agricultural research organisation to deal with certain industrial problems arising out of agricultural research. The sum of these conclusions seems to point to the desirability of supplying some agency which can correlate chemical research with agricultural and industrial problems, and of avoiding the needless expense of creating separate research nuclei for dealing with each separate class of chemical problems.

A Conference of chemists was convened in Lahore in January 1918 by the Indian Munitions Board. It included not only Government officers, but also chemists attached to missionary colleges and employed under private firms. The Conference passed no formal resolution, but strongly supported the proposed system of scientific services.

TRADE WITH GERMANY, AUSTRIA, HUNGARY, AND ARABIA.

In view of the raising of the blockade the Board of Trade have issued General Licences under the Trading with the Enemy legislation authorising, with certain reservations, the resumption of trade with Germany, Austria, Hungary and Arabia.

The Licences do not remove the existing restrictions upon the payment of debts and the return of property due or deliverable to persons in Germany, Austria, Hungary and Arabia in respect of pre-war transactions.

The Licences do not permit the importation from Germany, Austria, Hungary, or Arabia of any goods included in the Prohibition of Import Proclamations and not covered by a General Licence issued under those Proclamations. Information with regard to imports into the United Kingdom can be obtained from the Import Restrictions Department, 22, Carriage Place, S. W. 1. The text of these General Licences is as follows:—

The Board of Trade, on behalf of His Majesty, and in pursuance of the powers reserved in the Trading with the Enemy Proclamations and all other powers thereunto them enabling, do hereby give and grant licence to all persons and bodies of persons resident, carrying on business, or being in the United Kingdom, to trade and have commercial and financial transactions with persons or bodies of persons resident or carrying on business in Germany/Austria/Hungary:

Provided always that any licence which may be necessary in respect of any transaction under any prohibition of export or prohibition of import for the time being in force in the United Kingdom or in respect of any remittance of money out of the United Kingdom covered by Regulation 41D of the Defence of the Realm Regulations is first obtained:

Provided also that this licence shall not permit any person or body of persons to pay to or for the benefit of any person or body of persons resident or carrying on business in Germany/Austria/Hungary any sum of money which by the terms of the Trading with the Enemy Amendment Acts, 1914 and 1915, or either of them, is required to be paid to the Custodian appointed under the Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914, but such sums of money must be paid to the said Custodian:

Provided further that this licence shall not permit any person or body of persons to pay or deliver any sum of money or property which is, or but for the war, would have been due or deliverable to any person or body of persons resident or carrying on business in Germany/Austria/Hungary in respect of a transaction entered into before the outbreak of war.

A General licence with regard to Arabia has been issued, dated the 19th August 1919.

URGENT ORDERS.

The Board of Trade, Export Licence Department, announces that, in collaboration with the Department of Overseas Trade, an arrangement has been made whereby firms receiving orders which require immediate acceptance may telegraph details of any such order to the Department of Overseas Trade in order to ascertain whether a licence will be granted for the export of the goods if the order is accepted.

In the event of an applicant being promised a licence he will be enabled to deal with the order straightaway with the knowledge that upon application being made in the proper form to the Export Licence Department the licence will be granted.

The telegrams should be addressed to "Orders, c/o Advantage, Stock, London." They should give in each case in addition to the name and postal or telegraphic address of the applicant the quantity and description of the goods comprised in the order and the name and address of the ultimate consignee if the goods are destined for a neutral country. In the case of orders from Allied or British Territory or from Territory in the occupation of troops of the Associated Governments, the consignee need not be stated; and it will be sufficient merely to give the country of destination. A reply of 24 words (1/3) must be prepaid.

Applicants are requested in their own interest to confine their enquiries to orders needing a very urgent decision, since the fewer the enquiries the more promptly can answers be given.

Any subsequent correspondence that is necessary in connection with the telegraphic enquiries should be addressed to the Comptroller General, Department of Overseas Trade (Export Facilities Section), 4, Queen Anne's Gate Buildings, Westminster, S.W. 1.

* Regulation 41D of the Defence of the Realm Regulation is now cancelled.

No. 596D.—In exercise of the powers conferred by sections 17 and 6 of the Indian Explosives Act, 1884 (IV of 1884), and in supersession of the notification of the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry, No. 706-39, dated the 30th January 1915:—

I. The Governor General in Council is pleased hereby to declare that acetylene, when liquid or when subject to a pressure above that of the atmosphere capable of supporting a column of water exceeding two hundred and fifty inches in height, and whether or not in admixture with other substances, or when in admixture with atmospheric air or with oxygen gas in whatever proportion and at whatever pressure, and whether or not in admixture with other-substances, shall be deemed to be an explosive within the meaning of the said Act, subject to the following exception that if it be shown to the satisfaction of the Governor General in Council that acetylene declared to be an explosive by this notification when in admixture with any substance, or in any form or condition, is not possessed of explosive properties, the Governor General in Council may, by order, exempt such acetylene from being deemed to be an explosive within the meaning of the said Act:

Provided that nothing in this notification shall apply to acetylene in admixture with air when such admixture takes place only in a burner or contrivance in which the mixture is intended to be burnt:

Provided also, that nothing in this notification shall be held to apply to an admixture of acetylene and air which may unavoidably occur in the first use or recharging of an apparatus properly designed and constructed with a view to the production of pure acetylene:

Provided also, that acetylene, when in admixture with oil-gas (that is to say, a gas manufactured from mineral oil), shall not when under compression be deemed to be an explosive within the meaning of the said Act, if the following conditions are fulfilled, namely:

- (1) The acetylene shall be generated only by the Atkins Dry Process.
- (2) The proportion of acetylene shall not exceed fifty parts by volume in every one hundred parts of the mixture of acetylene and oil-gas.
- (3) The acetylene and oil-gas shall be mixed together in a chamber or vessel before the gases are subjected to compression.
- (4) The mixture shall not be compressed to a pressure exceeding one hundred and fifty pounds to one square inch:

Provided also, that acetylene when contained in a homogeneous porous substance with or without acetone or other solvent, shall not be deemed to be an explosive within the meaning of the said Act if the following conditions are fulfilled, namely:—

(1) The porous substance shall fill as completely as possible the cylinder into which the acetylene is compressed.

(2) The porosity of the substance shall not exceed eighty per cent.

(3) Any acetone or other solvent used shall not be capable of chemical reaction with the acetylene gas or with the porous substance or with the metal of the cylinder, and the quantity of acetone or other solvent shall be such that when fully charged with acetylene it shall not completely fill the porosity of the porous substance at any temperature likely to be met with in ordinary practice or use.

(4) A drawing showing the method of construction of every type of cylinder it is proposed to use for the storage of compressed acetylene gas shall be deposited with the Chief Inspector of Explosives with the Government of India and no cylinder shall be so used unless it is of a design approved in writing by the said Chief Inspector:

Provided that this shall not be deemed to prohibit the use of existing cylinders for a period of five years from the date of this notification.

(5) The pressure in the cylinder shall not exceed two hundred and twenty-five pounds to the square inch at a temperature of sixty degrees Fahrenheit:

Provided that no cylinder capable when empty of containing one cubic foot of water or more, which has the ends secured to the body by welding only, and no cylinder in which a porous substance is used without acetone or other solvent shall be charged to a pressure exceeding one hundred and fifty pounds to the square inch at a temperature of sixty degrees Fahrenheit. This condition shall not apply to cylinders used exclusively for marine lighting by an officer appointed by a Local Government in that behalf.

(6) Every cylinder capable when empty of containing one cubic foot of water or more in which under this notification the pressure allowed may be two hundred and twenty-five pounds to the square inch, shall be annealed and every cylinder shall be tested by hydraulic pressure to a pressure of not less than four times the pressure to which the cylinder is to be subjected in use, such hydraulic pressure to be maintained for a period of not less than fifteen minutes and no cylinder shall be used which on the first occasion of its being subjected to this test shall show any permanent stretch.

(7) The compression of the acetylene shall be carried out only on such premises as shall have been approved in writing by the Chief Inspector of Explosives with the Government of India. Such approval may be withdrawn at any time by that officer.

(8) No firm shall charge with acetylene any cylinder manufactured by any other firm unless it is in full possession of full particulars and previous history of such cylinder, or has otherwise assured itself that the cylinder complies with the requirements of this notification.

RESOLUTION—No. 4612Emi.

Read—

The Reports on Inland Emigration under the Assam Labour and Emigration Act, 1901 (VI of 1901), for the year ending the 30th June 1919, submitted by the Superintendent of Emigration, Calcutta, and the District and Assistant Superintendents of Emigration.

1. The only administrative change of importance introduced during the year under review was the discontinuance of the submission to District Magistrates of a monthly list of emigrants engaged by garden sardars. The large and unprecedented increase in the number of emigrants despatched to the labour districts was the most marked feature of the year.

2. One thousand five hundred and twenty-two garden-sardars (including 353 sardarnis) were employed during the year in this Presidency as against 640 (including 190 sardarnis) in the year 1917-18. All of them worked under the control of duly licensed local agents. The number of local agents' licenses issued during the year was 6, or one less than in the previous year.

3. Recruiting operations were conducted in the districts of Burdwan, Midnapore, Bankura and Birbhum, where 2,364 emigrants were recruited during 1918-19 as against 508 in the preceding year. The largest number of emigrants went from the districts of Midnapore, Bankura and Burdwan, viz., 1,458, 701 and 146, respectively. No criminal case connected with emigration was reported during the year 1918-19.

4. The total number of emigrants from Bengal and other provinces who embarked during the year at Goalundo was 119,883 as compared with 9,808 in the previous year, the increase being attributed partly to the improved and more elaborate recruiting organisation made by the tea industry and partly to the scarcity and high prices of food-stuffs in the recruiting districts. The poor health and lowered physical condition of the emigrants and the abnormally large numbers in which they were proceeding to the labour districts resulted in a serious outbreak of cholera and influenza among them. The rush of emigrants to the port of embarkation was unprecedented during the months of January and February 1919, when the number of admissions to the Goalundo charitable hospital was highest, the number of sick emigrants seeking admission rising to 268 on the 13th February 1919. This hospital which had only 23 beds was suddenly called upon to accommodate on an average 175 patients daily. The dislocation of steamer traffic and railway arrangements aggravated the situation, the available space in the rest-houses at Goalundo being quite insufficient to accommodate the large number of emigrants detained there on account of want of space in the steamers. The difficulty was, however, overcome with the assistance of the steamer companies, the Assam Labour Board and the Surgeon-General with the Government of Bengal, by the provision of temporary extra accommodation for about 250 patients and by the engagement of additional temporary hospital staff. Steps were taken at the same time to prevent as far as possible the importation of cholera cases from affected areas in the recruiting districts and to maintain the rest-houses at the several halting places in this Presidency in good sanitary condition. These measures, together with the introduction of anti-cholera inoculation at all local agencies, restored the situation at Goalundo to a normal condition by the end of February 1919. The question of more efficient control over the sanitary arrangements for emigrants in transit, and the establishment of an emigration hospital at Goalundo, were discussed at a conference held in the office of the Assam Labour Board on the 1st August 1919. Remedial measures are now under the consideration of the Board in consultation with the local Governments concerned.

5. Three hundred and sixty deaths were reported to have occurred among emigrants at Asansol, Kharagpur or Naihati on their way to Goalundo, and there were 545 deaths among 120,483 emigrants arriving at the latter station. There was no death during the steamer journey among the 40,887 emigrants who embarked for Cachar and Sylhet, but of 78,996 emigrants who embarked for Assam 332 died during the voyage.

6. Five emigrants who refused to embark were released under the orders of the Subdivisional officer, Goalundo, 13 were rejected as physically unfit for labour on tea estates, and two emigrants were repatriated from the labour districts through Goalundo.

7. In connection with the transport of labour to Assam receipts rose from Rs. 1,566 in the preceding year to Rs. 1,840, while the expenditure fell from Rs. 18,847 to Rs. 14,482.

8. The Governor in Council desires to thank the several officers of this Government, the Assam Labour Board and the steamer companies, who rendered valuable assistance in combating the outbreaks of cholera and influenza among the emigrants at Goalundo. The thanks of Government are also due to the Superintendent of Emigration, Calcutta, for his report and to the local officers for their assistance in the administration of the Act.

By order of the Governor in Council,

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS FOR THE PORT OF CALCUTTA FOR THE YEAR 1918-19.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

MARINE DEPARTMENT.

CALCUTTA, THE 9TH DECEMBER 1919.

RESOLUTION—No. 3820 Marine.

READ—

The Administration Report of the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta for the year 1918-19.

General features of the Administration.—The great war, of course, as in the preceding four years, overshadowed all the activities of the Port Trust. The Armistice was signed seven months after the commencement of the financial year under review; but, as was to be expected, the cessation of hostilities did not immediately bring about any marked improvement in the conditions. The following figures illustrate the position :—

	1913-14.	1914-15.	1915-16.	1916-17.	1917-18.	1918-19.
	Tons.	Tons.	Tons.	Tons.	Tons.	Tons.

II.—Jetties, Imports ...	1,186,797	917,978	788,431	686,010	633,693	574,833
III.—Docks, Imports ...	613,876	700,133	570,997	444,210	363,383	432,403
IV.—" General Ex-ports ...	1,231,589	920,659	1,054,985	1,185,159	995,112	1,097,562
V.—Docks, Coal Exports	3,017,180	2,633,805	1,610,645	1,994,528	1,014,993	1,333,285

Income.—The total income during the year amounted to Rs. 1,90,58,513 against the revised estimate of Rs. 1,86,33,432 and the actuals of Rs. 1,58,39,175 for the preceding year.

Under the following heads the receipts fell appreciably below the revised estimate for the year :—

	Actual.	Revised estimate	Decrease
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Jetties ...	26,84,199	27,62,550	78,351
Tea Warehouse ...	3,16,305	3,32,300	15,995
Petroleum Wharf ...	4,01,770	4,12,670	10,900

This decrease was more than counterbalanced by increases under other heads, the principal of which are the following :—

	Actual.	Revised estimate.	Increase.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Rentable lands and buildings ...	8,84,119	8,67,050	17,069
Railway ...	16,86,772	16,02,900	83,872
Port ...	4,48,344	4,32,500	15,844
Special war surcharge ...	52,06,535	50,00,000	2,06,535

Expenditure.—The expenditure on Revenue Account amounted to Rs. 1,84,14,423 against Rs. 1,56,29,349 in the previous year and an estimate of Rs. 1,81,76,980 for the year under review.

The chief items of expenditure which appreciably exceeded the budget estimate were under the following heads. —

	Actuals	Estimate	Increase
	Rs	Rs	Rs
Control	10,92,744	10,42,925	49,819
Jetties	9,67,201	9,39,548	27,653
Inland Vessels Wharves	2,09,266	1,69,592	39,674
Port	7,11,731	6,84,408	27,323
Port Approaches	10,00,535	9,14,952	85,583
Wet Docks	30,22,432	29,04,570	1,17,862
Ferry Service	3,68,616	3,45,226	23,390

Jetties.—The tonnage handled at the jetties amounted to 574,833 against 632,693 for the year 1917-18, and the total earnings of traffic at the jetties were Rs 23,91,512 against Rs. 13,52,222 for the preceding year. Although there was a decrease of 58,860 tons in the weight of imports, there was an increase of Rs 10,39,290 in revenue, Rs 8,61,564 of which was due to heavy receipts from wharf rent, chiefly on iron, which, owing to market conditions, the importers allowed to lie on the jetty premises. The other items which contributed to the increased revenue were medicines, oilman's stores sugar, hardware, machinery, rice and miscellaneous articles. On the other hand, the decreased earnings under glassware cement piece-goods, tea shocks and unclassified case goods showed a falling off in imports.

Docks.—During the year 790 vessels entered the docks as against 840 vessels in the previous year. Of these the number under the head "Hired transports and Royal Indian Marine vessels" was one against 88 in the previous year. The total imports and exports traffic including coal in tons at the docks were 4,52,403 and 2,430,847, respectively, against 363,383 and 2,010,105 in the preceding year. The increase of tonnage of imports over that of the preceding year was owing to heavier importations of sugar, rice and wheat, while to the increase in exports coal contributed 318,292 tons and wheat, seeds, rice, jute and manganese ore made up the balance.

Petroleum Wharf, Budge-Budge.—The total number of vessels that were berthed at the Petroleum wharf in 1918-19 was 114 against 106 in the preceding year, but there was a decrease in the number of vessels bringing kerosine oil, the actual figure being 65 in 1918-19 against 76 in 1917-18. The total revenue of the depot was Rs 4 lakhs as against Rs. 3 93 lakhs for the preceding year, representing only a nominal increase of Rs. 8,629.

The installation for the storage of petrol in bulk was completed early in June 1918.

Tea warehouse.—The volume of tea traffic dealt with at the warehouse was some 86 per cent less than in the preceding year. The receipts amounted to Rs 2,16,805 against Rs. 4,59,796 in the previous year.

Ferry service.—Thirteen vessels, including two Howrah Bridge ferry steamers, were at work during the year. The total number of passengers carried in the ferry steamers increased with a corresponding increase in the earnings.

Rates and charges.—During the year the following were the more important changes in rates and charges made by the Commissioners :—

- (1) the introduction of an all-round rate of one-half pies per gallon as wharfage on petrol in bulk and in cases imported at Budge-Budge instead of 2 annas per ton of 20 drums ;
- (2) the introduction of a terminal charge of 12 annas per ton on goods received at or despatched from the docks and jetties other than ocean-borne traffic ; and
- (3) the imposition, as a temporary measure, to expedite deliveries, of a penal rate of rent on iron landed at the jetties.

Navigable channels.—During the year the dredger "Balari" worked on the Eastern Gut bar, while the dredger "Sandpiper" was mainly engaged on the Moyapur Bar. The improvement effected in the river channels by dredging was generally maintained, and there was a steady increase in the number of deep draft vessels leaving the Port and a reduction in instances in which vessels were beached.

Night navigation.—The restriction of navigation by night of inward bound vessels between Mud Point and Saugor was removed. This step was of great importance to the shipping as it completed the arrangement for both inward and outward navigation by night between Mud Point and Sandheads.

Channel buoys and lights.—During the year all buoys, including gas buoys and moorings, were examined and repaired when necessary.

The working of the automatic lighted semaphore at Phuldobi gave satisfaction. The semaphore is worked by an instrument which indicates automatically the rise of tide at night ; and the inventor of the apparatus, Mr. H. G. Reaks, River Surveyor, received from the Commissioners a bonus of Rs. 15,000 for its use by them.

Capital works.—The chief capital works that were in progress during the year were —

- (a) the river-side berths at Garden Reach ;
- (b) the reclamation work of diversion roads in connection with the new Dock scheme ; and
- (c) the remodelling scheme at Budge-Budge, including bulk petrol dépôt.

Capital account.—The capital account closed with a credit balance of Rs. 49.43 lakhs against Rs. 43.82 lakhs for the preceding year. The total liabilities of the Trust on Capital Account at the close of the year amounted to Rs. 10,27,80,448, while the total assets were Rs. 14,66,53,794.

In addition to these assets, the Commissioners have at their disposal three other funds accumulated out of revenue which constitute an important asset of the Trust. These are the Revenue Reserve Fund, the Vessels' Replacement Fund and the Fire Insurance Fund. The total amount at credit of these funds on the 31st March 1919 was Rs. 71.39 lakhs.

The total expenditure on capital works was estimated at Rs. 11.86 lakhs.

General.—During the year 39 general meetings of the Commissioners and 16 Committee meetings were held. Mr. S. C. Williams was Vice-Chairman to the Commissioners from 1st April 1918 to 19th February 1919, when he proceeded on combined leave for nine months. Mr. J. T. McCloughin, Traffic Manager, officiated as Vice-Chairman for the remaining period of the year.

The Governor in Council desires to express his regret at the death of Mr. John Scott, who for over nine years held the post of Chief Engineer of the Trust and to thank the Commissioners, the Chairman, Mr. Stevenson-Moore, c.v.o., i.c.s., and the Vice-Chairman Mr. S. C. Williams for their successful administration of the Trust.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL IRRIGATION REVENUE REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1918-19.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

IRRIGATION DEPARTMENT.

CALCUTTA, THE 11TH DECEMBER 1919.

READ—

The Annual Irrigation Revenue Report for the year 1918-19

The Major Irrigation Works in Bengal are the Midnapore and High Tidal Canals. The works are in operation. The Minor Works for navigation are the Calcutta and Eastern Canals, the Madanpur Bil Route, a portion of the Orissa Coast Canal, the Nadia Rivers and the Gaighatta and Baxi khal. The only irrigation work of this class is the Eden Canal. Training works on the rivers Ganges, Bhagirathi, Dhauleswari and Buriganga and anti-malarial drainage works carried out by this department at the cost of Government are classed under this head.

2. The capital outlay on the Major Works to the end of March 1919 amounted to Rs. 1,11,14,189. The works constructed for this outlay comprise two weirs across the Cossye River at Midnapore and at Panchkura and 98.75 miles of main and branch canals, of which 69.75 miles provide for both irrigation and navigation and 29 miles for navigation only; there are in addition 254.5 miles of distributaries. The Terapakia Pass khal, Palaboni khal and the khal leading to the Gewankhali Lock entrance, of which the aggregate length is 20.75 miles, are also maintained for navigation and included as part of the Hiji Tidal Canal. During the year under review no addition was made to the length of the canals or distributaries.

3. The total receipts from the Major Works amounted to Rs. 3,04,605 and the working expenses to Rs. 2,42,163, the result being a net revenue of Rs. 62,142 against Rs. 97,363 in the preceding year. This result is chiefly due to the increase in working expenses of the Hiji Tidal Canal consequent on the silt clearance of Range I, for which purpose the canal had to be closed to traffic for about a month and a half. The general revenues of these canals, which depend considerably upon receipts from navigation, have suffered of late years from railway competition. During the year under review there was, however, some increase in navigation receipts due to the diversion, as in the previous year, of traffic from the railway to the canals owing to restriction on rail-borne goods traffic due to causes arising out of the war.

4. The area irrigated during the year was 80,749 acres as compared with 87,507 acres in 1917-18, and an average of 85,661 acres for the triennium ending March 1918. The decrease was due to seasonable and well distributed rainfall at the commencement of the kharif season.

5. The capital outlay on canals classed as Minor Works and Navigation was Rs. 4,02,781 during the year and Rs. 1,41,45,885 to end of the year. The receipts for the year amounted to Rs. 8,87,323 and the working expenses to Rs. 5,72,777.

The financial results of the year and the capital expenditure to date are exhibited in the following statement :—

6. The Calcutta and Eastern Canals form a series of navigable channels mostly natural but partly artificial, by which communication is maintained between Calcutta and Eastern Bengal. The receipts from navigation tolls amounted to Rs. 4,53,867 as compared with Rs. 3,46,216 in the preceding year. The capital outlay incurred during the year was expended principally, as in the three previous years, on the improvement of the Gabkhan-Bharani khal from Chowkighatta to Jhalakati, which was completed during the year at a total cost of Rs. 7,36,535 for works only. This channel which has been improved in order to avoid the tortuous and dangerous route via the Angeria khal, will now form a link in the main route for steamers between Khulna and Barisal. Capital expenditure was also incurred during the year on the excavation of the Kankrabunia khal in the western Sundarbans, which, when completed, will serve as an alternative to the Doogra Channel which is rapidly dying.

7. The capital expenditure during the year on the Madaripur Bil Route, which connects the Madhumati and Kumar rivers in the district of Faridpur, was incurred chiefly on (1) the improvement of the Lower Kumar river, including easing bends therein, and (2) the construction of an embankment with sluices along the south bank of the channel. The completion report of the project received the approval of the Secretary of State in June 1919. The construction estimate has been closed with effect from the 31st March 1917. These works paid a return of 6·9 per cent. in 1916-17, 6·5 per cent. in 1917-18, and 6·2 per cent. in 1918-19. No less than 5,880 steamers and flats made use of this route during the year under review transporting 424 lakhs of maunds of cargo.

8. The Orissa Coast Canal in conjunction with the Hijli Tidal Canal affords communication between Bengal and Orissa, and previous to the opening of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway was the only inland route by which supplies of food could be conveyed into Orissa in time of famine. This canal, which is intended for navigation only, now lies partly (i.e., for a length of 45 miles) in this presidency and partly in the province of Bihar and Orissa. The receipts and working expenses (direct and indirect) for the portion within Bengal were, respectively, Rs. 17,098 and Rs. 9,666 as against Rs. 14,587 and Rs. 31,706 in the year 1917-18. The increased receipts were due to the diversion of railway traffic to the canal. The decrease in working expenses was due to the fact that no extensive repairs to the locks, etc., were necessary during the year.

9. The work in the Nadia Rivers consists in the training of the river channels by bandals with the two-fold object of maintaining by the scouring of shoals a sufficient depth of water for boat traffic and at the same time improving the sanitation of the country. The former object is only partially attained, but the work done is of use in the interests of sanitation. The committee appointed in February 1917 to consider the report on the Nadia Rivers submitted by Major F. C. Hirst, I.A., Director of Surveys, Bengal, and to advise Government upon the steps to be taken to carry out systematic observations of the changes in the Nadia Rivers, and also, if possible, to improve their condition as navigable channels and as feeders for the Lower Hooghly, have since submitted their report; and it is now before Government. The receipts and working expenses of the Nadia Rivers were Rs. 19,950 and Rs. 48,074, respectively, as against Rs. 16,667 and Rs. 99,187 in the preceding year. Though there has been a slight increase in receipts during the year, it is not likely that, with the growth of railway lines on either bank of the Bhagirathi, and the continued inefficiency of these rivers for the purpose of navigation, in addition to reduction in the rates of tollage from 1906, this system will ever pay its working expenses.

10. The Gaighatta and Baxi Khal is a short channel connecting the rivers Damodar and Rupnarain. A sum of Rs. 459 was spent during the year on the upkeep of the khal. The collection of tolls on boat traffic was leased out for two years from 1st April 1917 to 31st March 1919 at a rental of Rs. 3,400 per annum. Owing to restricted boat navigation during the year on account of the silted up condition of the channel, a remission of rent had to be granted to the lessee, and the rent realised amounted to Rs. 1,450 only.

11. The Eden Canal was originally constructed for sanitary reasons, but it is now used to some extent for irrigation. It was worked during the year at a loss of Rs. 29,501, against a profit of Rs. 9,557 in the preceding year. This was due to a decrease in the area irrigated during the year, and to an increase in the cost of maintaining the canal including the cost of new works taken up and completed.

12. The work in connection with the Improvement of the Bidyadhari River by creating a spill reservoir for the flood tide was in progress during the year. The operations already undertaken have proved satisfactory; and it is expected that the continuation and extension of the operations will effect further improvement by which the life of the river will probably be prolonged for a number of years.

13. Surveys were continued during the year in connection with projects for mitigating the effects of the Damodar floods, and the following works besides those dealt with in the last year's resolution were started with that object in view :—

- (a) the improvement of the Hoorhoola khal,
- (b) the improvement of the Uchchi Nala as a drainage outfall,
- (c) the raising of the embankments on the south of the Ajai River, and
- (d) the raising of the Damodar left embankment.

Investigations were carried out in connection with storage reservoirs in the basin of the Damodar and Barakar Rivers. Surveys were also carried out in connection with the proposed Damodar canal project.

14. (i) Training works were, as usual, carried out in the Dhaleswari and Buriganga rivers to facilitate navigation and to improve the water-supply of the town of Dacca. Dredging operations were also carried out on the off-take (from the Jamuna) of the Dhaleswari River. These dredging operations were started on the 8th November 1918, but had to be stopped on the 28th December 1918 owing to the possibility that the dredger "Foyers" might be shut in by the falling river. These operations were successful to a certain extent, the result being an increased flow of water in the Dhaleswari river throughout the cold and hot weather seasons.

Spurs were also erected in the Buriganga with the object of deflecting the current to the right bank of the river and inducing a greater flow through the Ati khal. The results proved satisfactory.

(ii) Training works were carried out also during the year through the agency of the India General Navigation and Railway Company, Ltd., on the river Ganges between Rajmahal and Goalundo.

(iii) To improve navigation as well as the sanitary conditions and water-supply of the town of Rampur Boalia, training works were carried out on the inner channel of the river Ganges.

(iv) At the mouth of the Bhagirathi River, at its off-take from the Ganges, no dredging operations were done during the year owing to adverse circumstances; endeavours were made to improve the channel by means of bandalling only, so as to improve sanitary conditions by an increased flow in the river. The operations were not successful.

15. General.—The most important problems with which the Irrigation Branch of the Public Works Department in Bengal have to deal are not connected with irrigation properly so called, but are mainly of a sanitary character, or are in connection with navigation or works of protection against floods. The work of the branch may be divided into (a) irrigation; (b) flood disposal and regulation, both tidal and non-tidal; (c) river training, both tidal and non-tidal; (d) drainage, both tidal and non-tidal; (e) anti-malarial drainage; and (f) navigation, open and closed canals for boats and inland steamers. The problems to be faced are of a very far-reaching character and affect practically the whole of Bengal, which is below the high flood-level of the network of rivers which intersect it. These rivers spill over their banks when in flood and irrigate large areas of rice, and deposit the suspended silt on the land, which acts both as a fertilizer and in building up the land itself. The problem which then arises is to regulate the water on the land, and to provide for its final drainage after the crop has matured; and the whole question is therefore one of irrigation combined with agricultural and sanitary drainage. As such rivers are apt to change their course, the natural channels become blocked both from natural and artificial causes, the areas submerged by flood become stagnant bils, and the whole country suffers from lack of proper irrigation and drainage. It is this side of the problem which requires special study and special engineering treatment for proper development. The solution of these problems depends to a very great extent on the observations of land levels and the collection of accurate hydraulic data over very large areas.

The surveys started in October 1917 in connection with the conservancy of the rivers Dhaleswari and Buriganga were continued during the year, and the Executive Engineer placed on special duty for the purpose continued his investigations throughout the year. He has submitted certain projects which are now under consideration.

Investigations in connection with anti-malarial works into the drainage conditions over large areas in the districts of Jessore, Nadia, Khulna, Midnapore and the 24-Parganas were continued and valuable information obtained.

16. The Irrigation Department during the year was in charge of Mr. F. A. A. Cowley. The thanks of Government are due to him for the efficient conduct of the affairs of the department during the year and to Mr. Addams-Williams, C.I. E., Superintending Engineer on special duty, for his zeal and energy in the conduct of the enquiries into the drainage conditions in this presidency. The good work of other officers has also been noted by Government.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette and that a copy thereof and of its accompaniments be submitted to the Government of India in the Public Works Department and circulated to other Governments and to all departments and officers of this Government as usual.

By order of the Governor in Council,

F. A. A. COWLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

THE GOVERNMENT DIPLOMA IN ACCOUNTANCY OF THE SYDENHAM COLLEGE OF COMMERCE AND ECONOMICS, BOMBAY.

Instructions to candidates for the Diploma.

[The Regulations referred to are the Regulations for the award of the Diploma published on pages 2515-16 of Part I of the Bombay Government Gazette of the 23rd October 1919.]

Regulation No. 4.—

(A) Examinations equivalent to Matriculation.—Examinations recognized by an Indian University as equivalent to the Matriculation or Entrance examination of that University will be recognized as such by the Accountancy Diploma Board under this regulation. If the candidate has studied for one or more terms in a College affiliated to an Indian University, a certificate to that effect signed by the Principal of that College will be accepted as proof of the candidate's eligibility for the Diploma course. The previous orders of the Board must be secured by the candidate in other cases.

(B) Attendance certificate.—The attendance ought to be in an institution specially recognized by the Accountancy Diploma Board for purposes of this Diploma. The candidate is required to have attended three-fourths of the number of days on which lectures were delivered in each of the two academic years. Should his attendance in either of the two years have fallen short of three-fourths, that particular year will not be counted as a portion of the two years' attendance prescribed by this regulation. If he has attended the prescribed number of lectures in each of two academic years, but has not been certified as fit to present himself for the examination, he will not be required to attend lectures for a third year, but will merely be required to satisfy the Principal about his fitness to appear for the examination, and to submit his application through the Principal. He may undergo practical training in accounts during such third year, and such training will be counted as a portion of the three years' training prescribed by regulation 12 (b).

(C) The fee of Rs. 50 must reach the Secretary to the Accountancy Diploma Board, 65, Apollo Street, Fort, Bombay, on or before 31st January. Fees paid in will on no account be refunded.

Regulation No. 5.—

Under this regulation, an undergraduate may, in lieu of attending lectures for two years as prescribed by regulation No. 4, receive practical training in accounts for two years. He must apply to the Board for the recognition of such practical training and secure the orders of the Board before applying for the examination; the number and date of such order must be quoted in the candidate's application for the examination.

Regulations 6 and 13.—

When the holder of a temporary auditor's certificate applies for the examination under regulation 6 or for the Diploma under regulation 13, the period for which the auditor's certificate was granted must not have expired. An application from such a candidate submitted after the expiry of the period for which the certificate was granted will not be accepted by the Board.

Regulation 12.—

Practical training.—Every candidate entering on the course of practical training prescribed by this regulation must submit to the Accountancy Diploma Board an application for the recognition of such practical training in the prescribed form, copies of which can be had at the office of the Board, Apollo Street, Bombay; such applications must be submitted within sixty days of the commencement of the practical training.

The practical training must be under a Chartered or an Incorporated Accountant or a certified auditor, working as a Public Accountant. It is immaterial whether the candidate has paid a premium for such training or is in receipt of a salary. It is essential that he should be a full-time apprentice and should not be engaged in any other work during the usual office hours.

Chartered and Incorporated Accountants may take and train apprentices without the previous permission of the Government. The holder of a permanent (whether restricted or unrestricted) auditor's certificate granted by a local Government may take and train apprentices, provided he is specially empowered in that behalf by the local Government of the Province where he is practising. The mere fact that he holds a permanent auditor's certificate will not empower him to take apprentices.

The apprenticeship may be served partly under one and partly under another practising accountant, provided it is in each case reported to and recognized by the Accountancy Diploma Board.

Regulation No. 12 (b) —

The practical training in accounts prescribed by this regulation may be (1) partly before and partly after, or (2) wholly before, or (3) wholly after the candidate passes the Diploma examination of this Board. The course prescribed for an undergraduate covers five years, viz., two years as a student of a recognized institution, plus three years' apprenticeship. The practical training in accounts, if any, received by an undergraduate during his two years' attendance at a recognized institution will, therefore, not be reckoned as a portion of the three years' apprenticeship prescribed by this regulation.

Regulation 12 (c).—

At least two out of the three years' apprenticeship prescribed for graduates must be served after they become graduates.

Number of Apprentices.—No practising Accountant will hereafter be authorised to take and train more than two apprentices at a time. This restriction will not apply to candidates who have already commenced their practical training.

Auditor's Certificate.—No permanent unrestricted Auditor's certificate will hereafter be granted by any local Government or Administration to a person who does not hold the Government Diploma in Accountancy of the Sydenham College of Commerce and Economics, Bombay. Holders of the Diploma have to apply for a permanent unrestricted Auditor's certificate to the local Government of the Province where the candidate received his practical training for the Diploma.

By order of the Accountancy Diploma Board,

K. S. AIYAR, B.A. F.S.A.A., Secretary.

37. (1) A flying machine when in the air or manœuvring on land or water under its own power shall carry the following lights, namely:—

Lights to be carried

- (a) forward, a white light, visible in a dihedral angle of two hundred and twenty degrees bisected by a vertical plane through the line of flight, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least five miles.
- (b) on the starboard side, a green light, so constructed and fixed as to show an unbroken light between two vertical planes whose dihedral angle is one hundred and ten degrees when measured to the right from dead ahead, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least three miles;
- (c) on the port side, a red light, so constructed and fixed as to show an unbroken light between two vertical planes whose dihedral angle is one hundred and ten degrees when measured to the left from dead ahead, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least three miles; and
- (d) at the rear, and as far aft as possible, a white light shining rearwards, and visible in a dihedral angle of one hundred and forty degrees bisected by a vertical plane through the line of flight.

(2) The green and red sidelights shall be fitted so that the green light shall not be seen from the port side, nor the red light from the starboard side.

(3) Where, in order to fulfil the conditions of visibility laid down in clauses (a) to (d) of sub-rule (1), a single light has to be replaced by several lights, the field of visibility of each of these lights should be so limited that in no case can more than one be seen at a time.

Explanation.—The angular limits referred to in this rule shall be determined when the aircraft is in its normal position for flying on a rectilinear horizontal course.

38. (1) The foregoing rules as to the lighting of flying machines shall apply to airships, subject to the following modifications, namely:—

Airships.

- (a) All lights shall be doubled, the forward and aft lights vertically, and the side lights horizontally;
- (b) Both lights of each pair forward and aft shall be visible at the same time;
- (c) The distance between lights comprising a pair shall not be less than six feet.

(2) An airship when being towed shall carry the lights required by sub-rule (1), and in addition those specified in rule 40 for airships not under control.

39. A flying machine, when on the surface of the water and when not under control, that is to say, not able to manœuvre as required by the regulations for preventing collisions at sea, shall carry two red lights not less than six feet apart in a vertical line one over the other, and of such a character as to be visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least two miles. In addition, the side lights must be shown if the flying machine is under way.

40. (1) An airship which from any cause is not under control, or which has voluntarily stopped its engines, shall, in addition to the other prescribed lights, display conspicuously two red lights, one over the other, approximately in a vertical line, not less than six feet apart and constructed to show a light in all directions and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least two miles.

(2) By day an airship, when being towed, or which from any cause is not under control, shall display conspicuously two black balls or shapes; each two feet in diameter, placed one over the other and approximately in a vertical line.

(3) By day an airship moored or under way, but having voluntarily stopped its engines, shall display conspicuously a black ball or shape two feet in diameter, and shall be treated by other aircraft as being not under control.

41. (1) An airship, when moored near the ground, shall carry the lights required by sub-rule (1) of rule 38.

(2) In addition, if moored but not near the ground, the airship shall carry below the car at a distance of not less than twenty feet, three lights in a vertical line one over the other not less than six feet apart. The highest and lowest of these lights shall be red, and the middle light shall be white, and they shall be of such a character as to be visible in all directions at a distance of at least two miles.

(3) In addition, the mooring cable shall have attached to it at intervals of one thousand feet, measured from the airship, groups of three lights similar to those mentioned in the preceding paragraph. In addition, the object to which the airship is moored on the ground shall have a similar group of lights to mark its position.

(4) By day the mooring cable shall carry, in the same positions as the groups of lights specified in the preceding paragraph, and in lieu thereof, tubular streamers, not less than eight inches in diameter and six feet in length, marked with alternate bands of white and red eighteen inches in width.

42. A flying machine stationary on land or water, but not moored or anchored, shall carry lights as prescribed in rule 37.

43. In order to prevent collisions with surface craft, the following provisions shall have effect, namely:—

(a) A flying machine when at anchor or moored on the water shall carry forward where it can best be seen a white light so constructed as to show an unbroken light visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least one mile.

(b) A flying machine of one hundred and fifty feet or upwards in length, when at anchor or moored on the water, shall in the forward part carry one such light, and at or near the stern, and, at such a height that it shall be not less than fifteen feet lower than the forward light, another such light.

Explanation.—The length of a flying machine shall be deemed to be the overall length.

(c) A flying machine of one hundred and fifty feet or upwards in span, when at anchor or moored in the water, shall carry in addition at each lower wing tip one such light as is specified in clause (a).

Explanation.—The span of a flying machine shall be deemed to be the maximum lateral dimension.

- 44. In the event of the failure of any of the lights prescribed in this part, the aircraft shall land at the first reasonably safe opportunity.

Failure of lights

- 45. Nothing in these rules shall interfere with the operation of any special rules made by the Government of any State with respect to the additional station and signal lights for two or more aircraft or for aircraft information, or with the exhibition of recognition signals adopted by owners of aircraft which have been authorised by their respective Governments and duly registered and published.

Savings.

- 46. (1) Aircraft proposing to land at night on aerodromes having a ground control shall before landing fire a green Very's light or flash a green lamp, and in addition shall make by international Morse code the letter group forming its call sign.

Landing at night

- (2) Permission to land will be given by the repetition of the same call sign from the ground followed by a green Very's light or the flashing of a green lamp.

- (3) The firing of a red Very's light or the display of a red flare from the ground shall be taken as an instruction that aircraft are not to land.

- (4) An aircraft compelled to land at night shall, before landing, fire a red Very's light, or make a series of short flashes with the navigation lights.

- 47. When a aircraft is in distress and requires assistance, the following signals shall be used or displayed, either together or separately, namely :—

Aircraft in distress.

- (1) the international signal, S.O.S., by means of visual or wireless signals;
- (2) the international code flag signal of distress, indicated by NC;
- (3) the distant signal consisting of a square flag, having either above or below it a ball or anything resembling a ball;
- (4) a continuous sounding with any sound apparatus;
- (5) a signal consisting of a succession of white Very's lights, fired at short intervals.

- 48. In fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rainstorm, whether by day or night, an aircraft on the water shall make the following sound signals with any sound apparatus, namely :—

Sound signals

- (a) if not anchored or moored, a sound at intervals of not more than two minutes, consisting of two blasts of about five seconds' duration, with an interval of about one second between them;
- (b) if at anchor or moored, a sound at intervals of not more than one minute, consisting of one blast of about five seconds' duration.

Air traffic.

- 49. (1) Flying machines shall always give way to airships, and flying machines and airships shall always give way to balloons, whether fixed or free.

General rules.

- (2) A motor-driven aircraft must always manœuvre according to these rules as soon as it is apparent that, if it pursued its course, it would pass at a distance of less than two hundred yards from any part of another aircraft.

- (3) When two motor-driven aircraft are meeting end on, or nearly end on, each shall alter its course to starboard.

- (4) When two motor-driven aircraft are on courses which cross, the aircraft which has the other on its own starboard side shall keep out of the way of the other.

- (5) An aircraft overtaking any other shall keep out of the way of the overtaken aircraft by altering its own course to starboard, and shall not pass by diving.

- (6) Every aircraft coming up with another aircraft from any direction more than one hundred and ten degrees from ahead, that is to say, in such a position with reference to the aircraft which it is overtaking that at night it would be unable to see either of that aircraft's sidelights, shall be deemed to be an overtaking aircraft; and no subsequent alteration of the bearing between the two aircraft shall make the overtaking aircraft a crossing aircraft within the meaning of this rule, or relieve it of the duty of keeping clear of the overtaken aircraft until it is finally past and clear.

Explanation.—As by day the overtaking aircraft cannot always know with certainty whether it is forward of or abaft this direction from the other aircraft, it should, if in doubt, assume that it is an overtaking aircraft and keep out of the way.

(7) Where under this rule one of two aircraft is to keep out of the way, the other shall keep its course and speed. When in consequence of thick weather or other causes, such other aircraft finds itself so close that collision cannot be avoided by the action alone of the aircraft giving way, it shall take such action as will best serve to avert collision.

(8) Every aircraft which is required by these rules to keep out of the way of another aircraft shall, if the circumstances of the case admit, avoid crossing ahead of the other.

(9) In following an officially recognised aerial route, every aircraft, when it is safe and practicable, shall keep to the right side of such route.

(10) Aircraft on land or water about to ascend shall not attempt to take off until there is no risk of collision with alighting aircraft.

(11) Every aircraft in a cloud, fog, mist or other conditions of bad visibility, shall proceed with caution, careful regard being had to the existing circumstances and conditions.

(12) In obeying and construing the provisions of this rule, due regard shall be had to all dangers of navigation and collision and to any special circumstances which may render necessary a departure from the said provisions in order to avoid immediate danger.

(13) The dropping of ballast other than fine sand or water from aircraft in the air is prohibited.

50. (1) (a) At every approved aerodrome a flag hoisted in a prominent position shall be taken as an indication that, if an aircraft about to land finds it necessary to make a circuit or partial circuit, such circuit shall be left-handed (anti-clockwise) or right-handed (clockwise) according to the colour of the flag. A blue flag shall indicate a right-handed circuit, that is to say, that the flag is kept to the starboard side or side which carries the green light of the aircraft, and a red flag shall indicate a left-handed circuit, that is to say, that the red flag is kept to the port side or side which carries the red light of the aircraft.

(b) Similarly, aircraft leaving an approved aerodrome shall conform to the circuit as indicated by the flag.

(2) When an aircraft starts from an approved aerodrome, it shall not turn until five hundred yards distant from the nearest point of the aerodrome, and the turning then made shall conform with the circuit indication.

(3) An aircraft flying between five hundred and one thousand yards' distance from the nearest point of an approved aerodrome shall conform to the circuit indication, unless such aircraft is flying at a greater height than six thousand five hundred feet.

(4) Side slip and trick landings are prohibited at approved aerodromes, and trick flying is prohibited within a distance in any direction of at least two thousand yards from the nearest point of any such aerodrome.

(5) An aircraft, when taking off from or alighting on an approved aerodrome shall do so up-wind, except when the natural conditions of the aerodrome do not permit.

(6) In the case of two or more aircraft approaching an approved aerodrome for the purpose of landing, the aircraft flying at the greater height shall be responsible for avoiding the aircraft at the lower height, and shall, as regards landing, comply with the provisions of sub-rule (5) of rule 49.

(7) Aircraft showing signals of distress shall be given free way in attempting to make a landing on an approved aerodrome.

(8) Every approved aerodrome shall be considered to consist of three zones when looking up-wind. The right-hand zone shall be the taking-off zone, and the left hand shall be the landing zone. Between these two there shall be a neutral zone. An aircraft when landing should attempt to land as near as possible to the neutral zone, but on the left of any aircraft which have already landed. After slowing up or coming to a stop at the end of its landing run, an aircraft will immediately move into the neutral zone. Similarly, an aircraft when taking-off shall keep as far as possible towards the right of the taking-off zone, but shall keep clear to the left of any aircraft which are taking-off or are about to take-off.

(9) No aircraft shall commence to take off until a preceding aircraft is clear of the aerodrome.

(10) The above rules shall apply equally to night landings on approved aerodromes, when the signals, if exhibited, shall be as follows, namely:—

(a) A red light shall indicate a left-handed circuit, and a green light shall indicate a right-handed circuit. The right-hand zone will be marked by white lights placed in the position of an "I," and the left-hand zone will be similarly marked. The "L's" shall be back to back, that is to say, the long arms of the "L's" will indicate the borders of the neutral zone. The direction of landing shall invariably be along the long arm of the "L" and towards the short arm. The lights of the "L's" should be so placed that the lights indicating the top extremity of the long arm shall be the nearest point on the aerodrome upon which an aeroplane can safely touch ground. The lights indicating the short arm of the "L" should indicate the limit of safe landing ground for the aircraft, that is, that the aeroplane should not over-run the short arm.

(b) Where it is desired to save lights and personnel, the following system may be used:—

Two lights shall be placed on the windward side of the aerodrome to mark the limits of the neutral zone, the line joining the lights being at right angles to the directions of the wind; two more lights shall be placed as follows, namely, one on the leeward side of the aerodrome on a line drawn parallel to the direction of the wind and passing midway between the two lights on the windward side, for showing the extent of the aerodrome and the direction of the wind; and the other midway between the two lights marking the limits of the neutral zone.

Additional lights may be symmetrically placed along the boundary lines of the neutral zone and on the ends of the taking-off and landing zones, on the line through the three lights on the windward side.

(11) No airship shall, in the vicinity of any aerodrome, be moored otherwise than near the ground without the special authorisation of the proprietor of such aerodrome.

51. Every aircraft manœuvring under its own power on the water shall conform to any regulation for the time being in force for preventing collisions at sea, and for the purposes of such regulations shall be deemed to be a steam-vessel, but shall carry lights as laid down in this Part, and not those specified for steam-vessels in those regulations. The sound signals specified in those regulations shall not be used by or apply to such aircraft, save as provided in rules 47 and 48.

52. Mere compliance with the provisions of this Part shall not be deemed to exonerate the owner or personnel of any aircraft from the consequences of neglect of any precaution which may be required by the ordinary practice of the air or by the special circumstances of any particular case.

Obligation to observe ordinary precautions.

I.—For Flying Machine Licence.

Certificates are of two kinds—

“A” of flying competency for pilots of private flying machines (not valid for the flying of passenger or goods aircraft);

"B" of flying competency for pilots of passenger or goods flying machines.

Certificates may be granted in each case by two examiners approved in that behalf by the officer authorised under rule 19.

PRACTICAL TESTS.

The practical tests for certificates of flying competency shall be carried out within a period of one month.

They may be carried out in any order and each may be attempted twice.

They shall, save as otherwise provided, be witnessed by both examiners who will forward their official reports to the officer authorised under rule 19.

In each practical test the candidate must be alone in the flying machine.

"A" certificate of flying competency for pilots of private flying machines.

(a) Test for altitude and gliding flight.—A flight without landing, during which the pilot shall remain for at least an hour at a minimum altitude of 6,000 feet above the point of departure. The descent shall finish with a glide, the engines being cut off at 1,500 feet above the landing ground. The landing shall be made without the engine being started again, within 150 yards of a point fixed beforehand by the examiners.

(b) Test of skill.—A flight without landing round two posts (or buoys) situated 500 yards apart, making a series of five figure-of-eight turns, each turn reaching one of the two posts (or buoys). This flight shall be made at an altitude of not more than 600 feet above the ground (or water) without touching the ground (or water). The landing shall be effected by—

(i) finally shutting of the engine or engines at latest when the aircraft touches the ground (or water), and

(ii) finally stopping the flying machine within a distance of 50 yards from a point fixed by the candidate before starting.

(c) Cross-country flight.—A cross-country or oversea flight of at least 50 miles, the final landing being made at the point of departure.

"B" certificate of flying competency for pilots of passenger or goods flying machines.

The practical tests shall be as in clauses (a) and (b) above. Candidates already in possession of the "A" certificate are not required to pass those tests again.

Further practical tests shall be as follows:—

Test of endurance.—A cross-country or oversea flight of at least 200 miles, the final landing being made at the point of departure.

This flight shall be carried out in the same aircraft within eight hours, and include two obligatory landings during which the machine must come to rest at a point or points which shall not be the point of departure but which shall be fixed by the examiners.

At the time of departure the candidate shall be informed of his course and furnished with a map. The examiners will decide if the course has been correctly followed.

Night flight.—A thirty minutes' flight at an altitude of at least 1,500 feet and also a landing to be made between two hours after sunset and two hours before sunrise.

Recent flying experience test.—This is to be carried out on the type of machine for which the licence is required. It is to be a flying test of at least two hours with four landings, in each of which no part of the machine is damaged.

This test need not be carried out in the presence of the examiners; but the candidate must submit proof to their satisfaction that he has performed this test.

TECHNICAL EXAMINATION.

The technical examination for both "A" and "B" certificates shall be in the following subjects:—

CONDITIONS SUBJECT TO WHICH CERTIFICATES OF AIRWORTHINESS MAY BE ISSUED IN RESPECT OF TYPE AIRCRAFT AND TO SUBSEQUENT AIRCRAFT OF THE SAME TYPE.

Type Aircraft.

(1) The applicant shall forward with his application a copy of any certificate of airworthiness which may have been granted in respect of such type aircraft.

The applicant shall also send general arrangement drawings of the proposed aircraft, together with such particulars of load, fuel, engines, etc., as will enable a preliminary opinion to be formed as to general safety.

(2) The applicant shall forward either with the application or subsequently such drawings and particulars of the proposed aircraft as may be necessary for the checking in detail of the safety of the aircraft. (Blue prints or rough sketches may be sufficient to enable the said checking to proceed, provided they are fully dimensioned.)

(3) The applicant may proceed with the construction of any part or parts of the aircraft as and when these are approved by the officer authorised under sub-rule (1) of rule 27 (in this Schedule referred to as the Officer).

(4) The workmanship and materials of construction of the aircraft shall be approved by the Officer in accordance with detailed directions in clause (17) of this Schedule.

(5) On completion of the aircraft, flying trials shall be carried out by the applicant's or constructor's pilot in the presence of the Officer or of persons nominated by him (in this Schedule referred to as the representatives of the Officer).

(6) After the satisfactory completion of the check calculations, inspection, and applicant's flying trials, and after any modifications considered necessary for safety have been completed to the satisfaction of the Officer, the applicant may be instructed to deliver the aircraft for official trials to such aerodrome as the Officer may specify (in this Schedule referred to as the official aerodrome).

(7) At any time prior to the delivery of the aircraft for official trials, modifications to the aircraft may be made by the applicant, provided that full particulars and drawings of the proposed modifications are first submitted to the Officer and that such as affect the safety of the aircraft are approved by him.

(8) During official trials, which may be attended by such number of representatives of the applicant as the Officer may approve, the aircraft will be in the charge of the representatives of the Officer, but the Officer and his representatives shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused to such aircraft during official trials.

(9) If any modifications are considered by the Officer to be necessary for safety, as a result of such official trials, such modifications shall be carried out by the applicant, and on completion thereof the aircraft shall be delivered, if required, for further official trials.

(10) On the completion of official trials, the applicant will be notified, and reports on calculations and tests will be supplied to him by the Officer on application. The aircraft will, as the Officer may direct, either be handed over to the applicant at the official aerodrome for removal, or be delivered by an official pilot to an aerodrome selected by the applicant and approved by the Officer.

(11) On the satisfactory completion of the official trials, and after the completion to the satisfaction of the Officer of any modifications considered necessary for safety, a certificate of airworthiness will be issued. Prior to the issue of such certificate the applicant shall deliver to the Officer a complete set of working drawings (process tracing) of the aircraft.

Subsequent Aircraft.

(12) Following the receipt by the Officer of an application form duly completed, certificates of airworthiness for subsequent aircraft which conform in all essential respects with a type aircraft for which a certificate of airworthiness has previously been issued will be granted, subject to the conditions and procedure hereinafter specified.

(13) The applicant may make modifications (including change of engine type) to the aircraft and may depart from the approved complete set of working drawings (process tracings) of the type aircraft which were delivered under clause (11) of this Schedule; but full particulars and drawings of the proposed modifications shall first be delivered to the Officer and such as affect the safety of the aircraft shall be subject to his approval.

(14) During the construction of the aircraft the inspection of the workmanship, construction and materials shall be as approved by the Officer in accordance with the detailed directions in clause (18) of this Schedule.

(15) In the case of an aircraft which, in the opinion of the Officer, differs considerably from the type aircraft, or in the case of an aircraft built by a constructor not familiar with the type aircraft, the Officer may on completion of the aircraft require flying trials to be carried out by the applicant's or constructor's pilot in the presence of representatives of the Officer, and may require the aircraft to be delivered to the official aerodrome for additional trials. The procedure in this case will be in accordance with the procedure governing similar trials in the case of a type aircraft, as laid down in clauses (8), (9) and (10) of this Schedule.

(16) On the satisfactory completion of the aircraft and of any trials that may be required by the Officer, and when any modifications considered necessary for safety have been completed to the satisfaction of the Officer, a certificate of airworthiness will be issued.

Prior to the issue of such certificate, the applicant shall deliver to the Officer a complete set of working drawings (process tracing) of any modifications to or departure from the type aircraft.

Method of approval of Workmanship and Materials.

(17) In the case of type aircraft—

- (a) inspection of workmanship and materials will be carried out by representatives of the Officer;
- (b) the Officer will accept wherever in his opinion possible the inspection of details, components and materials for type aircraft made by employees of the constructor under the supervision of a representative of such constructor, but each component will be finally inspected and approved by a representative of the Officer who will co-operate with the constructor's inspecting staff;
- (c) constructors must notify the Officer seven days before commencing work on any part of the aircraft, the inspection of which is necessary prior to further work;
- (d) the constructor must also fulfil the conditions detailed hereunder for subsequent aircraft.

(18) In the case of subsequent aircraft of a type—

- (a) constructors must satisfy the Officer that their inspecting staff is such as to ensure that aircraft passed by them conform in all essential respects to the type design;
- (b) constructors must purchase material to the specifications approved for the type design and must arrange that each and every batch of material is proved to comply with those specifications by such examination, sampling and testing as may be approved by the Officer;
- (c) constructors must make such arrangements at their works as will preclude the use of material other than that approved as in sub-clause (b);

- (d) constructors' inspecting staffs, referred to in sub-clause (a), must stamp, or otherwise provide means for the identification of each and every detail in such a way that the individual responsible for such approval can subsequently be traced, selective inspection being adopted where considered possible;
- (e) constructors must issue only details or parts in respect of which the provisions of sub-clause (a) have been complied with to the shops for assembly into components;
- (f) constructors must maintain an efficient process inspection during such work of assembly and record such inspection on a process card for each component. A list of goods which do not now require Polish import licences and the new procedure to be followed with regard to exports are indicated in the "Board of Trade Journal" of the 30th October, 1919.

TRADE WITH GERMANY, AUSTRIA, HUNGARY, AND ARABIA.

In view of the raising of the blockade, the Board of Trade have issued General Licences under the Trading with the Enemy Legislation authorising, with certain reservations, the resumption of trade with Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Arabia.

The Licences do not remove the existing restrictions upon the payment of debts and the return of property due or deliverable to persons in Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Arabia in respect of pre-war transactions.

The Licences do not permit the importation from Germany, Austria, Hungary, or Arabia of any goods included in the Prohibition of Import Proclamations and not covered by a General Licence issued under those Proclamations. Information with regard to imports into the United Kingdom can be obtained from the Import Restrictions Department, 22, Carlisle Place, S. W. 1. Further, Export Licences must be obtained from the Export Licence Department, 1, Queen Anne's Gate, Westminster, S. W. 1, before goods included in Lists A and B of prohibited exports are shipped to those countries, but no licences are required in respect of goods included in List C.

The text of these General Licences is as follows:—

The Board of Trade, on behalf of His Majesty, and in pursuance of the powers reserved in the Trading with the Enemy Proclamations and all other powers thereunto them enabling, do hereby give and grant licence to all persons and bodies of persons resident, carrying on business, or being in the United Kingdom, to trade and have commercial and financial transactions with persons or bodies of persons resident or carrying on business in Germany, Austria, Hungary.

Provided always that any licence which may be necessary in respect of any transaction under any prohibition of export or prohibition of import for the time being in force in the United Kingdom or in respect of any remittance of money out of the United Kingdom covered by* Regulation 41D of the Defence of the Realm Regulations is first obtained;

Provided also that this licence shall not permit any person or body of persons to pay to or for the benefit of any person or body of persons resident or carrying on business in Germany-Austria-Hungary any sum of money which by the terms of the Trading with the Enemy Amendment Acts, 1914 and 1915, or either of them, is required to be paid to the Custodian appointed under the Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914, but such sums of money must be paid to the said Custodian ;

Provided further that this licence shall not permit any person or body of persons to pay or deliver any sum of money or property which is, or but for the war, would have been due or deliverable to any person or body of persons resident or carrying on business in Germany-Austria-Hungary in respect of a transaction entered into before the outbreak of war.

A General Licence with regard to Arabia has been issued, dated the 19th August 1919.

CONSOLIDATED LIST OF GOODS WHICH MAY ENTER GERMANY WITHOUT IMPORT LICENCES.

2. Soaps, candles and starch of which the total weight does not exceed 2½ kilos.
3. Foodstuffs for the personal use of the addressee, with the exception of butter, meat, bacon, flour, sugar, pine-apple, ginger, vanilla, caviare and caviare substitutes, pickled caviare, sea-crawfish, lobsters and oysters.

URGENT ORDERS.

The Board of Trade, Export Licence Department, announces that, in collaboration with the Department of Overseas Trade, an arrangement has been made whereby firms receiving orders which require immediate acceptance may telegraph details of any such order to the Department of Overseas Trade in order to ascertain whether a licence will be granted for the export of the goods if the order is accepted.

In the event of an applicant being promised a licence he will be enabled to deal with the order straightaway with the knowledge that upon application being made in the proper form to the Export Licence Department the licence will be granted.

The telegrams should be addressed to "Orders, c/o of Advantage, Stock, London." They should give in each case in addition to the name and postal or telegraphic address of the applicant the quantity and description of the goods comprised in the order and the name and address of the ultimate consignee if the goods are destined for a neutral country. In the case of orders from Allied or British Territory or from Territory in the occupation of troops of the Associated Governments, the consignee need not be stated ; and it will be sufficient merely to give the country of destination. A reply of 24 words (1s. 3d.) must be prepaid.

Applicants are requested in their own interest to confine their enquiries to orders needing a very urgent decision, since the fewer the enquiries the more promptly can answers be given.

Any subsequent correspondence that is necessary in connection with the telegraphic enquiries should be addressed to the Comptroller General, Department of Overseas Trade (Export Facilities Section), 4, Queen Anne's Gate Buildings, Westminster, S.W. 1.

The Board of Trade announce that, as from to-day, the following goods have been removed from List "A" of Prohibited Exports :—

IMPORT AND EXPORT LICENCES.

* The Board of Trade announce that the Export Licence Department has now removed from 1, Queen Anne's Gate Buildings, S. W.-1 and has been amalgamated with the Department of Import Restrictions at 22, Carlisle Place, S.W.-1. The combined Department will be under the charge of the Assistant Secretary, Industries and Manufactures Department, Board of Trade.

Applications for licences in respect of all commodities (with the exceptions stated below) and all enquiries relating thereto, should be addressed to the Director, Imports and Exports Licensing Section, Board of Trade, 22, Carlisle Place, S. W.-1. (T. N. 4173 Victoria).

Applications for licences for the import of Dyestuffs should be addressed as hitherto to the Secretary, Trade and Licensing Sub-Committee, Danlee Buildings, Spring Gardens, Manchester, for licences for the Export of coal to the Controller, Coal mines Department, Holborn Viaduct Hotel (E.C.) 1.

IMPORT OF GERMAN DYESTUFFS.

The Board of Trade desire to notify consumers of Dyestuffs that the first instalment of colours which are being obtained from Germany under the Reparation Clauses in the Peace Treaty will shortly be received and will be followed at intervals by further quantities.

It is proposed that distribution should be effected as soon as possible after the arrival of each consignment. For the purpose of making this distribution the information already supplied by the Colour Users' Association and the National Federation of Paint, Colour and Varnish Manufacturers as to the probable requirements of their members for dyestuffs during the next six months, will be utilised as a basis. In order that this information may be extended so as to cover the whole of the requirements of the Colour Using Industry of the United Kingdom, it is desirable that any actual consumer of colour who is not a member of the Colour Users' Association or the National Federation of Paint, Colour and Varnish Manufacturers and consequently has not submitted any return to either of those bodies should immediately forward to the Board of Trade, Industries and Manufactures Department, Great George Street, S. W.-1, information on the following points, namely :—

- (a) The quantity of each particular brand of dyestuff estimated to be required during the next six months and which is not likely to be available in sufficient quantity from either British, Allied or Neutral sources of supply.
- (b) The approximate consumption during the year 1913 of each of those colours.

NOTE.—The dyestuffs required should, as far as possible, be classified under the following headings :—

Direct cotton colours, union colours, acid wool colours, chrome and mordant colours, basic colours, sulphide colours, vat colours, oil spirit and wax colours, immediate products, and the names given should be the usual trade denominations so as to render them easily identifiable.

As it is probable that the quantities which will become available under these arrangements will not be adequate to meet the whole of the requirements of consumers, the Trade and Licensing Sub-Committee will be prepared to consider applications from actual consumers for additional quantities not coming under the Reparation arrangements, it being understood that any permission granted for the import of such additional quantities will be on condition that any arrangements for the purchase and import will be made by the Central Importing Agency in accordance with the notice in the "Board of Trade Journal" of 26th June 1919.

Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the prevention of cruelty to animals in Calcutta was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin and have the honour to submit this, our Report, with the Bill, as amended by us, annexed hereto. In reprinting the Bill, all changes made by us have been underlined. The more important alterations are explained below.

Title.—As the operation of the Act is not necessarily to be restricted to Calcutta, and provision has been made in sub-clause (3) of clause 1 for its extension to other towns and places in Bengal, it was considered more appropriate that it should be called the Bengal Cruelty to Animals Act, following the title of Bengal Act I of 1869.

Clause 3(1).—Many of the opinions received suggested that the words "or bird" should be added after the word "animal". According to a ruling of the Calcutta High Court reported in I. L. R., 24, Calcutta, at page 885, the word "animal" in section 2 of the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act (XI of 1890), which corresponds to this clause, ordinarily means "an organised, or living being having sensation and power of voluntary motion, an inferior or irrational being as distinguished from man". As this interpretation will apply to the word "animal" in the new Act, and as the English authorities are also unanimous that the word animal includes bird, it was considered unnecessary to add the word "bird" as suggested. Any change, too, might conceivably throw doubt upon the meaning of the term "animal" in other Acts.

Clauses 3(2) and 4.—Clause 4 is not required, as power to extend the operation of the Act is conferred by sub-clause (3) of clause 1, and the need of excluding any area is not likely to arise.

Clause 5.—The words "if any" have been substituted for the word "every" in this clause, and also throughout the Bill where the latter expression occurs.

The word "overcrowding" has been inserted in sub-clause (c) so as to bring cases of cruelty of this description specifically within the scope of this clause.

Clause 6.—This clause has been redrafted so as to give effect to the suggestion that the owner, trader, carrier, contractor, etc., should in no case be made liable to imprisonment, and that they should be liable to a penalty of fine in those cases only where they fail to exercise reasonable care and supervision in respect of the protection of the animal from overloading.

Clause 7.—The penalty in this clause has been enhanced to a fine of two hundred rupees, or six months' imprisonment, i.e., doubled, as there is considerable opinion, that the former lower scale of punishment is inadequate. The words "or other milch animal" have been inserted after the word "cow" in both places where the latter word occurs as it is understood that phuka is sometimes practised on buffaloes and possibly on other milch cattle.

Clause 11.—We have revised this clause on the same lines as clause 6, so as to make the owner, trader, carrier or contractor liable for punishment only in the event of failure to exercise reasonable care and supervision in respect of the protection of the animal from being employed when unfit.

Clause 12.—The word "animal" has been substituted in sub-clause (a) of this clause in place of the words "quadrupeds or birds, whether domestic or wild", as in effect it is considered that this will cover all cases in which the offence is likely to be committed; in other words a "wild" animal could scarcely be the subject of the offence.

Clause 13.—The word "allows" has been substituted for the word "permits" in both places where the latter word occurs.

The words "or of which he is in charge" have been inserted after the word "owner" in both places where the latter word occurs in order to extend the scope of the clause. The words "go at large or" have been inserted before the word "die" in order to put a stop to the practice of turning out an aged or disabled animal to wander.

Clause 20.—In this clause "forty-eight hours" has been substituted for "twenty-four hours" in order to meet the objection that 24 hours is insufficient time for the removal of the load.

In order that provision may be made in the rules framed under clause 30 for a written notice to be given to the person in charge of the animal or animals for the removal of the load seized under clause 17 or clause 19, a new sub-clause has been inserted in clause 30 as follows:—

"(cc) prescribing the procedure to be followed after removal of a load under section 18, sub-section (2), or under section 19."

Clause 22.—We have omitted the words "if any" in sub-clause (1) of this clause as the presence of a Veterinary Inspector is a necessary condition of the action to be taken.

Clause 23.—It is considered advisable that the owner of an animal should be informed when it is sent by a Veterinary Inspector to an infirmary for treatment.

Clause 25.—The last part of sub-clause (1) of this clause has been redrafted so as to make the criterion for purposes of fitness not the work or labour on which the animal has ordinarily been employed, but that on which the owner states that it is his intention to employ it.

We have revised sub-clause (2) so as to make the Local Government the authority for prescribing the scale of rates.

We have added a new sub-clause (6) in order to give power to the officer-in-charge of the infirmary to dispose of an animal for which no purchaser can be found. A new sub-clause has also been included in clause 30 in order that rules may be prescribed regulating the procedure to be adopted with regard to the disposal of such animals.

Clause 26.—In sub-clause (1) after the words "the Commissioner of Police" we have inserted the words "or a Deputy Commissioner of Police".

As a consequential alteration line 4 of this sub-clause now reads "Magistrate or Commissioner of Police or Deputy Commissioner of Police". In sub-clauses (1) and (2) we have substituted the words "its physical condition is" for "its sufferings are".

We have added a proviso to sub-clause (2) with the object of securing that no order for destruction shall be made in the case of any bull, bullock or cow which is unfit for work merely by reason of old age.

We have omitted as unnecessary the words "in such manner as to inflict as little pain and suffering as practicable" at the end of sub-clause (3).

Clause 29.—We have provided in sub-clause (1) for the issue of search-warrants by Deputy Commissioners of Police. We have also included Presidency Magistrates in view of the fact that the Act is to apply to Calcutta.

Clause 30.—We have added a new sub-clause in order to give power to frame rules for the purpose of preventing the overcrowding of animals.

Clause 31.—The scope of this clause has been extended so as to include clauses 17, 19, 22 and 25(2).

We recommend that the Bill, as now amended by us, be passed.

thereof, may forthwith be sold or otherwise disposed of under the orders of the Commissioner of Police in accordance with rules made under section 30; and the sale-proceeds, after deducting therefrom all expenses incurred in the removal, detention and sale of the entire load, shall be made over to the owner, on proof of his ownership, within six months from the date of entry in the register.

Disposal of sale-proceeds

21. If within six months from the date of entry in the register no person satisfies the Commissioner of Police that he is the owner of the load, the Commissioner may cause it to be sold or otherwise disposed of in accordance with rules made under section 30, and the proceeds of the sale under this section, or of the sale under the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 20, after deducting therefrom all expenses, shall be applied in such manner as the Local Government may prescribe by rules made under section 30. [Cf. Ben. Act II of 1891, s. 50 (4).]

Production of animal for examination by Veterinary Inspector

22. (1) Any police-officer, or any other person duly authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, who has reason to believe that an offence against this Act has been or is being committed in respect of any animal, may, if the circumstances so require, seize the animal and produce the same for examination by the Veterinary Inspector in charge of the area in which the animal is seized.

(2) The police-officer or person who seizes any animal under sub-section (1) may require the person in charge of the animal to accompany it to the place of examination.

Examination of animals by Veterinary Inspector.

23. (1) For the purposes of the examination of an animal sent to a Veterinary Inspector in accordance with the provisions of section 22, he may submit the animal to any test which the Local Government may prescribe by rules made under section 30.

(2) If, on such examination, the Veterinary Inspector is of opinion that the animal is unfit to be employed on the work or labour on which it was employed at the time of its seizure, he shall either send the animal for treatment and care to an infirmary appointed under section 15, and inform the owner of the animal of his having done so, or (if he considers that a prosecution is necessary, or if the owner of the animal so elects) direct the prosecution of the offender and produce the animal before the Magistrate.

Power of Magistrate to send animal to infirmary.

24. The Magistrate before whom a prosecution for any offence under this Act has been instituted may, if he thinks fit, direct that the animal, in respect of which the offence is alleged or proved to have been committed, shall be sent for treatment and care to an infirmary appointed under section 15. [Cf. Act XI of 1890, s. 6 (3).]

Detention and cost of treatment of animals at infirmaries.

25. (1) When any animal has been sent to an infirmary in accordance with the provisions of section 23, sub-section (2), or of section 24, it shall be detained there until, in the opinion of the officer in charge of the infirmary, it is cured, or again fit for the work or labour on which it is the intention of the owner to employ it. [Cf. Act XI of 1890, s. 6 (3), (4), (5) and (6).]

The Bengal Cruelty to Animals Bill, 1919.(Weighbridges and Infirmaries.—Clause 26.)

(2) The cost of the treatment, feeding and watering of the animal in the infirmary shall be payable by the owner of the animal, according to such scale of rates as the Local Government may prescribe.

(3) If the owner refuses or neglects to pay such cost, or to remove the animal within such time as the officer in charge of the infirmary may prescribe, that officer may direct that the animal be sold and the proceeds of the sale be applied to the payment of such cost.

(4) The surplus, if any, of the proceeds of the sale, shall, on application to be made by the owner within two months after the date of the sale, be paid to him; but the owner shall not be liable to make any payment in excess of the proceeds of the sale.

(5) If no application is made by the owner for the surplus sale-proceeds within the period prescribed under sub-section (4), these proceeds shall be applied in such manner as the Local Government may prescribe by rules made under section 30.

(6) If an animal cannot be sold under sub-section (3) the officer in charge of the infirmary may dispose of it in such manner as the Local Government may prescribe by rules made under section 30.

Destruction
animals.

26. (1) When any Magistrate, the Commissioner of Police, or any Deputy Commissioner of Police has reason to believe that an offence against this Act has been committed in respect of any animal, the Magistrate, Commissioner of Police or Deputy Commissioner of Police may direct the immediate destruction of the animal, if, in his opinion, its physical condition is such as to render such a direction proper.

[Cf. Act X I of 1890, s. 10.]

(2) When any animal is sent to an infirmary in accordance with the provisions of section 23, sub-section (2), or of section 24, the officer in charge of the infirmary may direct the immediate destruction of the animal, if, in his opinion, its physical condition is such as to render such direction proper, or if he considers it to be permanently unfit for work by reason of old age or some incurable disease:

Provided that no order directing destruction shall be made in respect of any bull, bullock or cow which is unfit for work by reason only of old age.

(3) Any police-officer who finds any animal so diseased, or so severely injured, or in such a physical condition, that it cannot without cruelty be removed shall, if the owner is absent or refuses to consent to the destruction of the animal, at once summon the Veterinary Inspector in charge of the area in which the animal is found and, if the Veterinary Inspector certifies that the animal is mortally injured, or so severely injured, or so diseased, or in such a physical condition, that it is cruel to keep it alive, the police-officer may, without the consent of the owner, kill the animal or cause it to be killed.

7, c. 5, s. 1.]

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1860, s. 1; Act V of 1898, s. 67.]

(2) When the true name and address of a person arrested under sub-section (1) have been ascertained, he shall be released on his executing a bond, with or without sureties, to appear before a Magistrate if so required:

Provided that if such person is not resident in British India, the bond shall be secured by a surety or sureties resident in British India.

(3) If the true name and address of such person is not ascertained within twenty-four hours from the time of arrest, or if he fails to execute the bond, or if so required, to furnish sufficient sureties, he shall forthwith be forwarded to the nearest Magistrate having jurisdiction.

Special power of search and seizure in respect of certain offences.

28. If a police-officer, not below the rank of Sub-Inspector, has reason to believe that an offence against section 8 in respect of a goat is being or is about to be, or has been, committed in any place, or that any person has in his possession the skin of a goat with any part of the skin of the head attached thereto, he may enter and search such place or any place in which he has reason to believe any such skin to be, and may seize any such skin and any article or thing used or intended to be used in the commission of such offence. [Cf. Act XI of 1890, s. 7A.]

Search warrants.

29. (1) If a Presidency Magistrate, a Magistrate of the first class, the Commissioner of Police, or a Deputy Commissioner of Police, upon information in writing and after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, has reason to believe that an offence against section 7, section 8 or section 11 is being or is about to be, or has been, committed in any place, he may, at any time by day or by night, without notice, either himself enter and search, or, by his warrant, authorize any police-officer above the rank of a constable to enter and search, the place. [Cf. Act XI of 1890, s. 8; Ben. Act III of 1899, s. 601.]

(2) The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, relating to searches under that Code shall, so far as those provisions can be made applicable, apply to a search made under sub-section (1) or under section 28. Act V of 1898.

RESOLUTION—No. 9655For.

READ—

The Annual Progress Report on the Forest Administration in the Presidency of Bengal for the year ending the 30th June 1919.

READ ALSO—

The corresponding report of the previous year and the Government Resolution thereon

SIR HENRY FARRINGTON was in charge of the Bengal Forest circle throughout the year. He was on tour for 289 days and inspected all the divisions and divisional offices except Darjeeling, which was inspected after the close of the year. During the year Messrs. L. E. S. Teague, Deputy Conservator of Forests, and J. M. Cowan, Assistant Conservator of Forests, were released from military duty, but Mr. A. R. Nicholson, Deputy Conservator of Forests, remained on that duty throughout the year.

2. Changes in area and administration.—The only real change made in the area under the different classes of forests during the year was due to the notification of several areas aggregating 4 square miles in the Darjeeling, Jalpaiguri and Buxa divisions as reserved forest. The total area of all classes of forests, however, decreased by one square mile to 10,701 square miles owing to the recalculation of the areas of the Sitapahar reserve and of the Lebong Cantonment protected forests.

3. Reservation and demarcation.—Apart from the four square miles mentioned in the previous paragraph no progress has been made in the final notification of the proposed Ramshai, Khairbari and Torsa reserves owing to lack of funds. Repairs to 1,323 miles of boundary were carried out against 1,260 in the previous year. There still remain 124 miles of boundary to be demarcated, of which 90 form the provincial boundary between Bengal in the Chittagong Hill Tracts and Burma. It is important that this work should be completed as soon as possible.

4. Working-plans.—The revised working scheme for the Kurseong division for the year 1919-26 was sanctioned early in the year. The revised working-plans for the Jalpaiguri and Buxa divisions were completed. During the year the compilation of working-plans for the forests in the Chittagong and Chittagong Hill Tracts divisions was commenced. Plans now exist or are under compilation for all areas for which they are required except for 64 square miles.

5. Communications and buildings.—One mile of cart road and seven miles of bridle-path were constructed during the year. It is satisfactory to learn that 12 miles of inspection foot-paths were also constructed in the Kasalong and Sitapahar ranges in the Chittagong Hill Tracts division and that they will be useful to the public. The total expenditure on communications amounted to Rs. 18,757 against Rs. 15,904 in the previous year. The total expenditure on buildings was Rs. 33,550 against Rs. 25,311 in 1917-18.

6. Protection.—The number of forest offences reported during the year was 3,694 as compared with 2,780 in the previous year. The increase is mainly attributed to increased vigilance by the subordinate staff owing to the grant of adequate rewards to them for the detection of offences, partly to the prolonged drought in the hot weather of 1919 leading to scarcity of fodder and consequently to unauthorised grazing, partly to the large influx of tea garden coolies ignorant of forest rules into the Buxa and Jalpaiguri divisions, and partly to the greater expense of living. In 93 per cent. of cases taken into the court convictions were secured.

The area in which special measures for fire protection were in force increased from 367,854 to 396,606 acres, but the area burnt over amounted to 24,876 against 7,566 acres in the previous year. This heavy increase is mainly due to two large fires in the Haldibari and North Borojhar ranges, and is attributed to the unusually dry character of the hot weather. Measures are under consideration for fire protection in the Chittagong and the Chittagong Hill Tracts divisions.

There has been no change in the area open to grazing, which covers 4,747 square miles. The number of cattle impounded during the year was 7,021 against 4,720 in the preceding year. This increase is again attributed to the prolonged drought in the hot weather and the consequent scarcity of fodder.

No definite conclusions can yet be drawn from the observations which are being conducted on the sal fungus. Extensive defoliation was caused by the sal defoliator in the Buxa division.

Damage to plantations by elephant, bison, pig and deer is being reduced to a minimum by the use of wire-fencing.

7. Exploitation.—No change was introduced into the system of disposing of minor produce. There was a large increase in the outturn of bamboos and of thatching materials, but a fall occurred in the revenues derived from grazing and from royalties for the lease of elephant mahals. Only 34 elephants were caught by licensees, of which 7 died. The amount of timber cut or collected by Government agency rose from 353,508 cubic feet in the preceding year to 644,887 in the year under review. This remarkable increase was mainly due to the supply of timber to the Munitions Board; but there are indications, for example the economical working of the Murti Saw Mill, that a more extensive use of the departmental agency for extraction would lead to larger revenues.

8. Industrial investigation and commercial activity were two noteworthy features of the year under review. Mr. H. S. Gibson, Deputy Conservator of Forests, was placed on special duty under the Director of Industries to enquire into the industrial possibilities of the forests of Bengal. On return from leave Mr. J. C. Carroll, Deputy Conservator of Forests, was deputed as Forest Utilisation Officer to carry out further investigations; and Mr. J. A. Pilgrim, L.T.C., was deputed in the month of June last to investigate tannin materials in the Sundarbans. A lease of 120 square miles in the Buxa forests was given to Messrs. Davenport & Co. for the extraction of all trees other than sal by duly controlled fellings for the manufacture of tea chests and three-ply wood. Arrangements were under discussion for the grant of a lease of an area in the Kasalong reserve in the Chittagong Hill Tracts to Messrs. Andrew Yule & Co., for the extraction of bamboos for the manufacture of paper pulp. An application by the Acme Tea Chest Company for the grant of a lease to extract timber for three-ply tea chests in some of the reserved forests in Chittagong also came under the consideration of Government. No applications were, however, received from Indian capitalists.

9. It is satisfactory to learn that the number of persons reported as killed by tigers was only 5 as against 14 in the previous year and 51, the average of the last five years. Thirty-five tigers including three cubs and a large proportion of females were killed as against 46 in the preceding year.

10. Financial results.—The results of the year's working were eminently satisfactory. The total revenue increased from Rs. 15,01,670 to Rs. 19,55,394, by over 4½ lakhs, due mainly to departmental working in connection with the production of munitions. At the same time the expenditure increased by only a little over half a lakh from Rs. 7,71,124 to Rs. 8,33,634. The surplus amounted, therefore, to Rs. 11,21,760 against Rs. 7,30,546 in the previous year.

11. Quinquennial review.—The Government of India in their circular No. 1F-31-1, dated the 17th January 1912, desired that the orders of Local Governments on the Forest Reports for the years in which a quinquennial review was issued should be accompanied by a brief review of the events and changes of the preceding five years so as to indicate the direction in which the provincial forest policy is tending. This review is due this year. An account of the main features of forest working during the quinquennium will, therefore, be found in chapter VII of the report of the Conservator. Except towards its termination the period has not been marked by any important development. This is due to the fact that it roughly corresponded with the duration of the war when industrial development, except that due to the war, was dormant, expenditure was reduced to a minimum, and new schemes were kept in abeyance. The average annual total receipts during the last five years have been Rs. 14,53,023 as compared with Rs. 14,63,702 during the period from 1909-10 to 1913-14, and the average annual surplus fell from Rs. 8,17,159 to Rs. 7,53,671. An increase of revenue is, however, now expected under the agreements made or under consideration for the working of different forests by commercial agency as well as by a more extended use of the departmental working which led to such a large increase of revenue in the last year of the quinquennium. There has been little change in the areas under the different classes of forests. Working plans still cover nearly half the forest area, but working-plans for 1,625 more square miles are under preparation and the revision of others was undertaken. The feature of a revised scheme sanctioned for the Kurseong Forest division was the substitution of artificial for natural production of sal. Progress was made in the demarcation of boundaries. One hundred and seventy-five miles were artificially demarcated in the quinquennial period, but 124 miles still remain to be completed mainly in the Chittagong Hill Tracts division. Though there has been a reduction in the area under systematic fire protection during the period from 1,038 to 614 square miles, the forests have been successfully protected from fire. There has been no change in the average area of all classes of forests open to grazing; and protective measures to prevent the most destructive forms of grazing were continued in the Darjeeling, Kalimpong, Jalpaiguri, Buxa and Chittagong divisions. The average annual amount spent on roads, bridges, buildings and other works decreased from Rs. 87,853 during the previous quinquennium to Rs. 70,406 owing to enforced economies. During the period a reorganisation of the Imperial and Provincial staff providing an increased number of appointments was sanctioned; and subsequent to the close of the year the pay and prospects of the Imperial staff have been substantially increased as a result of a consideration of the proposals of the Public Services Commission.

12. The thanks of the Governor in Council are due to Sir Henry Farrington for his careful and efficient administration of the department during the year and for that part of the quinquennium, from the 7th January 1916, during which he held charge of the Bengal circle. His Excellency in Council notices with pleasure the Conservator's appreciation of the good work done by officers of the department during the year.

ORDER.—Ordered that this resolution be published in the gazette and that a copy, with a copy of the report, be submitted to the Government of India.

By order of the Governor in Council,

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Final Forecast of the Bhadol Crops of Bengal, 1919-20.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1917-18, the area under autumn rice in Bengal has represented some 6·5 per cent. of the total area under rice in British India.)

Character of the season.—As stated in the preliminary forecast the weather conditions in the beginning of the season were generally favourable in West Bengal, but less favourable in North and East Bengal, owing to insufficient rainfall. Consequently sowings, which commenced at the usual time in West Bengal, finished somewhat late in North and East Bengal. Good rainfall in June favoured the growth of the crops. Heavy rainfall in July and in the early part of August caused damage in the districts of the Presidency Division, Hooghly, Bogra, Pabna, Malda, Faridpur and Bakarganj. Some injury by insects is also reported from the 24-Parganas, Jessore and Jalpaiguri. On the whole, however, the season was much better than last year.

Acreage.—The total area sown this year with the different bhadol crops dealt with in the forecast is estimated at 5,827,800 acres against 5,933,300 acres reported in the corresponding forecast of last year. Of this, the area under autumn rice is returned at 4,961,600 acres against 5,066,600 acres of last year.

Outturn.—According to the estimates of the district officers, the total outturn of the different bhadol crops works out to 85 per cent. of the normal as against 77 per cent. reported in the corresponding forecast of last year, and that of autumn rice only to 87 per cent. against 77 per cent. of last year.

Autumn rice.—Accepting 87 per cent. as the outturn of autumn rice this year, the gross outturn of the crop for the province, on the basis of a normal yield of 10½ maunds of clean grain per acre, is estimated at 33,299,400 cwts. against 30,095,600 cwts. reported in the corresponding forecast of last year.

The decrease in area under murrha, other bhadol cereals and mulberry as compared with the preliminary forecast, is due to revision of estimates after enquiry. The weather has been favourable since the submission of the preliminary forecast. The outturn has fallen below the normal owing to damage caused by drought in the Kandi and by floods in the Lalbagh and Jangipur subdivisions.

KUTUBA.	Bhadol paddy (autumn rice).	17,800	20,200	22,500	100	83		The increase in area as compared with last year is due to the fact that the high price of rice this year induced the cultivators to cultivate more lands with bhadol paddy. ## Third Forecast of the Cotton Crops of Bengal, 1919-20.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1917-18, the area under the cotton crops in Bengal has represented some 0·3 per cent. of the total area under cotton in India.)

THE "early" crop is chiefly grown in the Chittagong Hill Tracts and in the State of Hill Tippera and to a small extent in other districts. The "late" crop is grown mainly in Bankura and Midnapore.

Character of the season.—As reported in the second forecast, the weather was generally favourable excepting in the Chittagong Hill Tracts, where heavy rain in July and August affected the crop. Subsequently the weather proved somewhat favourable to both the crops generally, but rain-fall in the middle of November caused considerable damage in the Chittagong Hill Tracts and thus reduced the outturn appreciably. The prospects of late crop, so far, are reported to be fair.

Area sown.—The total area sown with the early crop is reported to be 66,697 acres and that with the late crop 2,161 acres this year, against 70,786 and 2,203 acres, respectively, in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

Outturn.—The estimated outturn of the early crop is reported to be 19,539 bales this year against 25,272 and 30,908 bales, respectively, in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year. The outturn of the late crop is returned at 1,000 bales against 919 and 737 bales, respectively, in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

† Revised estimate.

(1) The weather has been favourable and the general condition of the crops is good. The date of harvesting of the early crop was normal.

(2) The condition of the crops has not been good owing to excessive rain.

(3) The weather has been fair and the condition of the crop is good.

(4) The weather and general condition of the crop has been fair, but the recent rain has done considerable damage to the crop. The date of harvesting is normal.

(5) Though somewhat unfavourable at the outset, the weather has been favourable to the crop subsequently and the general condition is fair. The date of harvesting is normal.

(6) In Nonkhali and in places of Burdwan, the weather has not been favourable. Elsewhere it has been favourable and the present condition of the crops is fair. In Khulna, the plants have all been destroyed by the cyclone in September.

Second Forecast of the Winter Rice Crop of Bengal, 1919-20.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1917-18 the area under winter rice in Bengal represents some 19·1 per cent. of the total area under rice in British India.)

Character of the season.—As reported in the first forecast, the weather has been favourable throughout for the broadcast aman rice crops. In West Bengal it was also exceptionally good for transplanted aman rice in the period July-September. Insufficient rain in October, however, affected the yield of crops on high lands to a slight extent. In East and North Bengal the conditions were not good for transplanted rice in July and August owing to deficient rainfall during this period. At one time matters looked somewhat serious, and large areas were transplanted at a later date than is usual. In September, however, the rainfall was generally in excess and the heavy rain brought by the cyclone in East Bengal did great good to late transplanted rice. On the whole, it may be said that the broadcast aman rice is very good and that the transplanted rice crop is satisfactory.

Acreeage.—According to district officers' estimates the total area under winter rice amounts to 15,551,400 acres as against 15,379,400 acres in the first forecast of this year and 15,962,100 acres in the corresponding forecast of last year. The increase of 172,000 acres over the first forecast was due to good rainfall in September.

Outturn.—From the district returns appended it will be seen that Bankura, Malda and Bakarganj report more than a normal crop and seventeen districts report a crop between 80 and 92 per cent. The outturns for the remaining seven districts are as follows :—

Burdwan, Hooghly, Rangpur and Noakhali (75 per cent. each), Nadia and Murshidabad (67 per cent. each), and the Chittagong Hill Tracts (50 per cent.).

As compared with the first forecast the crop has improved in ten districts, deteriorated in eleven and remained stationary in the rest.

On the basis of the above figures the provincial outturn is estimated at 89 per cent. of the normal against 77 per cent. in the corresponding forecast of last year.

I consider 90 per cent. a fair estimate, and accepting this figure the gross outturn for the province, on the basis of a normal yield of 12½ maunds of clean grain per acre, is estimated at 128,537,100 cwts. against 112,874,900 cwts. returned in the corresponding forecast of last year.

	Aores.	Aores.	Aores.
24-Parganas ...	1,041,500	892,200	825,100	88	82	November.	Normal.	Excessive rain since the submission of the first forecast has caused a little damage to crops on low lands in the Diamond Harbour subdivision and unusual heavy rainfall in the Bishnath subdivision damaged to some extent the plants in the Sandirum tracts owing to breaches in the embankments. Hence the outturn is expected to fall below normal.
Nadia ...	136,500	125,500	120,100	54	67	Not yet commenced		The increase in area sown is due to the favourable weather at the sowing time. The outturn is expected to be much below the normal owing to want of rain since the submission of the first forecast.
Murshidabad ...	346,600	326,300	314,700	58	67	Ditto		The increase in area sown as compared with the first forecast is due to subsequent transplantation. Crop suffered for want of sufficient rainfall. About 25 per cent. of the crop has been damaged owing to drought and flood in Jangipuri subdivision. The outturn is expected to fall below the normal on account of drought at the flowering time.
Jessore ...	568,100	462,500	455,500	67	60	Beginning of November.	Normal.	The decrease in area sown as compared with that of the last year is due to the corresponding increase of sown area and also owing to inundation at the time of sowing and transplantation. Insect pests have affected the crops in Doukang and Magura subdivisions. The outturn is expected to be below normal owing to the damage caused by flood and insect pests.
Khulna ...	824,200	751,100	703,700	85	92	Ditto		The outturn is expected to fall below normal owing to the damage caused by the cyclone.
Burdwan ...	871,400	700,000	736,000	66	75	Not yet commenced		The weather since the submission of the first forecast has not been favourable except at Asansol. Insufficient rainfall in the latter part of September and in October has considerably reduced the outturn of the late transplanted crop. The rainfall in November is likely to do much more harm than good and the outturn is expected to fall much below the normal.
Birbhum ...	604,600	601,500	601,500	67	92	Ditto		The weather has been good and a fairly good outturn is expected.
Bankura ...	510,100	520,000	525,000	62.5	123	Second week of November.	Normal.	Insufficient rainfall in the latter part of September and in October affected the crop on high lands in parts of the district. Since the submission of the first forecast about 45 per cent. of crop has been affected by drought and insufficient rainfall.
Midnapore ...	1,537,100	1,448,000	1,493,000	60	63	First week of December.	Normal.	Want of rainfall has adversely affected the growth of crops.
Hooghly ...	278,700	195,500	206,400	73	73	Not yet commenced		The weather has not been favourable since the submission of the first forecast. Insufficient rainfall has affected the crops seriously. The outturn is expected to fall much below the normal owing to long continued drought.
Howrah ...	126,200	114,400	119,500	79	90	Ditto		The weather has not been favourable since the submission of the first forecast. Want of rain in the latter part of the season retarded growth of the crops.
Rajshahi ...	697,000	620,000	656,300	83	90	Ditto		The outturn is anticipated to fall below normal owing to insufficient rainfall at the sowing time.
Dinajpur ...	1,120,300	1,019,100	1,039,000	67.2	83	Ditto		The increase in area sown is due to sufficient rainfall since the submission of the first forecast. Owing to the weather being not favourable at the beginning, the outturn is estimated to fall below the normal.
Jalpaiguri ...	351,300	497,400	417,500	85	80	Ditto		The outturn is expected to fall below the normal owing to unfavourable weather and want of sufficient rainfall at the time of sowing.
Darjeeling ...	66,200	25,900	25,500	93	93	First week of November.	Normal.	Effects of weather on the growth of crop have been fairly good on the whole.
Rangpur ...	622,200	674,000	600,000	59	75	Not yet commenced		The outturn is expected to be much below normal owing to drought in August.
Bogra ...	303,000	450,000	447,000	44	55	End of November.	Normal.	The weather was favourable up to the third week of October, but continued absence of rain since then has done injury to the late transplanted paddy. On account of low flood paddy on high lands in the eastern part of the district was damaged. Hence the outturn falls below the normal.
Pabna ...	346,000	520,000	282,500	50	62	First week of November.	Normal.	The present prospect is promising.
Malda ...	326,200	220,000	201,000	60	117	Latter part of November.	Normal.	The weather has been favourable on the whole, though in some places crop suffered a little for want of rain in the latter part of October. More than normal outturn is expected.

The cyclone made considerable damage; the outturn is therefore estimated to fall below the normal.
Mymensingh ...	1,128,700	969,700	969,700	75	92	Not yet commenced	The weather was generally favourable. The outturn is below the normal owing to cyclone and want of rain in some parts of the district, specially at the sowing time.
Faridpur ...	770,100	710,000	734,700	69	84	End of October. Normal.	The weather has been fairly favourable. Some damage was done by cyclone which accounts for the estimated outturn to fall below the normal.
Bakarganj ...	1,300,000	1,340,000	1,342,500	120	117	November. Normal.	The weather has been favourable and the outturn is expected to be above normal.
Chittagong ...	418,400	426,100	430,600	95	88	November and December. Normal.	Insufficient rainfall in the month of October and cloudy weather without rain for some days in November is likely to reduce the outturn.
Tippera ...	721,800	780,800	806,500	60	99	November. Normal.	Increase in area is due to favourable weather. Slight damage was, however, done to the crop by the cyclone of September.
Noakhali ...	610,000	600,000	600,000	85	75	Early in November. Normal.	Insufficient rainfall in October has been harmful to the crop in the Sadar subdivision. Some damage was caused by w/ra disease. In Feni subdivision the rainfall in October has done good.
Chittagong Hill Tracts.	47,500	41,600	46,000	100	60	Not yet commenced.	The outturn is expected to fall much below the normal for want of sufficient rainfall.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

First Forecast of the Spring Oilseed Crops of Bengal, 1919-20.

(Note.—On an average of the five years ending 1917-18, the area under linseed in Bengal has represented some 5·5 per cent, and that under rape and mustard 10·3 per cent, of the total area under these crops in British India.)

Explanatory.—Three forecasts are issued for the spring oilseed crops. The present one deals only with the area sown and the general condition of the crops.

Area sown.—Oilseeds are grown chiefly in Rajshahi, Dacca and the Presidency Divisions. In the other two divisions the cultivation is small. The total area under these crops (excepting sesamum for which separate forecasts are issued) is reported to be 1,280,000 acres this year against 1,296,800 and 1,304,800 acres respectively in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

Character of the season.—The rainfall in September was generally in excess of the normal in North and East Bengal and was somewhat defective in West Bengal. There was plenty of moisture in the soil for preparatory tillage which began in usual time. Light rain in October facilitated the sowings of the crops. In the early part of November, the sowings were somewhat retarded in some parts of West Bengal through lack of soil moisture, but rainfall in the middle of the month greatly facilitated matters. The outlook is, so far, reported to be promising.

MONTHLY WEATHER AND CROP REPORT OF BENGAL FOR NOVEMBER 1919.

I. Character of the season.—During the middle of the month, rainfall was general throughout the province. The fall was above the average everywhere, excepting in Birbhum, and in some northern districts where it was defective. The usual rainfall statement is appended.

II. Progress of agricultural operations.—Harvesting of winter paddy commenced. Sowing of spring crops proceeded favourably, though lack of moisture in the early part of the month retarded operations somewhat in parts of West Bengal. The rainfall in the middle of the month greatly facilitated sowings.

III. State of standing crops.—The condition of standing crops was reported to be generally satisfactory.

IV. Prospects and probable outturn.—The rainfall in the middle of the month somewhat benefited the late transplanted paddy and greatly helped the growth of vegetables and other standing crops. The outturn of autumn crops was satisfactory for the province as a whole.

V. Damage to standing crops.—Some damage to highland winter paddy was caused by drought in Bardwan and Bankura, while early cotton in the Chittagong Hill Tracts suffered from too much rain in the middle of the month. Ufra disease and insects caused some damage in parts of Faridpur and Noakhali.

VI. Condition of agricultural stock.—The condition of live-stock was reported to be fair on the whole. Cattle-disease was, however, reported from places in Nadia, Murshidabad, Khulna, Birbhum, Jalpaiguri, Darjeeling, Malda, Mymensingh, Faridpur and Tippera.

VII. Failure of pasturage and fodder.—The supply of fodder was sufficient throughout the province except in parts of Khulna and Faridpur where insufficiency of fodder was reported.

VIII. Prices of food-grains.—During the second fortnight of the month the price of common rice rose in the districts of Khulna, Bankura, Dacca, Noakhali and the Chittagong Hill Tracts, fell in twelve districts and remained stationary in the remainder. It varied from 4½ seers a rupee in Khulna, Rangpur, Mymensingh and Bakarganj to 7 seers a rupee in Birbhum and Chittagong.

IX. Condition of agricultural people.—The condition of the agricultural population shewed a tendency towards improvement.

For the week ending on the 11th December 1919.

Summary.—The week was rainless. Reaping of winter paddy is in full swing. Sowing of spring crops is fast approaching completion. The condition and prospects of standing crops are so far reported to be promising. The average price of common rice for the province has fallen by about 5·63 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week.

3. Where both mahua and molasses are mentioned in the schedule the spirit may be made from either material or from a mixture of the two in any proportions.

4. As the whole contract will not be given to one party, tenders should be submitted for parts of the contract either with or without a tender for the whole area.

5. The rates tendered must include the cost of carriage of the spirit from the distillery to the warehouse and must specify the price per London-proof gallon at which the tenderer is prepared to sell the spirit to licensed vendors at any of the warehouses enumerated in the schedule and at any additional warehouse or warehouses that may be opened. Spirit will be issued at prescribed strengths only and the price to be realised from the licensed vendors will be proportionate, according to strength, to the price specified in the contract. The price is at first credited into the Government treasuries and is paid to the contractors after the close of each month. Under special orders the payment of price may be withheld for any reason.

6. Spirit intended for warehouses must be conveyed in sound watertight and approved vessels, and the contractors will be bound to pay duty on any deficiency in excess of the allowable limit, in accordance with the rules for the time being in force in the Province from which the spirit is conveyed to the warehouses.

7. The contractor will be required to purchase from the existing contractors at the current cost price for the warehouse in which such spirit is stored the spirit in stock at the warehouses, but he shall not be bound to take over a quantity in excess of the probable requirements for fourteen days. The contractor must deposit not later than 21st March 1921 in each warehouse stock of spirit from his own distillery, equivalent to the probable requirements for one month.

8. The spirit must have been made in the contractor's own distillery in India.

9 In the case of the distillery not being situated in Bengal, the Commissioner of Excise will require satisfactory evidence that the plant is adequate to meet the total demands made upon the distillery, and he may require the contractor to instal additional stills and other accessories.

10. In case the Government premises at Russa in Tollygunge near Calcutta are used for the manufacture of spirit for wholesale supply, any additions to the existing buildings must be made at the expense of the contractor and he must maintain these and the existing buildings in repair. A fee of half an anna per proof gallon will be charged for the buildings and land.

11. The spirit intended for contract supply must be distilled at such strength as may be prescribed by the Excise Commissioner.

12. The contractor will be bound to provide all plant, viz., vats, pumps, pipes, etc., required for the storing, reducing and issue of liquor or, if there be any such plant belonging to the present contractor in the warehouses he will be required to purchase such plant which is in use and in serviceable condition at a valuation made, if necessary, in accordance with paragraph 20. All new plant proposed for erection must be approved by the Commissioner of Excise.

13. Water for reduction purposes is available at or near each warehouse, but the cost of conveying water, and of filtration, etc., must be borne by the contractor.

14. The contractor shall be bound to maintain at each warehouse such minimum daily stocks as may from time to time be fixed by the Commissioner of Excise.

15. The contractor must keep an agent at each warehouse and shall be responsible for reducing spirit to issue strengths and for all wastages and shrinkages.

16. Government shall not be held responsible for the destruction, loss or damage by fire, theft or any other cause whatsoever occurring to any spirit in the warehouse or in gauging, weighment or proof.

17. In case the contract be not renewed at its expiry the contractor will be bound to allow Government the right of pre-emption of the vats, pumps, pipes, etc., at a valuation made by two valuers according to paragraph 20 and in the case of the distillery being situated in this province this clause will apply to the distillery buildings and plant.

18. Form of grant and licence may be obtained from the Commissioner of Excise on application. The contractor will be bound by all the conditions entered therein and by the provisions of the Excise Act in force within the Presidency and by the rules and instructions of Government or the Commissioner of Excise issued under such Act.

19. For the observance of the conditions of the contract, the contractor must execute a deed, hypothecating to Government his vats, pumps, pipes and apparatus, together with the stock of liquor in the warehouses and deposit, at the time of signing the contract, Government Promissory Notes of such value as the Commissioner of Excise may direct.

20. Any valuations required will be made by two valuers—one to be selected by the Commissioner of Excise and the other by the existing contractors. In the event of differences in the valuations, the matter will be referred to Government, whose decision will be final.

21. The Commissioner of Excise is not bound to accept the lowest or any tender. Power is reserved to reject any of those received without reasons being assigned.

22. Tenders, enclosed in sealed covers and marked "Bongal Spirit Contracts," will be received up to the 28th February 1920, by the Commissioner of Excise, Calcutta, to whom application in writing only may be made for further particulars.

Educational grants made under the Syedpur Trust Estate.

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state the history of the grants made from the Syedpur Trust Estate to the various educational institutions, and how they have been utilised since their inception?

Questions and Answers.

(b) Is it a fact that the entire grant of the Syedpur Trust Estate to the Daulatpur H. E. School is at present being spent for the benefit of the Muhammadan students alone, whether tenants of the estate or not?

(c) When, and under what circumstances, was this innovation made and by whom and under what authority?

(d) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following remark made by Mr. Monahan, as Commissioner of the Presidency Division, in the visitors' book of the Daulatpur H. E. School on the 26th February, 1915 :—

“ I do not quite understand why the benefit of the grant which is made to this school from the management and improvement allotment of the Syedpur Trust Estate, should be restricted to Muhammadans. It seems to me that the poor and deserving non-Muhammadan tenants of the estate may have a claim on it.”

(e) What action, if any, has been taken on the above remark?

(f) Is it a fact that a dismissed police servant, named Rahimuddin Shaikh, was appointed a teacher of the Daulatpur H. E. School some time back, in preference to qualified Muhammadan candidates of the locality?

(g) Are the Government aware of a feeling that exists that this gentleman has been trying to create a tension of feeling between Hindu and Muhammadan students since his appointment?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

“(a) The estate has been under the management of the Board of Revenue for nearly a century, and it would involve an undue amount of labour to trace the history of the grants made from its funds to various educational institutions.

(b) and (c) The Board of Revenue directed in 1913 that the grants made from the funds of the estate to primary schools should be brought up to 1 per cent. of the rental, which should be allotted to schools established for the benefit of tenants of the estate, irrespective of religion, while grants to secondary schools, such as the Daulatpur High School, which were to be limited to 1 per cent. of the rental, were to be given for the benefit of Muhammadan students only.

(d) and (e) It is understood that at the time when Mr. Monahan recorded the remarks in question he had not the previous papers of the case and the orders of the Board of Revenue before him. No action was taken on his remarks.

(f) and (g) Government have no information on the subject.”

Will the Government be pleased to state what steps, if any, have been taken to give effect to the resolution passed by this Council at its meeting on February 19th, 1918, and reaffirmed at the meeting on February 19th, 1919, on the subject of education in hygiene and sanitation in schools and colleges throughout the province?

Education in hygiene and sanitation in schools and colleges throughout the province.

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

“(1) Suitable text-books have been recommended for supplementary use in the 3rd and 4th classes of high schools and in the training colleges. In the middle and upper primary stages as well as in normal, guru-training and muallim-training schools, certain text-books have also been recommended for the use of pupils as a compulsory subject (in Government and aided schools). In the lower primary stage the instruction is oral. A copy of the list of text-books is laid on the table.

(2) Arrangements have been made for the delivery of a course of lectures on hygiene in the training colleges and schools at Calcutta and Dacca, in the Dow Hill training class for Europeans at Kurseong, and at the Bethune College and collegiate school, Calcutta.

(3) Provision has been made for the teaching of the subject in certain guru-training schools by the Health Officers or sanitary inspectors employed in municipalities or district boards.

(4) Lanterns, screens and slides have been purchased for use in connection with lectures on hygiene.

(5) The suggestion that hygiene should be included as an optional subject for the matriculation examination was forwarded to the University. On their application, the Government of India have sanctioned the prescription of hygiene as an additional subject for the matriculation examination.

(6) An application has been made to the Government of India for the appointment of a whole-time Physical Adviser and a Deputy Sanitary Commissioner for school hygiene. Necessary provision for these posts, as well as for the measures mentioned above, has been made in the current year's budget."

D. In lower primary schools and in the corresponding classes of high, middle and upper primary schools in this Presidency, lessons on Hygiene should be entirely oral. These lessons should take the form of talks on the following or similar topics:—

- (a) The necessity for personal cleanliness.
(b) The necessity for keeping rooms clean.
(c) The necessity for pure water, fresh air, sunlight and ventilation, the danger of shutting up sleeping rooms.
(d) The danger of insanitary and dirty habits, such as spitting.
(e) The necessity of exercise.
(f) Some information as to how simple complaints—wounds, snake-bites, burns, &c.,—should be treated; how a drowning person should be handled, &c.

Questions and Answers.

The teaching must proceed not merely by precept but by example. The first essential then is that the teacher himself should be a man of healthy and clean habits; the second that the school should be well ventilated and scrupulously clean; the teacher should also insist that every child who comes to school must be clean and tidy.

Reorganization
schools.

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state what steps have been taken to give effect to the promise of the acting Director of Public Instruction given at the meeting of this Council in July last with regard to the reorganization generally of the Victoria and Dow Hill Schools?

(b) What sum is sanctioned per diem per capita for the feeding only of the pupils of the Victoria and Dow Hill Schools, respectively?

(c) Is any other item in addition to actual food chargeable against this sum?

(d) Has this scale been submitted to, and approved by, the medical authorities as being sufficient to provide adequate nourishment for growing children?

(e) If not, are the Government considering the desirability of obtaining the opinion of the medical authorities on this point?

(f) Has any increase in pay and emoluments for the staffs of the two schools been sanctioned and given effect to?

(g) If so, has such increase been proportionate in each school alike?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

“(a) Proposals for the reorganisation of the two schools are under the consideration of Government.

(b) The rate of the capitation boarding allowance for the boys of the Victoria School is Rs. 20-4 a month. This includes Rs. 18 for food and Rs. 2-4 for laundry, oil, wood, etc. The amount sanctioned per diem per capita for feeding only amounts therefore to 9 annas 7 pies.

The rate for the girls of the Dow Hill School is Rs. 18 a month, but the allotment for them is pooled with that of the students of the training class attached to the school, for whom an allowance of Rs. 45 each a month is sanctioned. The exact amount set apart per diem per capita for feeding the girls cannot, therefore, be stated definitely.

(c) The answer to (b) covers this question.

(d) The above scale was fixed in 1913 in consultation with the Sanitary Commissioner.

(e) The question of increasing the existing rates in view of the increase in prices is now under the consideration of Government and due consideration will be given to the recommendations of the Sanitary Commissioner.

(f) Pending the reorganisation of the schools certain members of the staffs of both the schools have received increments in their allowances as a temporary measure, with effect from 1st July, 1919.

Questions and Answers.

(g) The increments have been sanctioned according to sliding scales, from Rs. 30 to Rs. 50, which are different for male and female teachers. There is this further difference also that female teachers drawing above Rs. 200 have not been granted additional allowances, whereas male teachers at the Victoria School drawing above Rs. 200 have been granted increments."

(a) Is it a fact that there was a Middle English School at Mathurapur in Maldah of about thirty years' standing? Closing of the Middle English School at Mathurapur.

(b) Is it a fact that the school was of great benefit to the children of the tenants of Mr. G. Hennessey?

(c) When, and at whose instance, and under what circumstances, was the school closed?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

"(a) Yes. The school still exists, although its recognition was temporarily withdrawn.

(b) Yes, the school was and still is of great benefit to the children of the local people who are the tenants of Mr. G. Hennessey.

(c) The recognition of the school was withdrawn from the 21st October, 1916, to the 30th September, 1917, under the orders of the Inspector of Schools, Rajshahi Division, owing to serious irregularities in the internal management."

In connection with the reply given by Sir George Barnes to question No. 12 asked by the Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi at the meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council held on the 24th September, 1919, regarding the appointment of Indians to the Customs, Preventive Service, Calcutta, will the Government be pleased to say— Appointment of Indians to the Calcutta Customs Preventive Service

(i) whether any applications for appointment in that service have been received from Indians, and

(ii) how these applications have been disposed of?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Marr:—

"(i) Yes. The Collector of Customs, Calcutta, received during the last two months applications from three or four Indians for posts in the Preventive Service.

(ii) The Collector of Customs or the Superintendent, Preventive Service, interviewed all the applicants, but found that, while they generally possessed better educational qualifications than are needed for a Preventive Officer's work, none of them satisfied the conditions under which recruits for such service are selected. These conditions are that candidates must—

(1) be under the age of 25.

(2) be unmarried.

(3) be of athletic habits and of physique good enough for outdoor work in all weathers and at all hours.

(4) have good eyesight.

The majority of the applicants only satisfied the first condition

Appointments in the Forest
Department

(a) Is it a fact that applications have recently been invited by the Conservator of Forests, Bengal, from Europeans for 8 posts in the Forest Department?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to say why applications have not been invited from suitable Indians who have graduated in Science?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a) Owing to unavoidable delays in filling up the sanctioned cadre of the Imperial Forest Service and the difficulties which would be caused by the consequent shortage of staff, the Government of India authorised this Government to entertain temporary officers as stop-gaps subject to a maximum pay of Rs. 800 a month and a time-limit of two years in each case. Applications were accordingly invited by the Conservator of Forests from Europeans for five posts, corresponding to the number of vacancies in the sanctioned cadre of the Imperial Forest Service.

(b) The question of appointing Indians who had graduated, not in Science, but in Engineering was considered; but in view of the fact that the officers proposed to be appointed were intended to take the place of Imperial Officers and would only hold the posts for two years without any prospects of any further employment in the Forest Department, the suggestion was abandoned."

Through 3rd class tickets on the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway.

(a) Is it a fact that through 3rd class tickets are not issued to passengers travelling over the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway and Eastern Bengal Railway from Darjeeling to Calcutta in ordinary passenger trains?

(b) Is it a fact that such passengers are charged the fares for the mail train?

(c) Are the Government aware that this arrangement causes great inconvenience to passengers, especially those who come from Darjeeling; Kurseong, etc.?

(d) Are the Government considering the advisability of moving the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway authorities to issue through tickets from Darjeeling and other places on the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway to Calcutta and to charge ordinary fares?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Cowley:—

"(a) Third class passengers from stations on the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway can book through to Calcutta by paying the fare laid down for the Mail train. Passengers travelling by ordinary trains other than the Mail can take advantage of a lower fare over the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway by booking to Siliguri and re-booking thence to Calcutta.

(b) Yes.

(c) No.

Questions and Answers.

Improvement
increase of pay of teachers in Government
High Schools.

With reference to the reply given by the Hon'ble Mr. Goode to my question at the Council meeting of the 12th August, 1919, that there was no deflection of the amount earmarked for improving the staff and increasing the pay of Government High School teachers, is it in the contemplation of the Government to give retrospective effect to these proposals from the 1st April, 1917, i.e., the date the Imperial grant was made, and, if necessary, to move the Government of India for the removal of any technical objection which may be in the way of so dealing with the matter?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

" The scheme was sanctioned by the Secretary of State in a telegram dated the 18th September, 1919, which was received by the Government of India on the 21st idem. Under the Civil Account Code unless otherwise expressly ruled, or unless the contrary appears from the context, a sanction of the Secretary of State takes effect from the date of receipt of the orders by the Government of India. Apart from this objection, which is not merely technical, it would be impracticable to give retrospective effect to the proposals from 1st April, 1917, both because the sums allotted in 1917-18 and 1918-19 are not included in the present year's budget, and also because it would not be possible to appoint teachers to the sanctioned posts with effect from the date mentioned."

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether Mr. Pilgrim, the tanning expert, has submitted his report about the possibilities of obtaining tanning materials from the Sundarban forests?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to publish it?

(c) What action, if any, do the Government propose to take in this connection?

Report of the tanning expert on the tanning materials obtainable from the Sundarban forests.

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

“ The report has not yet been received; the subsidiary points raised in the question do not, therefore, at present arise.”

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Baladeb Pande, father of Debanand, a détenu interned in village Malo, within the Jalpaiguri district, submitted a petition in July last to grant his son leave for one month to enable him to come home to perform the yearly sraddh of his mother which was to take place on the 23rd Sraban last?

Alleged refusal to grant leave to a détenu.

(b) Is it a fact that the Additional Under-Secretary informed him in reply that the Government were not prepared to accede to his prayer?

(c) Is it a fact that thereafter Baladeb Pande sent a wire to the Additional Secretary, Political Department, praying for seven days' leave for his son Debanand and that this prayer was also rejected?

(d) Is it a fact that Debanand is the only son of his parents?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons why leave was not granted to Debanand with such restrictions as might have been considered necessary?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Stephenson:—

(a) Baladeb Pande did submit a petition to that effect.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes.

Questions and Answers.

(e) Détenus are usually allowed leave to go home on the occasion of the first sradh after a parent's death but not on the occasion of the annual sradh. In Debanand Pande's case there was no reason for the grant of a special concession."

Particulars about the construction, etc., of a building occupied by the Settlement Officer of Tippera and Noakhali.

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state what was the total cost incurred in building the two-storied pucca house at Comilla which was till very recently in the personal occupation of the Settlement Officer of Tippera and Noakhali?

(b) From what fund did the cost of construction of the said building come?

(c) What was the purpose for which the building was originally constructed?

(d) How is the building proposed to be utilised now that it is no longer required for the Settlement Officer?

(e) Is there any foundation for the popular impression that the cost of the said building was included in the cost of the settlement operations which have been or which are proposed to be recovered from the landlords and tenants concerned?

(f) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table the correspondence and other papers relating to the construction of the said building and leading up to the final order or sanction under which the building was constructed?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a) Rupees 53,130, including cost of out-houses, land and establishment charges of the Public Works Department.

(b) The cost was met by the Government of India, as the initial expenditure in connection with all major settlements is advanced by the Imperial Government.

(c) It was built as a residence for the Settlement Officer and an Assistant Settlement Officer; but it was intended that at the conclusion of the settlement operations it would be used as a residence for some other Government officer.

(d) It has been arranged to utilise it as the Collector's residence.

(e) It is the case that the original cost is included in the cost of the operations; but the Hon'ble Member appears to be under a misapprehension. It is also the case that the proceeds from the sale of the said building to the Local Government are credited to the account of the operations as well as the rent realised during the time it has been in the possession of the Settlement Department. The minus difference, if any, between the original cost and the subsequent credits, is borne by the Government of India and the landlords and tenants in the proportion of 1 : 3. The amount to be paid by the Local Government for the building has not yet been determined; and it is therefore not yet possible to say whether the transaction will result in a small profit or loss to the landlords and tenants.

(f) No."

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state what was the total cost incurred in the construction of the one-storied building at Comilla which has been used and is still used as the office of the Settlement Officer of Tippera and Noakhali?

Cost of construction of a building for the office of the Settlement Officer of Tippera and Noakhali.

(b) Has this cost been included in the cost of settlement operations which have been or which are proposed to be recovered from the landlords and tenants concerned?

(c) What use is it proposed to make of this building now that it will no longer be required for the office of the Settlement Officer?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

“(a) Rupees 25,417, excluding establishment charges of the Public Works Department.

(b) and (c) Several alternative schemes for the utilization of this building have been put forward from time to time, and recently a site committee under the presidency of the Commissioner of Chittagong was appointed to consider these schemes and advise Government. They have proposed that the Police Department should take over the building at a proper valuation as part of the scheme for new police lines. The difference between the original cost and the present valuation will in that case be borne by the Government of India and the parties from whom costs are realisable under section 114 of the Tenancy Act in the proportion of 1 : 3.”

Provision of private quarters for Settlement Officers.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table the rules or circulars, if any, as to the cost of construction of private quarters for Settlement Officers?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

“(a) Government have agreed to the erection of quarters only at the headquarters of districts where no suitable houses are available. In districts such as Bankura and Murshidabad no such special provision has been found necessary.

(b) There are no special rules or circulars regarding the cost of construction of buildings for Settlement Officers as distinct from buildings for other officers.”

(d) Are the Government aware that instances of racial distinction cause great irritation to the Indian mind.

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state what action, if any, they are taking in the matter?

*Questions and Answers.Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Marr:—

(a) Mr. Sudhir Kumar Bose is an old student of the Medical College, Calcutta. As a matter of special privilege Indian students, when ill, are permitted to occupy a room in the Ezra Hospital. As an old student of the Medical College, the same privilege was extended to Mr. Sudhir Kumar Bose, and he has been enjoying the benefit of a large airy room to himself. His father has expressed his personal gratitude for this privilege being extended to him.

(b) Mr. Bose had fever at the time of his removal, but no risk was thereby involved, otherwise the patient would not have been moved.

(c) Yes.

(b) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the opinion that has been expressed that it is unfair not only to the litigants but also to the officers themselves that they should be required to hear intricate civil appeals without previous training and experience?

(c) Are the Government considering the desirability of making an inquiry and of taking such steps as may be necessary to bring about a reform in this matter?

*Questions and Answers.Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Stephenson:—

"It is a fact that some Additional District Judges at the time of their first appointment have had little experience in civil cases, but the instances in which they are required immediately to hear intricate civil appeals are rare. The question of improving the legal training of members of the Indian Civil Service who are allotted to the judicial branch has long received the attention of Government, and in 1913 proposals were sanctioned by the Secretary of State to enable them to undertake courses of study in law in England. In 1914 orders were passed under which selected junior members of the service were to be given continuous training in civil cases for a period of 18 months before they joined the judicial branch, but owing to the depletion of the cadre and the strain upon it in connection with the war, only three officers have so far received this training. It is hoped that, with the return of more normal conditions, it will be found possible to extend the system."

- (4) that the Head Master of the school should be designated Principal;
- (5) that the school should be placed under a Governing Body exercising independent control and certain definite powers in the matter of appointment and control of staff and the administration of finances;

Government have also sanctioned a fixed consolidated grant to meet the contingent charges of the school for a period of three years with effect from 1920-21 and have authorized the Governing Body to exercise certain powers in spending the grant. Government have further sanctioned the creation of—

- (1) one post in class VI (Rs. 300) of the Provincial Educational Service in lieu of a post in class II (Rs. 200) of the Subordinate Educational Service;

(d) What tangible results have so far been achieved by the said institute?

Expansion of the Government
Weaving

Serampore.

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

(a) The proposal is to remove the Weaving Institute from Serampore, where there are difficulties in the way of expansion, and to erect suitable buildings for its accommodation on a spacious site in the neighbourhood of Lillooah. The initial cost of the scheme (including land) is estimated at Rs. 4,32,000.

(b) No money has actually been allotted for the scheme, pending a decision on the question that has been raised of including a weaving department in the scheme for a technological institute in Calcutta.

(c) The total expenditure in 1918-19 was Rs. 33,336.

Questions and Answers.

(d) From the higher class about a dozen students are turned out yearly, nearly all of whom have obtained suitable employment in factories or mills, or as weaving teachers, inspectors, etc. From the artisan class, which is attended by practical weavers, 43 passed out in the year 1918-19: of these 28 are working at their homes on fly-shuttle looms (the use of which they have learned at the institute) and 8 are employed in hand-loom factories or under Government: particulars are wanting as to the remaining 7. There are similar results for previous years. REPORT REFERRED TO IN ANSWER TO QUESTION No. 36 (e).

Copy of letter No. 3216/M.B., dated the 21st October 1918, from E. Hoogewerf, Esq., to the Controller of Munitions, Bengal Circle, Calcutta.

I was placed on deputation in the Financial, Commerce and Industrial Department for six months with effect from the 5th of May 1918, to assist in the improvement of the handloom weaving industry of Bengal, and as the period of my deputation will terminate on the 4th of November next, I give below a summary of the work done by me.

2. In the month of May last I proceeded to Bankura to organise for the Registrar of Co-operative Credit Societies some of weavers' societies, to make it possible for the Registrar to undertake the weaving of Dosuti cloth, a demand for which was made by the Munitions Board, Simla. During the course of a week the teacher of the Bankura Weaving School and myself aided by some of my ex-students successfully organised some 13 societies. and Mr. Donovan who visited Bankura shortly after, found it necessary to form a Union to finance and control these societies. A general meeting was accordingly convened of the leading gentlemen of the town, as many of the local weavers as could be got to attend to consider the proposals of the Registrar, and the possibilities of establishing these societies on a permanent basis.

3. The District Magistrate, Mr. Vas, was appointed President of the Union, and some of the local leading gentlemen, office bearers. The rules for the management of the Union with their bye-laws were formulated, and the Union was registered on the 18th June. The number of the societies was later increased to 20. These societies under the supervision of the Weaving teacher, Babu Sudhir Kumar Bannerjee, whose services were transferred to the Co operative Department, successfully wove about twenty five thousand yards of Dosuti cloth for Government and other bodies, besides undertaking private orders and executing work which the Union was able to procure for them. The Union is working efficiently, and is in a position at present to undertake large orders for the manufacture of cloths.

4. Twenty similar societies were also started at Pabna, but it was not found necessary to organise a Union at that station, as a central bank already existed there, and the Registrar was of opinion that these societies could easily be controlled by the Managing Committee of the Bank. It was found that the Pabna weavers although organised expressly for the weaving of Dosuti cloth, could not be utilised for this purpose, as the rate of weaving which the Munitions Board was in a position to offer them was not found sufficiently attractive, and they preferred to carry on their own business, large orders for which they had weaving of Lungi cloths for the Chittagong and East Bengal and Burma markets, and several thousands of these fabrics are being sold to Mahajans weekly at the local hâts. Weaving societies could also have been started in the other districts of Bengal, where weaving schools exist, but as some difficulties arose with the Munitions Board, Simla, in the matter of prices, it was found impossible to manufacture Ordnance Dosuti cloth at the rates at which Mr. Silver was agreeable to buying the material, and hence the manufacture of Ordnance Dosuti cloth has been temporarily abandoned.

5. I also organised a body of some 80 to 100 weavers in the villages some distance away from the town of Bankura on behalf of the Bengal Home Industries Association, and these weavers are still executing the orders for Ordnance Dosuti cloth, special yarn for which was purchased. I understand that some 8,000 yards of this material is now ready and it has been woven up to the specifications required by the Ordnance Department. Mr. Silver from time to time has written to say that he is prepared to purchase Dosuti cloth which could be utilized for other purposes than the making of tents, but hitherto since no definite order has been placed by him, no work could be given to the societies and in consequence it seems useless to organise fresh bodies of workers, unless sufficient work can be given to them. I would suggest in this connection that I may be permitted to go to Simla to personally discuss this matter with Mr. Silver to obtain from him some definite orders which the weavers of Bengal would welcome, and if they are sufficiently large more weavers' societies could be organised in other districts.

6. In addition to the above, I have been carrying out experiments in the spinning and weaving of Sunn hemp. As regards the spinning of Sunn hemp, some 30 to 40 samples have been hand-spun and mill-spun for Mr. Finlow, and judging from his letters, he seems to be quite well satisfied with the results. Some of the Sunn hemp yarns which was specially prepared from Jubbulpore Sunn hemp fibre and which was extracted without retting, has been found to be a good substitute for flax for the sewing of saddlery, harness and boots. I have conducted experiments at Serampore for the weaving of water proof Sunn hemp canvas with the same fibre, and I am pleased to say that the samples have been much approved of and there is a great demand for it at present. To cope with the demand, two hand loom weaving factories have been started at Serampore. Experiments have also been conducted at the local Jute Mills for the spinning of Sunn hemp yarns, and I understand that one of these firms has already ordered out special machinery for the purpose. Hose pipes as well as filter cloths and beltings have also been manufactured with this fibre, and I think that at this period if some definite orders were placed with the firms referred to above, the prospects of further development seem certain.

7. Since last year a great demand for woollen cloths and blankets has also arisen, and I have been helping the local weavers of Bankura, Midnapore and Murshidabad to sell their goods more lucratively than before by encouraging some young men I know to go into the districts and to purchase woollen yarns and blankets from the wool workers and to supply them to buyers with whom I have brought them in contact. A woollen factory has also been started at Serampore by Mr. Borrie, who was an Engineer of one of Messrs. Bird & Co.'s Jute mills.

8. Besides the above, inquiries have been received by me from time to time for the manufacture of cotton canvas and Union cloths and I am constituting inquiries and having experiments carried out to ensure a regular supply of them. I have also received inquiries for the manufacture of brass and iron articles, and I have rendered the inquiries as much assistance as I could by bringing them into contact with the artisans who do this work in the villages.

9. As regards the duties I had to perform at the Munitions Board, I may state that I have been entrusted with the placing out of orders of all the textile materials, boots, hats, caps, uniforms, etc., required by the various local indenting bodies, and to inspect and pass the goods before they were despatched. I have also had to reply to numerous enquiries relating to hand spinning, weaving, and to advise the selection of suitable weaving machinery.

10. At my last interview with you, you asked me for an expression of my opinion relating to the more efficient promotion of local industries, and I think I am justified in making the following suggestions from the experience I have gained in these matters.

I am fully convinced that if the local industries of this province are to be improved, a separate department known as the Department of Industries should be created, and that it should have as its head a Director with at least three efficient assistants to deal with the primary industries of this province, namely:—

- (i) An officer who has a good knowledge of hand and power weaving and its allied branches;
- (ii) A chemist conversant with industrial chemistry and capable of conducting researches;
- (iii) A Mechanical Engineer with a sound knowledge of mining.

11. Experience shows that industries cannot be promoted or the artisans efficiently taught unless they are in some way brought under control, and this can best be done by forming them into societies and unions. In this province the work has been entrusted to the Registrar of Co-operative Societies with the result that it has formed an impediment to the development of the local industries, for the simple reason that it has been put under dual control, that is to say, the organisation of the artisans into societies and the matter of financing them has been entrusted to the Registrar of Co-operative Credit Societies, while their industrial education rests with the Education Department. Consequently, it often becomes a difficult matter for officers in charge of the two departments to work in harmony with each other. In provinces where these conditions do not exist the promotion and improvement of industries is considerably an easier matter, as the officer entrusted with the promotion of industries happens also to be the Registrar of Co-operative Credit Societies. In these circumstances I think that the Director of Industries suggested in my note should also be vested with the powers of a Registrar and may be known as an additional Registrar of Co-operative Industrial Societies.

(a) What forests, if any, have the Government leased out for the extraction of wood-pulp and for other industrial purposes?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to mention the names of the lessees and the terms of their leases?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"(a) (i) A lease of about 126 square miles in the Buxa Forest Division has been granted to Messrs. Davenport and Company of Calcutta, for the extraction of timber and the manufacture of tea-chests and three-ply wood.

(ii) A lease has been granted to one Mr. C. T. Grenon of Calcutta, for the extraction of leaves of "Hantal," bark of "Bhola" and "Dhani grass" from the Sundarbans Forests for paper-making.

(b) The terms of the lease granted to Messrs. Davenport and Company are contained in the agreement executed by them, a copy of which is laid on the library table.

The terms of the lease granted to Mr. Grenon are contained in Revenue Department letter No. 1611-T.R., dated 29th September, 1916 (addressed to the Conservator of Forests), a copy of which is also laid on the library table."

Scheme for the re-organisation of the Sericultural Department.

What is the scheme now under the consideration of the Government for the re-organisation of the Sericultural Department with the object of improving the silk industry?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"Four years ago the Government of India appointed Mr. H. Maxwell-Lefroy to inquire into the conditions of the silk industry in India and to formulate recommendations for the revival of that industry. The recommendations made by Mr. Lefroy are now under the consideration of the Government of India in consultation with the Local Governments. No final scheme for the re-organisation of the Sericultural Department in this Presidency can be drawn up until orders are received on the proposals submitted by this Government in connection with Mr. Lefroy's report."

The Calcutta Cruelty to Animals Bill, 1919.Sir Henry Wheeler.LEGISLATIVE BUSINESS.• LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 3.*THE CALCUTTA CRUELTY TO ANIMALS BILL, 1919.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Cruelty to Animals Bill, 1919.

He said :—

“ My Lord, I beg to present the Report of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Cruelty to Animals Bill, 1919.

As Hon'ble Members will see, the report is short and it is also unanimous. We received various interesting criticisms on the Bill, and I think we gave due consideration to all the important matters that were raised, even though the changes made have not been very extensive. I therefore only propose to mention one or two of the more conspicuous points.

It will be noticed that in reference to clause 3 we have departed from the usual practice of Select Committees, which is ordinarily to mention what the Committee has done and not what it has not done. But as there appeared to be some amount of misapprehension as to whether the term “ animal ” did or did not include a bird, unless a bird was specifically mentioned, we have given our own reasons and our authority for not including the word “ bird,” as being not only unnecessary but even to some extent possibly risky, as leading to doubts as to the meaning of the word “ animal ” alone in other Acts.

Another noticeable change is intended to meet a certain amount of criticism that was received with reference to clause 6 and the somewhat analogous clause 11. Various people seemed to think that, while it was not unreasonable to impose a further liability for cruelty of different descriptions on the owner, trader, carrier, contractor, etc., yet it was rather hard to say that a person of that status might be sent to jail for an act of cruelty which might have been committed in his absence and without his knowledge. We have therefore modified the permissible punishment, and have also added a special protection which we took out of the English Act. As the clause is now worded I do not think any owner, etc., who exercises reasonable care has anything to fear.

We have not given a similar protection in the case of clause 7, because we thought that it was up to any one who owns or controls animals to take care that such a disgusting practice as phuka does not occur in relation to them. In recognition of a certain amount of opinion to that effect, we have, however, enhanced the punishment awardable under clause 7.

We have made a change in connection with the seizing of loads and the sending of animals to infirmaries in order to meet the view which was expressed in several quarters that it was reasonable that the owner should get a written notice that his load had been seized or his animal sent to an infirmary in order that he could make arrangements for their removal, etc. We have made provision to that effect partly by taking a rule-making power under clause 20, and in clause 23 by making a substantive change in the Bill.

The only other change of importance is perhaps that referred to in clause 26. When I introduced the Bill I foreshadowed the possibility that objection might be raised to the killing of bulls, bullocks and cows for old age. Such an opinion was, in fact, expressed in various Hindu quarters, and we have shown regard to it by providing that no order for the destruction of a bull, bullock or cow shall be made merely because it is unfit for work by reason of old age, the idea being that, following the practice which commends itself to Hindu orthodoxy, the animal should be sent to a pinjrapole.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 5.*RESOLUTIONS.

(Under the rules for the discussion of matters of general public interest.)

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the proposal for abolishing the First Year Class of the Maynamati Survey School be dropped and that the said class be retained permanently.

He said :—

"My Lord, what I am asking for is not the establishment of a new school but the retention of one of the two classes of the old existing school. That school was established in 1914 as an experimental measure for teaching land surveying and improvement of its method. The experiment was found successful and the school was established on a permanent basis in 1916, but recently it was rumoured that it is in contemplation to abolish the First Year Class of the School and thereupon a representation was made by the people for the retention of the class; and I understand the Government have been pleased to order that that class would not be abolished at least for another year. What I am praying for in this resolution is that the proposal might be dropped altogether. It is a very useful institution established in a very good place. The site is almost an ideal one for the purpose, situated as it is in a very healthy place, and the school is established on a residential basis and is a very useful institution. I would ask the Government to consider the following facts before any final decision is arrived at. One of the important considerations is that as a result of the abolition of the First Year Class the number of students will decrease by 50 per cent. but there will be no reduction in the cost even by 10 per cent. Then there is another aspect which is also an important one and that is that the present arrangements are of course meant to staff both the classes, and therefore the full capacity of the institution will not be fully utilised if the First Year Class is abolished. Therefore, my Lord, I hope that the proposal may be dropped."

The Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan said :—

"My Lord, I do not propose to take up the time of the Council for more than a very few minutes. The hon'ble mover of this resolution desires to maintain permanently the First Year Class at the Maynamati Survey School. I may say that it has not yet been finally decided to either abolish or to maintain permanently the First Year Class at the school. We have, for the present, issued orders for the continuance of the class up to September next. Meanwhile, it is proposed to reconsider the whole matter and to come to a decision as to whether this class should be maintained permanently or not, and it is quite clear therefore that the Government have no intention of closing the class until they have re-examined and reviewed the whole position. Moreover, this school being more or less under the Revenue Department, who directly deal with those who pass out of the survey class at Maynamati, that department will also have to consider the matter carefully conjointly with the Education Department. All I can say to the hon'ble mover of the present resolution is that whatever may be the decision arrived at, it will not be done in a hurry or without due consideration. But on the other hand, I cannot at the present moment hold out a definite promise regarding the continuance of this class. Government fully realise the importance of having such a class for the purpose of survey training in the Chittagong Division ; and I can assure the hon'ble gentleman once more that we shall examine the question in all its bearings in due course. I trust that in view of what I have said the hon'ble mover will not press for his resolution."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"In view of the assurance that I have received from the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur I do not feel justified in pressing the resolution. My only prayer is that, before any final decision is arrived at in favour of the abolition which, I hope, it will never be, the opinion of the public will be invited and considered. I therefore beg, my Lord, with your Excellency's permission, to withdraw the resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 6.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that arrangements be made with a view to the payment of the monthly pensions of Government pensioners in the Presidency of Bengal by postal money-order, if they so desire, and that, if necessary, the sanction of the Government of India be obtained in that behalf.

He said :—

"This is a matter of convenience so far as pensions are concerned. We are aware of instances in which the pensioners find it a great hardship to receive their pensions under the existing rules. It sometimes happens that a man has to walk a long distance, or has to incur large expenditure in order to come to the head-quarters of the district, to receive his pension. Sometimes it happens that, for getting a pension of Rs. 10, a man has to spend two or three rupees. There are other disadvantages, but I need not take up the time of the Council over this small matter, for I have every reason to believe that this resolution may possibly find favour with the Government."

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this resolution seems to be the echo of one of a similar character that was moved in the Bombay Council on the 19th September last, and which Local Government then accepted in the sense that they stated that they would bring the method of payment by money-order to the notice of the Government of India as an experiment which was worth trying in the case of pensions up to Rs. 20.

The object of the suggestion, as the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta has said, is to do away with the inconvenience of people having to come, it may be, considerable distances to the offices of payment in order to receive small sums that are due to them as pensions, and it is undeniable that that inconvenience does exist. It is also true that in the majority of cases personal attendance is required. There are a few exceptions in which payment can be made on certificates of various kinds, but in most cases people are required to be present in person. If, as suggested, payment by postal money-order is inaugurated, it is obvious that instead of the pensioner going to receive his pension, the postal peon will come to him, and his convenience will thereby be served. There is, however, a certain amount of risk in that system both to the pensioner and to Government. The peon might not pay the pension to the correct person, though in that event we would probably very soon hear from the pensioner himself, and the fraud would be discovered. The Government again might be cheated by fraudulent representation that the pensioner was alive though he was really dead, and his pension might continue to be taken by somebody else until the deception happened to be found out. These are the risks, though it is possible they are not so great as might be apprehended, especially in the case of small pensions; no system is entirely free from risk, and in the case of small pensions we should not stand to lose very much even though frauds occurred here and there. But it is relevant to note that this system of payment by postal money-order has been tried. It was tried in Bombay in the case of certain military pensioners, and it was tried on a large scale in the case of family allotments from non-combatants which were paid by postal money-order through the Dadar office. Two curious points were then brought to notice. In the first place there were many complaints of delay in payment. People complained that they were accustomed to get their pensions on the 1st or 2nd of every month, and when delays occurred under the new system they were put to inconvenience. On the other hand, there might be bonâ fide excuses on the part of the postal peons, by reason of inability to find the payee and the like. Another feature was that in the majority of cases advantage was not taken of this concession. This might have been for the reason already mentioned, but the fact remains that quite a number of people preferred to adhere to the old system and to draw their money in person. So it does not follow that this experiment would be a panacea for all evils.

There is another possibility which is worthy of consideration and which has been brought to our notice by the Accountant-General, Bengal. It is that we might, instead of sending money by postal peons under the money-order system, delegate at least a portion of this work of paying pensions to post-offices. Obviously, everywhere, for one Government treasury, there are half-a-dozen post offices, and instead of having to come long distances pensioners would then have shorter distances to travel. This possibility affects the Postal Department and they would have to be consulted. We do not know whether the postal authorities will be in favour of taking up what may prove to be an appreciable addition to their work.

While, therefore, willing to make inquiries, we would prefer that the resolution should be put into a more open form than that in which it has been drawn up, that is to say, that besides the proposal of payment by money-order the possibility of delegating part of the work to post offices should not be excluded. If the Hon'ble Member agrees to put the resolution in the following form, I shall be glad to accept it on behalf of Government :—

"This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the possibility be examined of improving the present system of disbursing pensions, either by the introduction of a system of money-order payments, or in such other way as will ensure that the pensioners are not required to attend monthly at treasury offices in order to draw their pensions, unless they wish to do so."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I am quite prepared to accept the modified form."

The resolution was then put in the following amended form and agreed to :—

"This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the possibility be examined of improving the present system of disbursing pensions, either by the introduction of a system of money-order payments, or in such other way as will ensure that the pensioners are not required to attend monthly at treasury offices in order to draw their pensions, unless they wish to do so."

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 7.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to improve the pay and prospects of the Assistant Surgeons in the Presidency.

He said :—

"My Lord, this is a question on which I do not feel justified in taking up the time of this Council in view of the answers that were given by the Government at the last meeting of the Council in answer to a question by the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur. I find that the petitions of the Civil Assistant Surgeons asking for an improvement in their pay and prospects have been forwarded to the Government by the Surgeon-General with recommendations and are now under consideration. We also find from these answers that if there was any delay it was due to the recommendations of the Medical Services Committee. We have also received assurances that there is not likely to be much delay on the part of this Government in dealing with these petitions, so in view of all these it is hardly necessary for me to support my resolution with any lengthy observation. All that I am anxious to point out in this connection is this—that the members of this Service and the members of the Provincial Services, both Judicial and Executive, are men almost equally qualified, and if there is any conceivable reason for the remarkable difference of pay between the pay and prospects of Assistant Surgeons on the one hand and that of Deputy Magistrates and Munsifs on the other, the reason was that Civil Assistant Surgeons enjoy some private practice yielding some additional income to them. But, my Lord, it is now an admitted fact and Government have also recognised that the private practice of these officers has diminished very considerably owing to the increased number of private practitioners, equally qualified, now practising, and their income is now confined to the pay they receive from Government. This is a fact which should be taken into consideration in arriving at a final decision on the question of the pay and prospects of these Assistant Surgeons. In this connection I would like to explain my position by giving one concrete illustration. Let us suppose there are two boys reading for the B. A.

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler.

examination ; both pass the examination, and it so happens that one is admitted to the Provincial Service on an initial pay of Rs. 250 while his equally qualified brother who has chosen the medical profession is admitted into the Medical College for a long and expensive course of five or six years. After passing the final medical examination when he obtains an appointment he is to begin on Rs. 100 only. That shows that the initial pay in the latter service is very unsatisfactory, but as I have already submitted before I would not like to labour this point because it is admitted by Government that their pay is insufficient, and Government have already moved in the matter. My resolution is a very elastic one ; I do not ask for any particular increment, all that I ask is that steps should be taken to increase their pay and prospects and that the increment granted should be appreciable and substantial. That is all I need say in support of my resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

My Lord, Assistant Surgeons are a body of men who have never been backward in preferring their grievances, and the result is that in recent years a considerable amount of attention has been given to them, and their pay has been enhanced on more than one occasion. I do not, therefore, accept the picture of them as a ground-down and sweated body of men, and while it is quite proper that the State should pay for their services a fair living wage, it must also be remembered that with the yearly increase in the number of candidates, there is no difficulty in filling our appointments, and we could not afford to, nor would it be right that we should, pay more than the fair market rate. The arguments to which the Hon'ble Member has resorted of comparison with other services are further apt to be extremely misleading and dangerous. It sounds simple to say that a Deputy Magistrate or a Munsiff gets so much and therefore that the Assistant Surgeon should get so much as both are equally qualified ; or that one brother should not be left to choose one career and then find himself worse off than the other brother who has chosen another ; but the argument really carries little conviction. It is probably true of every family of brothers that one adopts one line of life and another chooses a different line, and when they reach a ripe old age they may find that one has succeeded to a greater extent than the other, but that is largely a matter of luck and temperament and is not the fault of Government, while supposed analogies between various careers may take us far afield.

As illustrating what I have said regarding the improvements that have been effected in the pay of Assistant Surgeons in recent years, I may mention that, to go no further back than 1898, we then approved of four grades of Rs. 100, 150, 200, 300, and for Assistant Surgeons promoted to Civil Surgeoncies Rs. 350—500. Again in 1912 we introduced a time-scale rising from Rs. 100 to 300, with 10 per cent. of the cadre in two selection grades of Rs. 325 and 350. Again in 1915 we raised the pay of the Assistant Surgeons promoted to Civil Surgeoncies to Rs. 400—600. So that there have been three instances of enhancements between 1898 and 1915. The Public Services Commission took up the same question, and recommended a slightly improved time-scale and a slight improvement in the pay of those promoted to Civil Surgeonships. The matter was again examined last cold weather by the Medical Services Committee, and on the basis of the recommendations of the Public Services Commission and of that Committee we have submitted proposals which are now before the Government of India, again improving in a fair degree the prospects of this Service. Therefore, at the present moment, while we accept the resolution as an indication that the Council may wish to endorse our action in recommending an enhancement, yet it must be clearly understood that we do not propose to do anything more than we have already done, and we shall merely await the orders of the Government of India on the proposals which have been submitted to them."

Resolutions. Adjournment.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, this is a matter on which I should like to avoid any controversy in view of the assurance that we have received that the matter is under the consideration of Government. I would like to say something in reply to some of the Hon'ble Member's observations with which I do not find myself in agreement but I refrain from doing so. I again repeat my prayer that the increments that are proposed may be appreciable and not merely nominal."

The resolution was then put and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 8.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to improve the pay and prospects of the compounders attached to Government hospitals and dispensaries in the Presidency.

He said :—

"My Lord, since giving notice of this resolution I understand that orders have already been passed granting some increments to the compounders ; in some cases it is from Rs. 20 to 30 with an annual increment of Re. 1 and in others the maximum has been raised to Rs. 35. In view of this fact all I would like to do is to express the gratitude of the compounders and of the public to the Government for this act of mercy."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, it is true that at the time when notice was first given of this resolution we had before us proposals from the Surgeon-General for raising the pay of compounders. I held them up in the expectation that the resolution would be moved on the occasion of our last meeting, but as it was then postponed, I did not think it was fair that the compounders should suffer owing to the absence of the Hon'ble Member, and accordingly sanctioned the enhancement. There is little reason, therefore, for moving a resolution on the subject now."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Council was then adjourned to Tuesday the 3rd February, 1920, at Government House, Calcutta.

Forecast of the Winter Til (Sesamum) Crop of Bengal, 1919-20.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1917-18, the area under til in Bengal has represented about 4.9 per cent. of the total area under til in British India.)

Character of the season.—Owing to uneven distribution of rainfall the weather at sowing time was, on the whole, unfavourable for the crop throughout the province. Subsequently conditions were rather better until the end of October; but continued drought since then has generally stunted the growth of the crop and, in many districts, considerably reduced the outturn in consequence. Insect-pests also caused some damage in places, especially in Rajshahi, Jalpaiguri, Nadia and Bogra. In Khulna, owing to excessive rain at sowing time, the crop could not be cultivated at all this year, and in Pabna about 3,000 acres were left unsown. On the whole, the season has not been better than last year.

Acresage.—The total area sown this year is estimated at 42,600 acres against 49,400 acres last year.

Outturn.—According to estimates of District Officers the outturn of the crop for the province as a whole works out at 68 per cent. of the normal against 62 per cent. last year. Taking  $6\frac{1}{2}$  maunds as the normal rate of yield per acre, the gross outturn for the province is estimated at 6,500 tons against 6,900 tons last year.
